Phi Beta Kappa Elects 19 Seniors To Membership

Initiation Will Be Held Wednesday May 21

Father and Son Are Elected to Society

Nineteen seniors were elected yesterday to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, as a result of the final election held late yesterday afternoon.

Seniors who are over and above the required standing and who were voted into membership yesterday are as follows: Charles Baker A4 of Iowa City; Horace Baker A4 of Iowa City; Mary Carney A4 of Greene; Mildred Copeland A4 of Batavia; Gail DeWolf A4 of Spencer; Nellie Evans A4 of Webster City; Margaret Geerhart A4 of Springville; Elizabeth Hagler A4 of Des Moines; E. Pearl Jeffords A4 of Britt; George Marshall Ka4 of Iowa City; Phillip King A4 of Iowa City; Maude McBroom A4 of Iowa City; Dorothy McClenahan A4 of Des Moines; Laura M. Nanes A4 of Ottumwa; Richard Petersburger Cm4 of Davenport; Lloyd Raisty Cm4 of Colwell; Marjorie A. Turner A4 of Corning; Katherine Van Derveer A4 of Waverly; Bernadine Wendell A4 of Smithland.

These names are run in alphabetical order and not according to scholastic standing. The highest average of the group was 3.778 while the lowest grades maintained by any of the group averaged 3.202. The minimum grade for membership in the organization is 3.2. Any senior who has had two years work in the University and who has maintained an average of 90 per cent or above is eligible for membership. No certain number to be taken in is ever set, although the number admitted to membership must not exceed ten per cent of the entire senior class. The group taken in at this time last year, although in proportion to the size of the class it averages about the same. The graduating class this year is not quite so large as that of last year.

Probably the most interesting feature of this election, or in fact any Phi Beta Kappa election ever held at Iowa, lies in the fact that a team of father and son were admitted to membership in the honorary organization at the same time. This team was made up of Horace Baker, father, and Charles Baker, his son. The Baker family live in Iowa City.

Other facts to be noted in glancing through the list of the newly elected members are that George Kay is the son of Dean George F. Kay of the College of Liberal Arts, and that Phillip B. King is the son of Professor King, formerly of the Department of Education.

Formal initiation of the newly elected members of Phi Beta Kappa will be held Wednesday, May 21, at 5:00 o'clock, in room 104 of the Liberal Arts building. Following the initiation the fraternity will entertain the new members at a banquet given at the Congregational Church.

Johnson Talks on History Last Night

Columbia Profesor's Addres Is Well Attended

A large attendance marked the introduction of Henry Johnson, professor of history of Columbia College, New York when he talked to the students last night in the liberal Arts auditorium at eight o'clock on the subject of "Old and New Conceptions of History for Schools."

"The ideas that we are advocating so strongly at the present have been worked out and discussed in the past," said Professor Johnson. Histories have been written about the present and stopped with the present through out the generations. "This idea began with the French people in 1793 when they said that only the history of the French revolution then in progress, should be taught to the children. The whole thing," continued Professor Johnson, could be simmered down to the study of current events mostly." Mr. Johnson went on to say that the question "Why should boys and girls study ancient history in preference to the current problems" has been an age old question."

In a more humorous veing Mr. Johnson said, "the history of the world should be written anew in every generation and sometimes oftener as the occasion arises." The great need in the writing of history is the truth.

Professor Johnson said that he has often been described as an old fashioned teacher of history, but he said as far as he had been able to discover from his own experience "that there isn't any difference between the old fashioned method of teaching history and the more modern project and problem methods." He gave as his own receipe for the teaching of history the statement that memely "to make anything intelligible to children to translate it into terms that they can understand and you have the best method."

Improved Serum May Reduce Pneumonia Death Rate

BOSTON, Mass., May 8—(AP)—Discovery of a new treatment for pneumonia in the form of an improved serum which it is thought might reduce the death rate from this disease by twenty five or possibly fifty per cent, was described by Dr. Lloyd D. Felton, assistant professor of preventive medicine at the Harvard medical school, in an address at the New England health institute today.

The treatment devised by Dr. Felton in connection with the work of the influenza commission of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, consisted, he said of a method of precipitating and concentrating the anti-bodies in anti-pneumococus serum. The original serum, which has been known for some time, was weak, he added, and the value of its use had been diminished by the fact that it produced violent reactions in the form of chills, serum sickness and rashes.

Dr. Felton said he had been able to eliminate the harmful substances from the serum, leaving only the protective elements.

'Bob-haired Bandit' and Hubby Say Good-bye, and Go to Pen

Celio goes to Auburn Prison tomorrow to begin her ten year sentence. Cooney leaves later in the week for Sing-Sing to serve a similar term. With good behavior they can be released in about seven years.

"It'll be a long, long time, Celio, it'll be a long, long time," Cooney mumbled as he held his young wife in a tight embrace. Both were sobbing.

Former Governor Shaw Speaks on Political Topic

Held Cabinet Office Under President Roosevelt

Initiated into Phi Beta Kappa at Cornell Last Evening

"Constitutional government versus pure democracy" is the subject on which former governor Leslie M. Shaw will speak at 8 o'clock tonight at the natural science auditorium.

Report comes from Ames that at a special convocation held there Wednesday in his honor Mr. Shaw delivered a striking address and was given a rousing ovation. Mr. Shaw yesterday addressed the student body at Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, and in the evening was initiated into the Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity. Mr. Shaw was graduated from Cornell college in 1874.

Mr. Shaw was considered one of the formost public speakers through out his active political career and since that time he has continued to win the popular favor as an orator. In the political assembly, on the chatauqua platform, among statesmen or before public or private gatherings, Mr. Shaw has been equally successful as an entertainer who has in addition all of the more fundamental qualifications from the aspect of thought content which are desirable in a successful speaker.

A native of Denison, Iowa, Mr. Shaw was engaged in law and banking there until 1897, when he was first elected to the governorship. After serving ttwo terms in that office he was appointed to a cabinet post by President Roosevelt and was secretary of the treasury from 1902-1907. Since that time he has been asociatesd with the Firt Mortgage Guarantee and Trust company of Philadelphia of which he is president.

Local Writers In May Midland

Stout Illustrates Own Stories in Current Issue

The University of Iowa again is well represented in the May Midland, which has just come off the press. George L. Stout, instructor in the department of graphic arts, has contributed two short stories, "Dust" and "Plumes". Raymond Knister, associate editor of the Midland, has a group of five poems, and Russell Carter, a student here, is represented with a group of seven.

The background for Mr. Stout's stories was suggested by his experiences in training at Camp Dodge and at a field hospital in France during the war. They are of further interest in that the illustrations, the first that the Midland has carried, are also his own work.

Raymond Knister's poems were suggested by the farm life about his home in Canada. His work has several times appeared in the Midland, and he is a contributor to a number of other magazines.

Seven poems, original in conception and suggestive of musical cadences in their rhythm are contributed by Russel Carter, a student of music at the University.

Poems are also contributel by Florence S. Page a graduate of Millikin University, has appeared in a great many magazines, and has had several acceptances from the Midland, but she has always before written under the pseudonym of F. S. Putnam. Janet Pressley, who is represented with the poem, "White Garlands" was the winner of the prize in a national poetry contest for undergraduate students in 1922. Richard Warner Borst is the author of "Lcomotive Bells" in this issue of the Midland.

"The Midland Library" is devoted to a review of J. G. Sigmund's "Land O' Maize Folk", by the editor, and reprint of the poems contained in that volume. Mr. Sigmund is a business man living in Cedar Rapids. "Land O' Maize Folk is his third published volume of poetry.

Concert Pleases Many Music Lovers

Part of Program Is Broadcasted From WHAA

It is doubtful whether the University band could have been given a stronger welcome than that which awaited them in the natural science auditorium last evening. Great enthusiasm was shown by the audience and not only the music lovers of the University and town were pleased with the concert, but the radio fans from all corners of the state voiced their appreciation. Only the first half of the program was broadcast from station WHAA.

Doctor O. E. Van Doren, the directer, has whipped his 75 musicians into an organiation of which he and the University may be well proud. The earnestness of the players as well the skilled training of Director Van Doren was apparent throughout the entire performance. Into the band has been injected the spirit of cooperation and musicianship, these two admirable qualities shining forth in a combination of artistic ecects. The band has finish and power as was illustrated by the program, which incuded the Unfinished Symphony by Franz Schubert and the Overture II Guarny by Gomez.

One of the features of the program was the service flage, a march composed by Doctor Van Doren. During the trio of the number trombone players marched out in front of the band and biared forth the trio strain with a pleasing effect. On the repeat of this movement the cornets and trumpets marched out in line with the trombones and the brassiness and stirring way in which the final strain of the march was played proved the artistry of the players.

S. Cressy Morrison, representing the Union Carbide company, discussed that company's offer for Muscle Shoals at today's hearing.

Laws Sing Swan Song at Dinner

Seniors Entertained Informally at Red Ball Inn

The second annual dinner of the Iowa Law Students' Association of the University of Iowa was given last night at the Red Ball Inn.

Informal in character, the dinner was attended by students, faculty members and guests. In purpose the affair took the form of a farewell to the members of the senior class.

The dinner was in true keeping with the law college spirit; good nature, good fun, and a genuine spirit of friendly co-operation between students and faculty were very much in evidence.

Immediately preceding the fruit cocktails an echo of the Law Jubilee was heard in a song by Everett A. Norelius L1 of Kiron. Later, the first speaker of the evening, A. L. Doud Jr. L3 of Douds, was introduced by G. F. Cray L3 of Marshalltown, an excellent chairman even if he wasn't quite sure about one story.

In his talk Mr. Doud introduced several "maybe's". "Maybe", he said, "we will sit before the Supreme Court; and then again, maybe we won't."

Following "Some Ditties" by Fred Allebach L2 of Washington in which mention was made of a recent trip to New York, Dean Henry Craig Jones was introduced. The dean, in a brief but humorous talk gave the students his idea of "The Young Idea."

"The young idea", he said, "is you; you, the students of the college of law." He pointed out to the young lawyers the crying need of service.

"The work of the lawyer is not to gather economic salvage at the expense of the public, but to render service to it in the highest possible degree," were the words of the dean who concluded his talk with a humorous poem recounting the adventures of a group of lawyers who tried to ride to the gates of heaven on a "Communis mortis omnibus."

The next speaker, Mr. Henry . Walker, a loca lattorney, gave excellent advice, liberally sprikled with humor, to the students of law. Following Mr. Walker's tak the final swan song of the seniors was sung by Virgil M. Hancher L3 of Rolf in a dignified and charming address.

The evening's entertainment concluded with the singing of the law song by the entire assembly.

mong the guests were President and Mrs. alter A. Jessup, Mr. Justice Faville, and Miss Marion Blanche Faville.

Music and entertainment was furnished by "Doc" Lawson, and Stanton and Cooper.

J. P. Morgan Back From Europe; Mum On What Was Done

Wall Street Still When Asked Confirmation Of German Loan

Morgans Escape Injury Aboard Homeric As Bridge Loosened

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 8.—Wall Steert reports that J. P. Morgan was returning from Europe "with the $100,000,000 German reparations loan contract in his pocket," were neither affirmed nor denied by the financier when he arrived today on the Homeric.

Accompanying Mrs. Morgan home after a two months' sojourn abroad, financier discussed at length the subject with which his name had been prominently linked, since the Dawes committee recommended an allied loan of $200,000,000 as the foundation of its reparation plan.

He declined to corroborate the Wall Street report point blank. He would not discuss the possibility of raising the $75,000,000 share of the loan the Dawes committee allotted to England.

"If I had the American $100,000,000 contract in my pocket as they say, I could not possibly discuss its contents at this time, before I have had the opportunity to confer with my associates," he said.

The Morgans narrowly escaped injury this morning as the Homeric hove-to at quarantine to take aboard a pilot. They were standing near the rail when a gangway bridge weighing several hundred pounds was loosened from its mooring by the sudden tossing of the vessel, and crashed at their feet.

Mr. Morgan leaped clear, pulling his wife to safety with him.

Icebound Is Last Player's Product

Play Will Be Coached By Vance M. Morton

For the hot evenings in May the University Theatre has arranged as the final production of the year the cold-sounding drama of Icebound—Owen Davis' drama of northern Maine which carried off the Pulitzer prize for the greatest American play of 1923. The cast of twelve has been in constant rehearsal under the direction of Vance M .Morton and under the work and ability brought to these typically character parts, the play is shaping into the finished production—to be seen in the University Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday nights, May 15 and 16.

What constitutes a typically American prize play? There must be American settings such as are found only in America; there must be American people living, enjoying and suffering, just as our neighbors and we do; these must be true to life situations. All these are in good measure in Icebound but above all this is the power of a clever humorous and at the same time heavily emotional drama.

There is a will and a family waiting like crow buzzards for that will and the money it means to them. There is a human, true to life, little boy. Love, hate, greed, sorrow and laughter vie with each other for first place and the sum total of it all is Icebound.

The cast for the production is:

Henry Jordan—Arthur Shepherd A3 of Ottumwa; Emma, his wife—Doris Rae A3 of Caldwell, Idaho; Nettie, his daughter—Marion Ansel A3 of Iowa City; Ella, his sister—Josephine Steele A4 of Sioux City; Sadie Fellowes—Edith Rule A4 of Mason City; Arin, her son—Calvin Kay of Iowa City; Hannah—Wanda Evans A4 of New Sharon; Jane Crosby — Madge May A3 of Corwith; Doctor Curtis—John Phillips A2 of Sioux City; Ben Jordan—Peter Janse A3 of Atlantic; Judge Bradford—Harry Jones Cm4 of Burlington, and Jim Jay — Dan Holcomb Cm4 of Iowa City.

Mother's Day

SUNDAY, MAY 11th

There's no one like Mother. It's not very often that we really sit down and think about how true that is. All the nice things Mother does for us are more or less taken for granted. When things hurt she comforts us, when things go wrong she is the one who understands. And in return how little we do for her. That is the reason that one day in the year is set aside for Mother's Day. On this day she will be first in our thoughts. In the store we have a special display of Mother's gifts, little things that will mean a great deal to her. And it is up to us to make our Mother's Day the happiest day in the year for her.

Wisconsin Tennis Meet Hard Fight For Iowa Netmen

Iowa Squad Has Final Hard Workout for Match

Yesterday witnessed the final strenuous workout for the Iowa tennis team before the Wisconsin match Saturday afternoon.

The practice yesterday concluded a week of intensive drill, Coach Van der Zee having driven the varsity men at top speed since Monday. The match Saturday will bring together two undefeated teams. The strength of the badger aggregation is not known, although advices from the capital city indicate that they will be represented by another powerful quartet. All of the practice meets have been won with ease, the strong Marquette team being numbered among the cardinal victims. Although the visitors will be without the services of Treadwell and Agneson, the crack doubles combination which made such an impressive showing for the northerners last year, their graduation has not materially weakened the team.

Captain Art Moulding, a veteran of three years is the badger ace, and teamed with Sah, the Japanese flash, form a dangerous doubles team. Moulding has won all of his matches with ease this year, and is loked upon as a contender for the conference championship. Sah is reported almost as good as the badger leader, and has yet to meet defeat. Stebbins, Crane, Manierre and Gronert will be carried on this trip, and may all see service. With the exception of Moulding, the other members of the team are playing their first year of collegiate tennis, but have all had tournament experience.

Couch Van der Zee will send captain Ted Swenson against the cardinal leader in the singles, and a real battle is assured. Swenson has been undefeated to date, and has lost only one match in two years, in dual competition, being defeated by Captain Wilson of Chicago last year. John Dorsey will be pitted against the Japanese entry and may be expected to put up a struggle to keep his slate clean. Lutz and McLaughlin, playing number three and four respectively will make the going rough for their opponents, as both have been showing excellent form in their matches. Swenson and Dorsey will team together in the doubles, and will give the Wisconsin number one pair a strenuous argument. Swenson is the present state doubles champion and Dorsey is the Clinton city title holder. This pair defeated the best that Minnesota could offer, allowing Coach Sanders men only two games in two sets. The entire Iowa team will be playing to keep their slate clean, none of the men having been defeated in conference competition.

Bleachers are being erected to take care of a capacity crowd, the match being the only athletic event of the day in Iowa City. Coach Van der Zee will announce the Hawk line-up tomorrow.

Alice Roose Wins the Individual Honors

Breaking seven records, and bettering the national collegiate record in two of the events, women of the University demonstrated their prowess in athletics yesterday afternoon on Iowa Field.

Blanche Bailey lowered the university record in the low hurdles from :16.4 to :15.9; this is better than the national collegiate record. Alice Gerlits took the running broad jump in with a leap of 13 feet, 6 inches; the old record was :13.4. Gladys Brooker won the basketball throw with a heave of 77 feet, 6 inches.

Wills is favored to knock out Madden and Johnson has been installed a favorite over Romero.

Everingham Gets High Point Honors With Three Firsts

The Iowa freshman track team was defeated in its first outdoor telegraphic meet of the year by the Illinois' preps 44 to 87, in a meet finished yesterday. ON THE GOLDEN KEY

THE SCORE of young men and women who have just been elected to the academic distinction known as Phi Beta Kappa furnish additional proof of the fact that in the large institution there is plenty of room for all sorts of interests and activities. The members of this group have seen fit to devote their major energies to the academic rather than to the social, literary, or athletic possibilities of the campus. This is no proof that they could not have achieved distinction in other lines, and indeed some of them have done this in addition. The recognition they have received does not mark them as narrow or fossilized. To attain high standards in scholastic lines is no more a proof of narrowness than to devote one's energy to any other single enterprise. They are as fully entitled to the congratulations of their fellows as those who acquire notoriety on the athletic field.

IN DEFFENSE OF CYNICISM

FOR many years the cynic has been regarded with an attitude of caution, if not of downright suspicion. He is considered by many as a dangerous person to be about. Oscar Wilde, probably one of England's greatest authors, once defined the cynic as "One who knows the price of everything but the value of nothing". The cynic has always been considered one who is likely to be a sophist, a trifler with emotions, an insincere, ungenuine creature.

If the doctrine of cynicism, of pessimism, and of skepticism has been destructive and unfavorable for the progress of the human race, it has at least acted as a ballast to keep the balloon of optimism from rising too high and two rapidly. If Mr. Browning and his coterie who believe that "God's in his heaven; all's right with the world" have become too jubilant over the great strides of progress now being taken, Mr. Schopenhauer and his followers have punctured their dreams with a touch of doubt, of skepticism, and of questioning.

It is not a difficult task to spot the cynic. He is acknowledged to be an extremist. If, upon hearing his caustic comments, his destructive statements, and his "wet rag" philosophy, one can consume his theories with liberal quantities of salt, there can be no harm in cynicism. Cynicism has a real office in the world; it keeps the feet of dreamers, the optimists, and the philosophers on solid earth.

FORD'S CHANCES LESSEN

(New York Evening Post)

FOUR YEARS ago Muscle Shoals was a national "white elephant." Nobody seemed to want it. The Tennessee River ran merrily by the two incomplete dams begun during the war. The great nitrate fixation plants were deserted. The machinery was painted and slushed with grease. There was no life or stir at the "Shoals."

Today it is the most sought-after proposition in America. The bidding begun by Henry Ford now includes powerful syndicates.

Ford offered $5,000,000 for existing plants, sites and equipment that have cost about $100,000,000. He specified the Government must complete and maintain two dams. Completion of these will cost about $42,000,000. He will make 40,000 tons of nitrate yearly, holding the plants in readiness to turn back to the Government in case of war. He wishes to be free to dispose of water power not used in nitrate fixation as he thinks best. In his name a great industrial city has been promised the Tennessee Valley.

He stipulates a lease of 100 years, refusing to be bound by the Federal Water Power Act limiting leases to fifty years. This must be renewable at the lessee's option. During the period of the lease he is to pay $215,400,000.

Other bidders are bettering these terms in almost every way. The amended bid of the Union Carbide concern is an instance. It asks a fifty-year lease, which is within the law governing such leases. For this period it offers a minimum of $120,000,000. Its nitrate output offer is as great as that of Ford. The profit asked on this is under that suggested by the Detroit man. An industrial city is to be created and the plans will be at the service of the Government within five days in the event of war. Other concerns have made extremely favorable bids.

In the face of these offers the way of the "give it to Ford" group in Congress grows hard. The country as well as these great syndicates understands the nation has a mighty asset in Muscle Shoals, the key position to a future empire of industrial power. With the passing of every day the chances lessen for Ford to secure it for a song.

MAIL BAG AND AIRPLANE

(New York Sun)

WITH JULY 1 the Post Office Department will reduce the time of its fastest San Francisco mails by 60 per cent. An air mail service, completing its average trip from coast to coast in 33 hours and 25 minutes, will take the the place of the swiftest express train delivery of 87 hours. The locomotive, a thundering miracle of smoke and steel to the pioneers who had watched empty horizons for pony express riders, will become second choice, where speed is demanded, to an agency that will send letters almost as fast as telegrams.

The record of the air mail has been astonishing as a demonstration in practical airplane service, but the new service promises to be the greatest forward step in its history. It will be possible because of the introduction of regular night flying, supplemented with sensible postal arrangements.

Night flying was of course regularly carried on during the war for military purposes, and its introduction into civilian aviation only waited upon a sufficient demand. But the Post Office has made it practically as safe as day flying by a system of acetylene lights along the route (one every three miles) and efficient searchlights for landing at regular and emergency fields.

The appearance once more of the air mail stamps in three denominations (8, 16 and 24 cents) will also facilitate an everyday use of the mail airplane. These issues are the first specials since July, 1919. With them will come air mail boxes. The denominations will be especially intended for use in three zones. The eight sent stamp will insure delivery in the New York-Chicago zone, the 16 cent stamp in the Chicago-Cheyenne, and the 24 cent stamp in the Cheyenne-San Francisco zone. Air mail stamps will be honored on trains as well as airplanes, so that a letter sent from New York to Minneapolis can go to Chicago by air and on from Chicago to its destination by land.

All this marks a growing proficiency in the airplane as a mail carrier. The new service is preceeding on sound lines when it seeks the maximum of efficiency by introducing night flying, and the soundest possible economic basis by charging for its special risks and advantages.

Will Mr. Freud or Mr. Brill please step forward and explain
Why the Cultural Art of Weaving should seem to culminate in a fluffy white net-creation,
Why the ovary of Marchantia should seem a particularly soft brown eye that has never known

. . . . . the old girl has given me the razzberry;
But I still have the shimmer of the taut stocking,
the perfume of the fluffy white net-creation,

"LIBERTY" is the suggestive title chosen by the committee of award for the new "$25,000 for a name" magazine, with which, rumor has it, the Chicago Tribune is somewhat connected.

* * * * *

IN THE first issue appears an editorial designed, apparently, to appeal to the chauvinistic propensities of such persons as would buy the thing. Therein we read, "It (liberty) was first made to mean something in America."

* * * * *

LIBERTY! What a word to conjure with. It has been continually on the tongues of our politicians since pre-revolutionary days. The more it is used the more distorted its original meaning becomes.

* * * * *

SPEAKING in terms of centuries, rather than years, we may hope that the concept of liberty has not been born at the expense of the feudal system merely to become the instrument of capitalism.

* * * * *

PERHAPS the idea of liberty was not born of feudalism. Perhaps it was born in Rome, perhaps in Greece. We might follow it back into the Garden of Eden, or find traces of it in a sporadic anthill.

* * * * *

BUT CERTAINLY it is not safe, with regard for truth, to credit its inception to our colonial ancestors, however effective this may be in selling magazines possessing little or no genuine merit.

* * * * *

IF EVER the term "liberty" was misapplied, it is in its connection with this magazine. There is no "liberty" here—only an overwhelming quantity of obsessions, inhibitions, misconceptions, and, we may add, wearisome short stories and intolerable "inspirational" articles.

Journalism Will Go On "As Ever" In Summer Work

Needs of High School Teacher Are Considered

Practice Will Rule Over Theory in Training

All courses in journalism, which includes editing, feature writing, editorial writing, printing and engraving as well as several subjects of particular interest to students majoring in English, will continue throughout the summer session as usual, and will be open to any student who has the necessary prerequisites, whether or not he is specializing in journalism.

In laying out the journalistic courses of the summer session, particular attention is given to the needs not only of prospective journalists but to those of high school teachers of English, who wish to fit themselves to supervise high school papers.

The purpose of both the year and summer courses in journalism at the University of Iowa is to afford technical training not only by instruction in theory, but by actual daily practice on a newspaper. Hence the student journalists are required to put theory into actual practice by work on "The Daily Iowan", the University newspaper.

"The Daily Iowan," an eight-page eight-column paper, is recognized as one of the foremost college papers in the United Stafes. It is one of three college papers published fifty-two weeks in the year, and is handled efficiently. Students of journalism are given an opportunity to do whatever work on the Iowan they are interested in or fitted for, whether it is reporting, editing, copy reading, editorial writing.

Study in journalism may be pursued as a part of the special course in journalism leading to the degree of bachelor of arts and a certificate of the college of education. Graduates who have been members of the Iowan staff are filling responsible positions in the world of journalism. Some operate newspapers of their own; one or two are teaching journalism in universities; several are engaged in publicity work for insurance companies and the like; many of the young women are editors or assistant editors on publications; some are managing editors, along with any number of copy readers, reporters, writers of feature articles, and an occasional editorial writer.

Several graudates of the past few years are now practicing their profession in New York City: one man conducts a humorous column for a big paper; short story writing has claimed at least one former Iowa man; two or three are doing exceptionally well in advertising; one is writing book reviews in New York; another is doing the same sort of thing in Chicago.

Speech Booklet Is Recent Publication

New Work by Miss S. Barrows To Be Textbook

"A Guide to Iowa's Four Hundred" might easily be the title of a new booklet compiled by Miss Sarah T. Barrows of the department of speech in the University of Iowa. However, the new work bears the simple title, "Pronunciation Book" and is, as stated on the cover, "A Guide to the Pronunciation of Four Hundred Words Compiled for the Use of Students in the Department of Speech in the State University of Iowa."

The purpose of the book, which is now on sale at bookstores in the city, and which will be in the future a required textbook for classes in the department of speech, is to clear up the apparent mystery surrounding good pronunciation.

Miss Barrows, the author, conceived the idea for the work after she and her associates had been literally bombarded by students in quest of the correct pronunciation of certain words.

The words chosen for the new textbook are not elaborate; they are simple, everyday words that have a tendency to be mispronounced. Practically all of them were submitted by students; students who are beginning to realize that faulty pronunciation is hardly compatible with higher education.

The general make up of the book is based upon classification of consonants, vowels, fricatives, misplaced stress, and omitted syllables. The words under discussion are arranged in three columns. The first column contains the word as spelled, the second column contains the word as it should be pronounced, and the third column shows the word as it is used in faulty pronunciation. The correct and the faulty pronunciations are indicated by means of the phonetic alphabet.

Eating At Frats Fails To Assuage Hunger, Except With Expert's Fork

There is no use going to a fraternity house to eat unless you have been bred and born in one—that is if you are really hungry. They work on the old plan of "God helps him who helps himself, and the Devil take the hindmost" or something to that effect.

When you get an invitation to come up to lunch you think you have automaticaly saved the price of a meal. You confidently approach the trysting place at Whet's corner, searching eagerly for the gentleman who has promised to meet you there. As the appointed hour wanders slowly into the dim and forgotten past, your appetite increases in leaps and bounds, and by the time he does come you are nearly reduced to chewing the leather corners off your notebook.

The belated fellow greets you with the words, "Com'on guy, we're late as Hell!", and rushes off with your carcass in tow. As the front door of his particular den is reached, the sound of the last few spoonfuls of soup going down thirty throats in unison smites your ear like the "Lay of the Last Minstrel."

You reflect, however, that soup is not important anyway, and the salad is still standing intact except for the olives, which someone has removed. Sitting down, on invitation, you inaugurate an offensive movement against the salad with poised fork, but just before the first mouthful reaches the upper extremity of your digestive tract, your host says, "Mr. Blahh, I want you to meet Mr. Chameham, and Mr. Chowchow." After exchanging a few silly remarks relative to the weather, you return to your salad just as a hand reaches over your shoulder and snatches it away.

Even then a staunch-hearted person does not entirely lose heart but relies on the hope that their will be a plenty of roast beef and mashed potatoes. It would yet be possible to make a meal if it was not for the uninitiated visitor's lack of speed. He hardly gets started before the president of the house rings his bell and the next round begins.

After recovering from this last disappointment of having a savory dish jerked from under your very nose, the only thing left is to make the best of the canned peach and the few cookies which garnish it. Sometimes the sudden scraping of chairs which marks the close of the repast catches you in the midst of eating even such a simple thing as desert, and it is necessary to put the cookies or starve before you can get down to the Academy for a real meal.

Canadian Liner Breaks Ice Jam At Lakes' Head

Duluth, Minn., May 8.—(AP)—The steamer Huronic, a Canadian passenger liner with 65 persons, including passengers and crew aboard, tonight broke the ice jam at the head of The Lakes which had held her fast since Monday night, and steamed into port.

The Huronic berthed at 8 o'clock. Abatement of the northwest gale released the pressure of the ice jam and three tugs tonight were trying to assist the approximately 20 frighters scattered along the six-mile front of the blockade. One freighter, the J. Block, (Light), followed the Huronic into the harbor. Captain A. M. Wright of the Huronic, said it was the first time he had been ice-bound in the 20 years he has been skipping on the Great Lakes.

Kentucky Derby Favorite Pulled Lame in Workout

NEW YORK, May 8—(AP)—The ranks of three year old thoroughbreds preparing for the annual spring classics sustained another hard blow today, when St. James George D. Widener's colt, pulled lame after a workout and was withdrawn from the Preakness and Kentucky derby, two $50,000 races in which he was among the favorites.

St. James went wrong after working out a mile and an eighth at Jamaica Track. The accident to the Widener colt came on top of a series of setbacks within the past few days to Derby and Preakness eligibles on tracks in the East and Kentucky. Sarazen, noted Vanderbilt gelding, which also was highly regarded for the Derby, was withdrawn after being defeated by the Rancocas Stables' Bracadale.

The loss of St. James and Sarazen leaves Wise Counsellor, Kentucky crack, as the outstanding favorite for the Kentucky derby.

Osborne will meet Russell Smith, also a former Illinois jumper. Osborne has exceeded the world's indoor record in exhibition jumps.

His style of jumping has not been questioned in the United States, Coach Harry Gill of Illinois who said Osborne had competed unquestioned in the Western Conference and the Pennsylvania games. Gill recalled that Beeson's world record of six feet, seven 5-'6 inches, was made in the same form, called the Western style.

We are a great believer in photoplays for children—BUT THE RIGHT SORT OF PICTURES should be selected by the parents, with the same care that parents select the books the youngsters read. It would be impossible for the Public Library to have only children's books. It is the same in theatricals. Our selection of entertainment must be of the variety type. We have always advised you when we HAD a picture suitable for children and we believe it is only fair to advise you when the case is reversed. "A WOMAN OF PARIS" is a story for THE ADULT MIND ONLY, so we therefore request the parents not to bring or send their children to see this picture.

Henry Lodge Gives Senate His New World Court Plan

Would Reconvene The Hague Conference At Coolidge's Call

White House Quiet When Changes Are Read

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge today laid before the senate and the country a ew world court plan of his own.

It provides for the reconvening of The Hague conference at the call of President Coolidge and creation by it of a permanent court to which the nations could submit their disputes for final adjudication.

The resolution of the foreign relations committee chairman made no direct mention of the international court, already set up, under the auspices of the league of nations, and commended to the senate by Presidents Harding and Coolidge

Instead it proposed to build a tribunal about the framework reared at The Hague years ago, with the judges selected much after the manner of these in the court sponsored by the league, except that the league itself would have "no" part in the procedure while the United States would act with Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan throughh a "special committee", having a veto power over elections to the court.

The immediate reaction of the White House and state department to the plan of the republican senate leader was one of absolute silence.

On the contrary, there was a plain indication that Mr. Coolidge remained steadfast in his recently ing court of international justice, as the most practical tribunal yet devised, and that Mr. Hughes had not lost hope that despite the attitude of Senator Lodge, the foreign relations committee might report out the adherence plan originally drawn up by the administration of President Harding.

Mr. Lodge himself made no explanation when he sent the resolution to the desk of the senate secretary. He would not indicate what plans he might have for bringing the proposal up for action.

After prescribing all the ins and outs of the organization and procedure of the court, the Lodge resolution carries its own reservations —designed like the Lodge reservations to the leagueof nations to preserve the Monroe Doctrine, to prevent any foreign trespass on American domestic questions including immigration, and to preserve the traditions and independence of the nation.

It would be provided, however, that once an international question has been submitted under the express agreement of the nations affected, the decision would be final and subject to review and iterpretation only by the court itself.

NEW YORK, May 8—(AP)—Reactionary price movements predominated in today's dull and uninteresting stock market, the quietest full day session this year.

A wave of short selling at the opening undoubtedly was based on the senate's insertion in the tax bill of a graduated levy on undistributed corporate earnings.

Oils proved vulnerable to selling pressure on publication of the weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute showing another increase in crude production, for the week ended May 3.

Rails showed up relatively well, Lackawanna standing out with a net gain of 2 3-4 at 119 1-4 while gains of approximately a point or so, were recorded by Chicago & Northwestern.

American-Can and Baldwin showed losses of about a point each at 102 3-4 and 112 respectively; Studebaker dropped 1-2 to 85, 3-4 and U. S. Steel closed 3-8 lower at 98 1-8.

Call money again ruled unchanged at 3 1-2 per cent.
