Steck's Contest For Seat Will Be Handled Through Committee: Briggs

Must Petition Senate For Investigation Of Claims

Newberry Case Only Precedent of Same Kind

Although Smith W. Brookhart has received official credentials as a United States senator, political science authorities here think it probable that his right to a seat will be contested by Dan Steck, his democratic opponent. Such a contest would not be decided by the present congress, so if no extra session of the sixty-ninth congress is called, the matter will not come up for consideration before December 1925.

According to study of the matter made by John Ely Briggs of the political science department, there is no regular procedure for conducting a contested election case in the United States, by law. The only precedent for contested election in the senate is the notorious Ford-Newberry case. Judging by that contest it would seem that Steck would petition the senate for consideration of his case. The senate may or may not pay attention to his petition as it pleases.

No Action Certain

The democrats in the senate can insure the introduction of the resolution to investigate the election of Brookhart, but they cannot guarantee its adoption. Even though an investigation is made there is no assurance that the contest would be decided in an nonpartisan manner.

Since senators have been popularly elected there has been only one contest. In 1919 Henry Ford petitioned the United States senate, before Newberry took his seat, and again on the day following the seating of Newberry, declaring that Newberry was not entitled to membership in the senate. A resolution was adopted by the senate authorizing the committee on privileges and elections to investigate the case, and giving them full power to make a recount of the votes and to take testimony. This was done by a sub-committee and after extensive investigation Newberry was declared to be entitled to retain his seat.

No Regular Procedure

Bills have been introduced in recent congresses to provide a regular procedure in senatorial election contests, following the plan provided by law in contest for membership in the house of representatives, but none have been adopted. Meanwhile, the procedure will be any which may be established by a simple resolution of the senate, as occasion demands, or such as the senate may adopt as a part of its standing rules.

Army Meets Navy On Gridiron Today

Secret Workout Winds Up Preparation Of Army

(By the Associated Press)

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 26—A secret workout wound up Army's preparations for the Navy game today. The field was muddy and the going heavy, but the coaches drilled the men for over an hour, devoting much time to the Army's offensive, during which there was a long kicking scrimmage and a sharp signal drill.

No selection of the lineup which will face the Middies has as yet been given out. The departure of thirty-eight players, coaches, and trainers is set for tomorrow.

Admiral Eberle Advises Modernization of Warships

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Re-appropriation of the funds made available by the 67th congress for elevating the main batteries of the older battleships of the United States fleet was urgently recommended today to Secretary R. E. Eberle, chief of naval operations in his annual report to Secretary Wilbur. The six older battleships also should be thoroughly modernized he said, "if reliance upon them as ships of the first line of battle is to continue". Plans for the work have been prepared, the report added, against the hoped-for authority from congress to proceed.

Starving Journalists Will Eat for Once; No Paper

Thanksgiving turkey and mince pie may have a disastrous effect on the members of the Daily Iowan staff, who intend to make a big day of it. The effect of the day's feasting and the holiday makes The Iowan hesitate to issue the Iowan the morning after.

Hence, there will be no edition of the Daily Iowan tomorrow morning, as is customary after all vacations.

Judges Request Congress to Move Prohibition Unit

Want It Changed From Treasury to Justice Department

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Bodily transfer of the prohibition unit from the treasury department to the department of justice is among the recommendations adopted by the judicial conference of judges, it became known today when Chief Justice Taft, as chairman of the conference, addressed a letter to Attorney General Stone, transmitting a request that he embody the proposal in his annual report to congress.

The senior circuit judges, familiar with court conditions and reflecting the opinion of federal district judges take the position that the transfer should be made at once. Basing their recommendation upon experience with prosecutions arising under the prohibition law, the judges with the chief justice concurring, declare that such a transfer would make much for effectiveness in enforcing the law.

In the statement which they ask to have transmitted to congress, the judges asserted that all the appropriations for such enforcement have been expended under the direction of the attorney general.

In that way, they said, "the attempted prosecution of trivial and futile and unimportant cases which now crowd the dockets through the ill-advised zeal and practical ignorance of prohibition agents can be avoided, and only those cases taken up and pressed which will really deter the principal offenders and in the preparation of which district attorneys will have a personal responsibility."

Iowa Enters New Debating League

Tries New Plan With Missouri and Kansas

Announcement of the formation of a new triangle debating league made up of the Universities of Kansas, Missouri, and Iowa, was made last night by Harry T. Wood, University debate coach. Mr. Wood said that a new style of debating will be inaugurated, and that the first debate will be held Dec. 12.

The subject to be debated at the first meeting is "Is Capital Punishment in Accord with Public Policy?" The University will send one affirmative and one negative speaker to Missouri, and Kansas will send a similar team here. The debate will be judged by the audience, which will be asked to indicate its opinion of the subject by ballot before the debate and then again after.

In discussing the new league Mr. Wood mentioned that "This style of debating is more or less of an experiment at the University. Two sections of Speech, 107 and Argumentation and Debate, will work on this question and the Iowa team will be chosen from these two sections. An Iowa team will debate at Missouri and Kansas will debate here the same evening.

Libraries and Study Halls Closed Today; Librarians Get Rest

"Since Thanksgiving is one of the legal holidays on which all university exercises are suspended, all libraries will be closed the entire day," said John B. Kaiser, head librarian, in commenting on this matter last night.

This includes the general library in the natural science building, the reserve library and the study hall in the old chemistry building., and all the departmental libraries. It has not been decided whether the libraries will remain open during the Christmas holidays.

Wassam Swoops Down on WHAA With 24-Page MS.; Forced to Slacken Delivery

"Wembley Fair" Subject of Talk on Air Yesterday

Prof. Clarence W. Wassam set himself to the task of speaking slowly yesterday when WHAA radiocast his talk, "Wembley Fair". He admits that speaking slowly is exceedingly unnatural to him.

"I never realized before that I really talk so rapidly," he confessed, "but when I wrote out the lecture that would ordinarily take me only ten to fifteen minutes to deliver at my class room rate of speaking, I found that I had twenty-four typewritten pages. This would take me at least an hour to read my talk over the radio slowly enough for my listeners to understand me, so I concluded that I must talk at a rapid rate of speed ordinarily."

Professor Wassam attended the British Empire Exhibition which opened to the public April 23, 1924, at Wembley, one of the many suburbs of London.

"A Family Party"

"The fundamental purpose of this "family party" was to stimulate trade, to strengthen the bonds that bind the mother country to her sister states and daughter nations, to bring all into closer touch, one with the other, to enable all who owe allegiance to the British flag to meet on common ground, and to learn to know each other," stated Professor Wassam. "To an American, the entire exhibition, both from the standpoint of education and of the world's commerce, was most interesting."

Professor Wassam detailed the exhibition grounds and buildings. Perhaps the most imposing structure of the entire group is the Empire stadium, which covers more than ten acres. Here more than 100,000 people can find an ample place in which to view the great spectacles that help to make the Wembley Exhibition memorable.

Palace of Industries

The two main buildings were the Palace of Industries and the Palace of Engineering. Then there were the individual buildings where each country exhibited its own resources and interests. Among that great number was Canada with her six acres of exhibits; India, so thoroughly oriental; South Africa, reminding the visitor of her pre-eminence in gold and diamonds; Burma with her shrine, a marble Buddha, and her famous teak carvings; the Gold Coast building with its style of one of the old castles erected along the coast 500 years ago; and many others

Emphasizes Colonies

"The fair was special to the midwest due to the fact that the United Kingdom is one of our most important customers, and the fair emphasized the possibility of the United Kingdom purchasing its raw materials from its colonies instead of from the United States.

"According to the latest report from Washington, the United Kingdom purchased more meat and meat products from the United States than from any other country."

Every part of the empire was invited to this family party, and every part of the empire was represented.

Registrar Moves To New Building

Education Offices to Locate on Second Floor

The offices of Secretary Bates and the registrar were the first to take possession of their new space in the Recitation building, the moving process having gone on for the past several days. Secretary Bates and H. C. Dorcas, registrar, are now installed in their permanent offices in the new building, whose completion makes the last addition to the "five-spot" campus.

The offices of the department of education occupies spacious quarters on the second floor near to the education library. The stacks and shelves of the room which will house the education library are now in position awaiting the occupancy of the books.

The Recitation building will principally house classes of the college of commerce. Occupancy of rooms will take place as soon as they are finished.

The air of newness and expectancy which pervades the new Recitation building before its official opening to classes makes the structure a veritable stranger among the campus buildings. The desks, still gleaming in their original lustre, need only a few stray sets of sorority Greek letters to give them the proper collegiate atmosphere.

1815 School Kids On Pilgrimage to Tomb of Lincoln

SHENANDOAH, Nov. 26—(AP)—Additional reservations made today brought the total number of "pilgrims" who tomorrow will leave here for a trip to the tomb of Abraham Lincoln at Springfield, Illinois, to 1815.

Special instructions in incidents of the martyred president's life and the witnessing of a Lincoln motion picture has added local color to the trip to be taken by the Iowa and Missouri school children. School authorities of Springfield, writing here to arrange for the reception of the children in the Illinois city, have declared that the trip will be "the greatest pilgrimage to Lincoln's tomb in history."

In the afternoon, according to present plans, the "trek" to the Lincoln tomb will be made and a wreath will be placed upon the sarcophagus. The children will visit the Lincoln home and the state capitol before boarding the trains at six o'clock for the return journey.

Parr, Inventor, Talks Saturday

Improves Calorimeter; Author of Books On Coal

Professor S. W. Parr, of the University of Ill., who has improved the calorimeter as an instrument for measuring heat values of fuels and gases will lecture Saturday evening at 7:30 p. m. in the chemistry auditorium. The subject of the lecture will be announced later.

The lecture is given under the auspices of the student chemistry club and the students branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Professor Parr, who is one of the nominees for president of the American Chemical society, has written many books and articles on the analysis of properties and testing of coal. He has also developed acid resisting alloys.

ANNAPOLIS ENTHUSIASM

ANNAPOLIS, Md. Nov. 26 (AP)—Football enthusiasm is running high in Annapolis as the squad of midshipmen athletes put in their final days of practice for the annual clash with the West Point cadets in the Baltomore stadium next Saturday.

Today the Middies were put through another lengthy drill, every element of play coming in for a share of attention forward passing offensive as well as defensive being specialized.

Leader in Fight to End Race Hatreds

Edwin P. Morrow, former governor of Kentucky, is general chairman of the board of directors of the "Watchmen of the Republic," a new organization formed "to promote understanding and regard for the Constitution, laws and peoples, and to eradicate class, race and religious prejudice.

Longworth Gets Program Ready for First Four Days

G. O. P. Floor Leader Outlines Plans for House Session

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—A tentative legislative program by the house for four days of the approaching short session of congress was outlined today by Representative Longworth, Ohio, the republican floor leader.

He said the house, after convening next Monday, probably would authorize the speaker to appoint a committee to serve with a similar senate committee to notify the president that congress was ready to transact business and then adjourn out of respect to members who have died since the last session.

Tuesday, the house expects to receive the annual message from the president, which this year is to be read to both houses separately unless the executive alters his decision, and also any other messages that may be sent from the White House.

Wednesday, he said, will be set aside for the consideration of bills on the calendar. The naval committee, he added, plans to bring up a measure providing for numerous changes in the administration of the navy.

The interior appropriation bill, he said, is scheduled to be taken up Thursday.

Mr. Longworth said in reply to a question that he did not know of any concerted effort by members to attempt at this session to revise the section of the law dealing with the publicity of income tax returns. He pointed out that this question was already before the courts and thought it probable that those interested in the matter might put off action pending a judicial decision on the subject.

SIR GILBERT PARKER HURT

AIKEN, S. C., Nov. 26: (AP)—Sir Gilbert Parker of London, the novelist, suffered severe injuries here late today when he was struck and knocked to the ground by an automobile on one of the principal business streets of the city.

"University Fighting With Team Greater Thrill Than Yale Touchdown"--Parkin

Cleveland Game Will Mark Hancock's Last Battle

Not even the experience of plunging over the Yale goal line for a lone touchdown gave captain "Lee" Parkin the "kick" he got of the realization that the entire University was backing his team, as he himself stated in an interview yesterday.

"The biggest thing I have had from football has been the feeling that the entire University has been behind the tam, and has been fighting with them," he observed.

Parkin modestly refused to claim any glory himself, but attributed the success of his playing to "the line that was fighting all the time and a backfield that was running my interference." He added that the fact that he, as captain, had been able to lead the team through a season that satisfied the University and the state gave him the most satisfaction.

Football Career Ended

Commenting on the fact that his University football career was ended Parkin said, "I haven't had time to think about my football career being over. Right now I feel a relief from the strain of the season, but I am finding it hard to know what to do with all my time. When the team starts in next year I'll be sorry I'm through."

Hancock Not Through

John Hancock, who will play with the all western team at Cleveland, Ohio, on December 6, expressed much the same opinion.

"I'm not through with football, but I'm mighty sorry that I've played my last game for the University of Iowa," he stated, "I was thinking about that last night and the fact that I'm through surely gave me a strange sensation. I only wish I had another year."

Teeters Testifies In Murder Trial

Is Witness in Flory Case; Analyzed Stomach

Dean Wilbur J. Teeters, of the colege of pharmacy was called to the Flory trial last week in Montezuma, Iowa to testify as to the result of an analysis of the stomach which revealed that bichloride of mercury was present. The place of purchase of this poison was traced to Iowa City.

Dean Teeters will leave again this week to testify on the Hough case which is to be tried at Bedford, Iowa.

The Flory case dates back two years ago to South English, Iowa, where Flory's wife had died and was buried. A month had elapsed before Flory was suspected of having been the cause of her death. He was then accused of murder and found guilty by the court in Sigourney, Iowa, and given a sentence of life imprisonment.

This case was later referred to the Supreme Court where Flory was given a new trial on the basis that the judge in the trial had refused to allow the defense to submit the evidence—the death certificate signed by the physician in charge.

Flory is now being tried by a jury in Montezuma, Iowa, and the final sentence will probably be decided this week.

Iowa Code Error Permits Citizens To Have Liquor

DES MOINES, Nov. 26: (AP)—Through a discrepancy in the new Iowa code, a section pertaining to the possession of intoxicating liquors has been ommitted and citizens of this state may have all the intoxicating liquors they wish as far as the law of the state is concerned.

No one seems to know how the section was left out, Mr. Gibson said. The omission shifts the burden of proof in liquor law violations from the defendant to the prosecution in all cases except where search warrants have been obtained prior to the seizing of the liquor. Otherwise the new liquor law is more effective than any previous ones, Gibson said.

Pussyfooters Learn New Tricks for Penn Crowds

Philadelphia, Nov. 26.

A FUTURISTIC version of the Penn-Cornell gridiron epic tomorrow, so far as sounds were concerned, was held in the prohibition offices today when troops of dry agents learned cheers and yells of rival universities in order to qualify themselves as students in the grandstand crowds. They will be on the watch for unwary traffickers in illicit liquid refreshment.

No Women Picked For Jury to Try Carl Hough Case

Prosecution Claims a Great Amount of Evidence

(By the Associated Press)

BEDFORD, Ia., Nov. 26—The jury which is to decide the fate of Carl Hough, 22, on trial on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Lillian McKenney, 19 years old, Herrick, S. D., girl, was completed this afternoon. No women were accepted.

Hough and Miss McKinney eloped from Herrick on August 9, last, and the body of the girl was found five days later under a highway bridge near here.

The defendant was in court today with his father and mother and a brother. The McKenney family was also present but Mrs. McKenney seemed very nervous and soon left the court room.

In his openinig statement, County Attorney Locke declared that the prosecution would show by a strong line of circumstantial evidence that Hough killed Miss McKenney near the Will Fitch farm, about two miles south of here, that he then hauled the body twelve miles and threw it under the bridge west of Bedford. The state would offer testimony to show, the prosecutor said, that bits of a necklace similar to that worn by the girl, were found under the brush near the farm near where Hough's car was seen. Other witnesses would testify, he said, that at one place where the car had been parked, there were two sets of footprints, those of a man and a woman, and at another place only the footprints of a man.

The defense did not offer any statement.

New Yorker Makes Wife's Negro Blood Annulment Excuse

(By the Associated Press)

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Nov. 26: (AP)—Leonard Kip Rhinelander, scion of one of New York's oldest families, who married Miss Alice Jones of New Rochelle on October 14, today filed suit in the Westchester county supreme court to annul the marriage. Rhinelander alleged that his wife concealed from him the fact that she had negro blood in her veins.

The complaint declares that "consent of plaintiff of Rhinelander to the marriage was obtained by fraud and that the defendant, formerly Miss Jones, told Rhinelander "she was white and had no colored blood." Rhinelander, the complaint states, entered into marriage on the basis of such representations, which he has since discovered to be wholly untrue.

CHILEAN PUG BEATEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 26: (AP)—Sid Terris, New York lightweight, outpointed Louis Vicenti of Chile in a 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden. The South American's vicious attack had no terrors for the speedy east side man who gave a clever exhibition of boxing. Terris weighed 130 1-2 and Vicenti, 134 1-2.

MATHES TO DES MOINES

DES MOINES, Nov. 26: (AP)—Joe Mathes, manager of the St. Joseph baseball club last season, today signed an agreement to pilot the 1925 Des Moines Western league team. It was announced that Mathes had purchased an interest in the local club.

League of Nations Will Not Circulate Egypt's Protest of England's Actions

"Documents Must Emanate From Governments"

Military Troops Refrain From Demonstrations

(By the Associated Press)

GENEVA, Nov. 26—The Egyptian chamber of deputies has addressed a protest to the league of nations against the British demands bearing on the assassination of Sir Lee Stack. This protest was taken under consideration today, and after an hour's meeting of the department chiefs of the secretariat, under the chairmanship of Sir Eric Drummond, it was decided not to distribute to the members of the league, the Egyptian protest.

The decision was based upon the constitutional procedure of the secretariat which is not to circulate documents that do not emanate from governments.

LONDON, Nov. 26—The Egyptian crisis showed no marked development today. Cairo and Alexandria remain quiet and even the militant students seem disposed to accept the advice of Zaghoul Pasha, for they refrained from demonstrations.

Viscount Allenby, the British high commissioner, is said to content himself with seeing that the Egyptian units are withdrawn from the Sudan and awaiting the next move from the Cairo government.

The British cabinet held another council meeting today to discuss the situation in connection with the preparation of the king's speech at the opening of parliament which must necessarily deal with Egyptian affairs. The debate on the address will doubtless provoke a protest from the opposition against what is characterized in opposition quarters as the government's "jingoist" methods in dealing with a weak country like Egypt, but although neither the liberals nor the laborites approve of Lord Allenby's methods, Ramsay MacDonald, as leader of the opposition, can hardly call in question the policy pursued, but only the method of its application since he himself found it quite impossible to negotiate with Zaghoul, owing to the extremist demands of the former Egyptian premier.

Xmas Seal Drive Will Open Today

Sales Help to Reduce Death From T. B. By One-half

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 26—A vast army of workers today will enter the field to ask the people of Iowa for funds with which to carry on the fight against tuberculosis.

The annual Christmas seal sale of the Iowa Tuberculosis association, endorsed by Governor Kendall, President C. E. Hearst of the farm bureau federation, the American Legion, labor organizations, religious and patriotic bodies, officially opens on Thanksgiving day and extends to Christmas, Dec. 25.

"Nothing is more important in Iowa than public health," Governor Kendall declared in his endorsement of the seal sale. "I hope there will be a liberal purchase of seals by all who are interested in better living conditions."

Mr. Hearst said that "tuberculosis is one of the diseases which has always maintained a foothold in our rural communities. Its ravages are a matter of knowledge to all. Certainly a relatively small sacrifice which is necessary for the purchase of Christmas seals is well worth while."

Minnesota Wheat Growers Split With American Growers

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Minnesota wheat growers association has withdrawn from the organization with headquarters here and W. J. Brown has resigned as president of the national body, it was announced here today.

Mr. Brown, in making the announcement declined to give the complete reason for the break, but said that is will be permanent unless the conduct of the American group is changed.

Just Try to Guess How Iowa Is Spending Thanksgiving

Only one day of vacation which necessitates eating a hotel, restaurant, or boarding house Thanksgiving day dinner instead of one at the family festive board is nothing up to date to be thankful for.

But a large majority of the eight-thousand University students can be thankful for having imported Scotish plaid scarfs of the latest style to wear that the student of thirty years ago did not have. Then, too, there's bobbed hair; compact powder that is never compact; staycomb; street sweeper trousers; and the innumerable other necessities that the non-flapper and staid stalwart swain of thirty years ago never dreamed would exist.

As surprizing as it may seem there are a number of the students that really plan to crack the books, catch up to their note-books, make outlines and so forth. The University library apparently does not put its o.k. on such a procedure because it will remain closed throughout the day.

A few girls have announced their intention of utilizing their time as laundresses. Waists, handkerchiefs, hosiery, and other unmentionables are among those doomed to a bath.

Fond parents from far and wide will no doubt receive letters from their young hopefuls.

Not only letters to their families but many of the boys and girls threaten to reply to the nine weeks accumulation from other sources.

Afternoon "caking" at the various dance palaces is on the program of the exponents of Terpsichore. Afternoon varsity will be popular according to the vast assemblage that have signified their intention of giving thanks in this manner.

Iowa City's movies will draw their share of the amusement seekers.

That Pumpkin Pie

What moistens the lips and what brightens the eye;
What calls back the past like the rich pumpkin pie.

These lines of Whittier bring back memories of childhood Thanksgivings spent at Grandmother's where we were surrounded by turkey, pumpkin pie, and all the many accessories, and by a happiness, a hospitality, which seemed to pervade the atmosphere.

As we grew older, we realized this genial atmosphere radiated from a spirit of thankfulness. As we spend Thanksgiving away from that Grandmother's home, we find that this spirit is universal.

And yet we are dissatisfied. We long on Thanksgiving Day for Grandmother's home and that spirit, which as children we felt but did not understand, and which is somehow more cordial, more peaceful there than anywhere else. And, of course, we long for the accompaniments of this spirit, the turkey and the "rich pumpkin pie."

Once a Year

THE president of the United States and the governor of Iowa have set aside this day as a day on which we are to express our thanks for the blessings which we have enjoyed through the past year. And it seems fitting that we, as a people, should pause for a moment in our hurried lives to determine just how much we have for which to give our thanks. Sometimes the pessimist is so concerned with his petty troubles and the optimist is so unduly happy over his apparent state of bliss that they both forget to face the facts squarely and sum up the actual situation.

For one thing, at least, we have no cause to be thankful, and that is for the feeling of lawlessness that exists throughout our nation. We have no right to be satisfied with this condition, and we should constantly endeavor to remedy this national sore spot.

But there is much to the other side of the story. The corn crop hasn't been a bumper crop, but prices have been such that there is no actual suffering as a result. Industry seems to be steady; there are no great strikes and no serious problems of unemployment. Men and women everywhere have enough to eat and enough to wear, and a great many of them can afford a measure of luxury.

The nation has made tremendous progress in the realm of science. Men have seized upon the ideas that have been thrown up in the pursuit of pure science and have made cars, airplanes, radios, devices to produce light and warmth, and a thousand other things that bring comforts to the life of the many.

But perhaps, after all, these material things are not the greatest items in our progress. Perhaps there is a change of attitude and spirit by the American people that is of even greater significance. The past political campaign and its results are an illustration of this. Bitter and hard-fought as the campaign was, there was more of a spirit of tolerence displayed, even in the very heat of the battle, than men have been able to show before. Now that the struggle is over, men have forgotten their differences and accepted the will of the majority without a murmur. It is a triumph for free and democratic government.

Our nation is at peace. It is free from economocial and political disturbances within, and from squabbles with foreign powers. The United States is a nation that is looked to for leadership, as an example of what a great, peace-loving, democratic people can do in the way of popular government. We have our problems, and serious ones, but they are not unsolvable, and we have confidence that democratic government will not fail, and that this free nation will retain its place of leadership and will help to bring about a more wholesome and more peaceful relationship among the peoples of the world.

Gliding Gold

THE romance, the glamour, the charm of the world "gold" all fade away with the announcement of the probable manufacture of that precious metal. Johannes Schumacher of Decatur claims that he can make gold from the clay and sand on his farm by a process of heat, acid, and electrosis.

Gold, that has been always so difficult to obtain, gives promises of becoming so plentiful that we will no longer desire to possess it. The rush to the coast in 1848 for gold, the rush to the Klondike and the Yukon in 1894 become with this discovery only ironic facts. The lure which has surrounded these events and which Service has expressed in his poems will be gone. Where men have suffered untold hardships to obtain a little bag of powder or a few nuggets, Mr. Schumacher steps into his laboratory with some clay and turns out $200 worth of gold a day.

Further search for that marvelous thing known as the philosopher's stone will be without purpose, for Mr. Schumacher will have discovered its equivalent.

Much of the fascination of the old fairy tales will disappear. Children used to the sight of quantities of gold will no longer open their eyes wide in wonder and delight at the golden castles and chests full of golden nuggets of fairyland.

Even the significance and appropriateness of the title "The Golden Rule" will be lost when gold is manufactured in quantities.

Glittering factories with such names as King Midas Gold Factory or Alchemists's Paradise will appear. Jewelry stores might as well become ten cent stores as far as gold is concerned.

The wonders of science? Yes, but, if gold really can be made, a shakeup in men's affairs will result which the wonders of science will be powerless to straighten out.

Lovely Labors Lost

At least we can reveal our sex. Nay, we must do it in self defense. A woman has claimed us as one of her tribe. We have tried so hard to be mistaken for a girl, and at last we have achieved it. We have not read in vain Good Housekeeping and the Woman's Home Companion for the last month. We know the feminine mind, and we have fooled one. Allelulia! Eureka! Excelsior! Multum in Parvo!

But what if Pansy isn't a girl? Alack and alas! Anyway, here's her expose.

Dear Em Quad:

Don't you think you're making a perfectly dreadful mistake, dear? Oh, you're not fooling us for one minute as to your sex. No one but a girl could write those soulful paragraphs in the Iowan each day. No one but a girl would know the heart beats of a girl who's been to boarding school. I've been there myself, and I know. It's just that way. But I needn't tell you about it, Em, dear, for you've been there too.

But really, don't you think it's quite dreadful for you to smoke cirgarettes? I don't think there's a thing wrong with short hair, since everyone's doing it; nor are neckties so bad, as they're being worn quite a bit, too. Only don't get them too—well, too masculine looking, for no man likes masculine looking girl. And I know you want men to like you. You're such a REAL girl. That is, you would be if you didn't smoke cigarettes. Anyway, besides not looking well, and making the second finger brown, and soiling your teeth so that even listerine won't work after awhile, and you won't dare to kiss anybody—not even your dearest girl friend—for fear of giving it away, why, cigarettes are immoral for a girl to use. I don't know why, but they are. You ask anyone.

Oh, we're not so slow to get things on this campus as you might think, Em, dear. Already three other girls besides myself have decided that Em is short for Emily. But anyway, it was awfully clever of you to think of that. We think we've seen you. Did you pass the Iowan building yesterday afternoon between three and four, walking by yourself? You had a book in your hand, and a fountain pen, and a notebook. And your hair was short, and you did wear a necktie. But, thank heavens, you were not smoking a cigarette at the time. If you did pass the Iowan at that time, I'm positive that it was you!

Sincerely,

—Pansy

Pansy, you're a nice girl, and if you'll send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope, we'll tell you so to your face, but you're wrong.

We resent the implication that men cannot write soulful paragraphs. We admit that we are an unusual man, but we believe that many of our fellow males could do prety well at the s. p. game. Girls at boarding schools don't have heart beats, education is simply a series of hoofbeats. And we haven't been at one.

That's your first paragraph. And we'll answer the rest soon, Pansy.

The Writer For Honor

By Paul Fredrick Corey

THE WRITER FOR HONOR.
by
Paul Fredrick Corey.

One seldom comes happenstance upon a thought. And these thoughts are stimulated by the potence or impotence of a phrase heard through the conversational medium of association, or through the more enlightening and intellectual medium (if one bar the daily newspapers) of the printed page.

Referring to the first means of mental stimulus I am forced to remark upon a statement made by one of the more or less famed female literati and cross-word puzzle workers on the campus. She stated, with all naivete, that "Writers write for the honor of having their work printed."

With all respect for such a sage feminine view point, I contend that any writer so infantile as to believe it an honor to have work printed and read by a civilization of imbecilic yokels, is also too infantile to be capable of producing artistic literature. And if her statement is true, then we have the conclusive clue for which critics have long sought; the key to the denouement of the problem of deflated artistic literature. That however is another question.

An artistic writer seeks only to interpret art as he sees it and will not revise his work to conform with the standards of narrow-circled society. Now to consider the reasons of these writers for having work published. It appears that two are prevalent. Primarily the remuneration therefrom, and secondarily and subordinate, the building of a potent name that will eventually bring direct remuneration. This, however, does not justify our Cobb and Curwood creatures who throw words into an ancient mold with the scenario-rights dawning like a tropical sun upon their horizon.

The Honorists would have one believe that the artist of literature does not appreciate criticism, but desires praise. The former I grant, but the latter I deny upon the same ground that the artist does not like the former. And that is, the artist of literature considers himself upon a plane of intelligence so much higher than those misled into reading his printed works that all congratulations and "great stuffs" such as we are customarily offered in the conventions of our society mean little more to him than asinine and superfluous words.

The premise that writing for the honor of having the work printed in the highest aim of art, is a prevalent mist stirred up by the swivel-chair pedagogues for young writers to imbibe. Likewise the idea that any writer who sells the ink of his pen is prostituting his talent. As a result those young writers who adhere to this embryonic reasoning are transformed into the ranks of the swivel-chair pedagogues, and die in the ashes of their own honor.

It is my opinion that the first stimulation of artistic literature is an intense desire for self-expression. After the work is expressed the aim should be to get as much present financial advantage from the work as possible or place it for the purpose of building up a future advantage along the same line. However, if it fails to place and suggested changes do not conform with the writers interpretation of art then lay it aside for another production. There are enough publications in the United States which are free from the befogged conservatism of the rustics to back any work of art that is a true artistic expression.

The artist must be a genuine artist to handle such a situation and his perspective must be broad, for unless his standards are high and his interpretation of art is knotted to a star he will fall into a similar rut to those who adhere to the principle of producing for honor. In fact he must be a stringent self critic. The Honorist on the other hand falls quickly into a chasm eroded by the suave compliments of friends and the praise of uncapable readers.

On Other College Campuses

WISCONSIN

New President Probable.—When the special committee of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin meets December 3, a successor to President E. A. Birge probably will be chosen. The regents have reached no decision as to a probable successor at this time, although the question has been debated for two months, the secretary of the committee declared. Fifty names have been mentioned in connection with the successor to the Wisconsin chair, among them being Dean Roscoe Round of Harvard law school, Dr. Robert Morse Lovett of the University of Chicago, and L. D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota.

5,980 in Foreign Languages.—Foreign languages at the University of Wisconsin are exceedingly popular, registration figures have revealed. More than 5,980 students are enrolled in the German, French, and Spanish courses. French is the most popular, with 2,504 students; Spanish is second, with 1,390; and the German classes enroll 1,086.

MICHIGAN

Tribute to Dead Football Player.—Spectators at the Michigan-Iowa football game Saturday paid a touching tribute to the memory of Edgar Madsen, '27, varsity football player who died Thursday evening following an acute attack of pneumonia. Teams and spectators stood for two minutes between the second and third periods of the game while a firing squad composed of select students of the R. O. T. C. fired three volleys as a military salute. Taps were then sounded and the flag at the east end of the field lowered at half mast for the remainder of the game.

MINNESOTA

Victory Brings Pledge Money.—Pledges of money to the Minnesota memorial stadium came in thick and fast after the unexpected football victory over the University of Illinois. Over $1,000 was taken in shortly after the office opened Monday following the victory. One student completed payments on his pledge from the proceeds of a "jack-pot" he won.

Model Fraternity Rules.—Fraternity rushing rules, as drawn up by the inter-fraternity council at the University of Minnesota will be presented as a model before the annual conference in New York, November 27 and 28. The feature of the Minnesota rules which will be considered is the law prohibiting rushing and pledging first quarter men. Inter-fraternity council officials wrote to the Minnesota council expressing approval of the rules and asked for a copy.

INDIANA

Library Notes Peeve Janitors.—Talking, tabooed in Ohio State University libraries, causes students there to resort to notes in order to convey their sentiments, amorous or otherwise, during library hours. Every two weeks three big bales of scrap paper—torn notes, and other matter—must be hauled away from the library building. The janitors do not like this.

Raps Mental Weaklings.—"One-half of the people of the United States have a grade of mentality that will not take them creditably beyond the eighth grade," declared Dr. H. H. Stoddard, professor of abnormal psychology, in his lecture on "Special Education" at convocation services here. "They could be educated but it would take ten to forty years for each one," he said. "We educators have concluded that they are not worth educating," he added.

5. Mail to Scribblers' Contest, The Daily Iowan. Do not put name on manuscript but enclose in separate envelope.

Y.M. Workers See 30 Sick Each Week

16 Are on Committee; Sick Get Daily Iowan Free

Members of the Y. M. C. A. sick visitation committee, of which Linus P. Stillman, Cm4 of Dolliver is chairman, report that about thirty calls a week are being made upon University students, who are ill.

In former years the "Y" had a similar committee which visited students at the University hospital, but not until this year was an attempt made to see sick students at their rooming houses.

A committee of sixteen men is working under Mr. Stillman and each day sick students are called upon in their rooming houses, at the University hospital and other hospitals. A special committee headed by Francis MacLaughlin, A2 of Des Moines, and Marvin L. Thomas, A2 of Council Bluffs attend those who are ill at the Quadrangle.

English of Future To Be Filled With Strange Sounds

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP)—English as it will be spoken 500 years from now will not have much in common with the present day abuses of the language, according to Daniel Jones, professor of phonetics at the University of London.

In the faraway future generation Scotchmen will talk like Englishmen, while the general tongue of the highly cultured people will be a "super-cockney with a little Scotch accent."

Professor Jones' idea is that the language of today was cockney to Shakespeare, and that the speech of southern England now is getting nearer to the cockney. In some places the cockney has already the upper hand and there is a decided trend in others to adopt the accent in words which contain the letter "a." The wide difference in the dialect of the English provinces accelerates this tendency, the professor says, as the various dialects weaken the common language and destroy its roots after a few years.

Within 500 years, Professor Jones predicts, the Gaelic language will have nearly disappeared and the native Irish (Erse) will be heard no more. Of this group of languages only Welsh will remain.

The best example the lecturer knows of the English of the future is to take the word cart and pronounce it "car-r-r-t."

Co-eds May Debate Teams From Four Western States

Wisconsin, Minnesota, Wyoming, Knox, Included

Tentative plans are being made for four inter-collegiate debates for University women by the members of the department of speech. These will be with Knox college of Galesburg, Ill., with the University of Wyoming, of Laramie, Wyoming; with the University of Minnesota, and with the University of Wisconsin.

Prof. Warren C. Shaw of Knox college was in Iowa City last week to make arrangements for the debate. It will probably be held in January or February.

The Wyoming team will come to Iowa City during March for a single debate.

A dual debate has been arranged with Minnesota and will be the first of a series of debates to be held after the holidays.

Negotiations are also being made with Wisconsin. If plans now under way, materialize, the first triangle debate for the women of Iowa will have been scheduled.

There is also a possibility of O-M-I, debate for women next year. The schools included would be Ohio, Michigan and Iowa.

Previous to this time the only teams which the local teams met from other states came from the Washington University of St. Louis. Last year three debates within the state formed the major part of the debate program.

Shows What 17 Cents Can Do

Miss McCormick Sees Why We Should Be Thankful

Miss Katherine McCormick, national speaker for the Near East Relief, addressed the Y. W. C. A. Thanksgiving vesper meeting yesterday afternoon.

"Not what we give, but what we share," quoted Miss McCormick in making her appeal for the Near East Relief. "Do you know that 17 cents will give food, shelter, medical care and vocational training for one day to these orphans and refugees?"

Miss McCormick told of her many experiences as a war worker in the Near East Relief, of thousands of orphans and refugees who were aided by the Near East relief, and were given something on which to build hopes of the future. She told of some of the massacres and cruelties of the Turks and of the horrible conditions which existed as a result of the loss of the homes.

Miss McCormick brought three girls back here with her because of the danger which threatened them and calls them her children. She said, "If I could only have done it I would have had three thousand more children here."

Two Pianists Will "Tickle Ivories" At Blanket Hop

W. A. A. to Give Old English Party

Set Date of Costume Ball for December Seventeenth

Handsome lords and fair ladies of "merrie England," with powdered hair and fascinating beauty patches, will be among the guests at the W.A.A. old english costume ball, December 17.

The women of W.A.A. who have a suppressed desire to dress in hoop skirts, or who feel sure that they are a re-incarnation of a lovely damsel of the old english period, will find an opportunity for expression at the costume party.

The costume ball which has always been held in the women's gym sometime before Christmas vacation, is an annual W.A.A. affair. The committees in charge of the party have not been appointed. Detailed plans for the party will be made sometime next week.

Confessions Of Hostess Reveal Secrets Of Afternoon Varsity

(Editor's Note: This, the first of a series of frank confessions of the most startling and most terrible experiences of University social life, purports to portray the awful experiences of a hostess at Afternoon Varsity.)

"Grasping her vigorously about the waist, he swung her violently out on the floor, stepping on her feet four times in five steps as he did so.

"She was terrified. She did not know him. This was the first time she had ever seen him.

"The hostess had come to her and said, Mr. Uhooh—Miss Smithers.'

"That was all. The man had grabbed her in some terrible fashion, and she was alone on the floor with this dreadful person. Was it not enough?

"The consciousness of her terrible situation overwhelmed her; she swooned and began to fall; failing to notice her, he stumbled slightly, and did not once miss stepping on her feet."

This, dear reader, represents what might actually have happened, had I not escaped unscathed after one chance at this dreadful nightmare. It represents which might have been, had I gone, unknowingly, into the dreadful maw of that terrible creature of modern civilization, Afternoon Varsity.

A hostess is partially safe—she does not have to take an actual part in that awful orgy.

But, OH, that terrifying feeling—to know that one has started so many young lives, innocent and unsophisticated, on the road to ruin through the insidious process of "being hostess at Afternoon Varsity!"

Never in all my life have I asked so many men if they wanted to dance—the humiliation, the horror, the terror of it—it is not imaginable. It is unforgettable. As for the men—it must be a most excruciating experience.

To think that such a terrible institution exists under our present social system.

It is for every faithful citizen—to work together—to destroy this evil—or it will be the end of DEMOCRACY.

Theirs is to be the noble work of attending varsity this afternoon and lending a hand.

W. A. A. Recruits Musical Talent

Margaret Ashe Named As Orchestra Leader

The women of W. A. A. are planning to organize an orchestra with talent recruited from their organization. According to the plan the orchestra will furnish music for W. A. A. parties.

Margaret Ashe, A4 of Bedford, will be in charge of the new orchestra. Any member of W. A. A. who wishes to join may apply, either to the head of the orchestra or to some member of the association board.

Names of prospective candidates and the instrument which they play should be posted on the bulletin board at the women's gym. Competitive tryouts for membership will be held.

Cornell College Radiocasts From WHAA on Dec. 16

Hall Hopes Big 10 Will Make Boxing Competitive Sport

Boxing should be made an intercollegiate sport, believes Roscoe Hall, University boxing instructor. With the beginning of classes in the various lines of sport this week, many students are truning to boxing as a favorite. Ifs'les regularly scheduled class work, a number of devotees of the sport work out cany at the men's gym.

Boxing has been for some time a regular minor sport in the Missouri Valley with good success. there seems to be no real reason why it should not take its place along with wrestling as a competitive sport between Big Ten institutions. The unfavorable impression left upon the minds of many people by some of the undesirable things that have been connected with the old professional boxing should not hold back the development of the manly art as an intercollegiate sport, in the opinion of those who are working for a better position for boxing.

Himself a leader in the ring in his weight, Hall's big aim is to raise boxing to such a level that it can rise above the objections that have been brought against it as a regular intercollegiate sport.

Barry Cuts Cage Squad For Last Time; Seventeen Left

The varsity basketball squad has launched into a campaign of strenuous practice since the beginning of the week, in preparation for the opening game with Wabash college on December 13. During the past three weeks, Coach Sam Barry has been drilling the men in the fundamentals, an dnow will drive his men on offensive tactics.

After a rather gloomy practice season up to the present things have brightened considerably, owing to the addition to the squad of several football men. Barry is confident of a good season, and says the fight for positions on the team will be hotly contested.

Captain Hector Janse and James Laude are entering their third year as members of the basketball squad, and are leading the race for positions at the forward berth. G. Phillips of Iowa City, H. Boysen of Harlan, and P. E. Smith of Waterloo are also alternating at forward positions, all of them showing up well.

At the guards, D. Speed of Knoxville, R. H. Hogan of Osage, and George Van Deusen appear to have the best of the fight. Hogan and Speed have just reported, but are making good progress already.

Heinie Jensen who took over the pivot position last year at the beginning of the second term seems to have the edge on the other candidates. However, Leonard Raffensperger, grid man and captain of the freshman basketball squad last year, is making a strong bid for the position, and Jensen is far from safe. Bill Larrabee and Skim Miller are other candidates for the center position.

Coach Barry has not selected a team as yet, and does not plan to hold scrimmage for some time until the squad has mastered the technical side of the game according to the Barry system.

Next week the coach will drill the men on tactics of offense and srimmage will probably be held with the freshman quintet, which will be chosen by Coach Rollie Williams in the near future. At present the freshman squad contains fifteen men, and an additional cut in this number is likely.

Don Hines, a member of the Cedar Rapids high school quintet which won the interscholastic title in 1920 and the state title in 1921, will report for practice in a few days. Hines played forward in high school, and will probably try for the position on the Hawkeye squad.

Grid Squad Picks Chief for 1925 at Dinner Wednesday

The captain of the 1925 Iowa football team will be elected at the annual dinner given by President Walter A. Jessup to the members of the football squad on Wednesday, Dec. 3. Juniors on the team who are elegible for the honor are Graham, Krasuski, Griffen, Olson, Romey, Schirmer, Dauber and Fry.

It seems likely from the performance and ranking of the players in the past, Romey, Graham, and Griffen are likely to stage the hottest battle in the ballot.

Eleven Play Last Gridiron Contest For Red and White

Today the Iowa City high school grid machine swoops down on the powerful Mason City eleven in the final game of the season. Both teams have had but one defeat and represent the strongest teams in their sections. An added school rivalry will make the battle a keen fight from the starting whistle to the pistol shot that ends the contest.

In this game, eleven men comprising the very heart of the squad, will close their prep football careers. Captain Slemmons, Lindsley, Strickler, Goldman, Forwald, Vestermark, Boyles, Reed, Ribble, Kirtchner, and Larew carry the school colors for the last time on the high school gridiron.

The local warriors, though craving turkey, will attempt to eat their way through Coach Kline's cement city aggregation by their smashing offensive attack. The Red and White players have now worked together long enough to co-operate in a splendid system of interference that will hammer any prep line. Strickler has won a reputation as a consistent ground gainer, Judy tears off long runs, Boyles worms his way through holes, and Adrian does good plunging. This array of pigskin carriers should show some dazzling onslaughts this afternoon.

Mason City also boasts a whirlwind method of attack. Lillard, colored quarterback, is a triple threat man that the Little Hawks will have to watch. He can pass, run, and kick, and is also a good field general. Captain Cookman, end, is exceptionally good at receiving passes. The Scarlet and Black outfit posses a line that lives up to their nickname and is a mortared stonewall.

From the success both teams have had previously with the aerial game, there will probably be much tossing. Not only will this make the competition more exciting but tend to run up the scores.

Hunn, Speers and Bergstrom In New Conqests at Omaha

Like Alexander the Great, three Hawkeye frosh cross country runners, L. E. Hunn, M. G. Speers, and A. Bergstrom, looking for new worlds to conquer, will participate in the individual and team cross country championships of the Mid-Western A.A.U. to be held in Omaha next Saturday, November 29. The men will enter unattached, in accordance with the prevailing conference custom for first year athletes.

The run will be held over a course entirely different from the University cow path, being laid out over 3 1-2 miles of the streets of Omaha. Five regulation Mid-Western A. A. U. gold medals will be given to the winning team, silver to the second and bronze to the third team placing. Gold and bronze medals go to the first three individual runners to finish.

The race will beheld under the auspices of the Omaha Lodge of B.P.O.E. and the Omaha World-Herald.

Hunn was winner of the Hawkeye run, tied for first against the varsity reserves and ran second against the varsity. He has been one of the consistent leaders of the frosh crew all fall. Speers ran third in the Hawkeye run, tied for first against the varsity reserves and ran fifth in the contest with the varsity. Bergstrom, the third man in the trio, was fourth in the Hawkeye run, third in the varsity reserves contest and finished in eighth position against the varsity.

The men will not have their expenses paid by the department of athletics but will make the trip on their own initiative.

COACH STAGG will feast upon an Iowa turkey today. He is thankful that he didn't have any Iowa Hawks to carve this season. He would have found them much too tough.

GEORGE HUFF, director of athletics at Illinois, would like to find the persons who stated the story about dissension among the members of the football team. Probably those who prematurely predicted that Illinois had the strongest team in the country.

ONE GRID SCRIBE writes that there were few strong kickers this season. He couldn't have been around Wisconsin, especially after the team lost a game.

WHY WORRY about who won the conference championship. We've got all winter to argue. And then, all the coaches haven't filed their alibis.

Listen, Iowa

By Oakley Davidson

Our all-American isn't out yet. We don't want to influence Walter Camp while he is selecting his team. We have always stood for absolutely unprejudiced decisions when it comes to naming an all-anything, even at the sacrifice of personal gain and glory. With the cowbell atmosphere wafted eastward, anything might happen.

We haven't decided who will make the all-American, but Walter Camp, as usual, is the only sure bet.

Besides we don't know our geography well enough to attempt the thing. Just now we're looking for the name of someone from the far West. Every all-American must have one man from the Pacific coast. This is a clever scheme that Mr. Camp may think of some day.

A good rule to follow is one west of the Rockies, it must be Stanford's turn this year, and one from the South. Vanderbilt is generally considered good form, but it isn't quite far enough south to be a perfect selection.

That leaves nine for rest of the country. Of these the Big Ten may be given two or three, but we don't know what to do with the Four Horsemen. Norman E. Brown just ruined Don Miller's Thanksgiving when he left him off his all-western all by himself. There's nothing like a conscience even in a sports critic.

To get back to Walter's troubles, the East can't prosper without certain privileges of abusing other parts of the country. The old timers used to call them inalienable natural constitutional, and other pathetic kinds of rights.

In census years it is always easier to pick an all-American. With the center of population slowly moving westward, it requires considerable work to locate it when the government doesn't do it. Once the mathematician has completed his preliminary survey, it is simple trick to draw on the map a vertical line dividing the East from the West. Care should be used in pushing the top of the line to the right, forming a diabolic curve, so that none of the Big Ten can get in on the eastern quota.

Kappa Sigs and Sig Alphs Win in Water Basketball

Sigma Alpha Epsilon won its way into the semi-finals of the interfraternity water basketball tournament yesterday by virtue of its victory over Kappa Beta Psi by a 4 to 2 score, and Kappa Sigma defeated Phi Kappa Sigma in the first round of the semi-finals 8 to 0.

The Sig Alph-Kappa Beta Psi game was hard fought, but the S. A. E.'s had the advantage in having better swimmers and took a 1 to 0 lead in the first half which the Kappa Beta Psi's were unable to overcome. Krumviede, Sheakley, Vanderveer, Sheehan, Hammill, and Thomas, with Huebsch and Emmert, substitutes, played for the Sig Alphs, Walters, Gaffney, Atherton, Cossen, Kutsch, and Carroll composed the Kappa Beta Psi team, with Berne, Lamont, and Obermann substituting.

The Kappa Sig team was composed of Griffith, Finn, Wareham, Nelson, Griffen, and Colby. James, Lindell, Bellamy, Wilson, and Gillespie substituting, played for the Phi Kappa Sigs.

Having won the first round of the semi-finals, Kappa Sigma will meet the winner of the Phi Kappa Psi-Sigma Alpha Epsilon match in the finals.

Armbruster Steps On Accelerator as Tank Season Nears

Stiff work and time trials are on David Armbruster's program for the swimmers from now on. The first time trials for both freshmen and varsity will be held before the end of the week.

Up to this time the workouts have been on distance alone in an efort to develop endurance and strength. Coach Armbruster is now stressing speed with particular emphasis on starts and turns. New starting rules have been put into effect that will necessitate much work on the starts. Swimmers must not lean forward or swing their arms or in any way move until the command "swimmers ready" is given by the starter—this being followed by a quick gun.

The freshman-varsity dual meet will be held Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. This is the first of a series of dual meets that will be held every Saturday afternoon until the holidays, with the exception of December 13, when the University championship in various events will be contested. Coach Armbruster will also hold a meet among the Varsity squad sometime next week in preparation for the freshman meet.

Armbruster is still worried about his divers. Many more men are needed in this event if the Hawkeyes are going to make a showing in the conference meet. The few men that are out are handicapped by injuries and illness and more men must report at once is Armbruster's almost frantic plea.

Armbruster will attend a meeting of the conference coaches in Chicago sometime next week and he will schedule five dual conference meets, some of which he will attempt to arrange during this semester. Armbruster will also put in his bid for this year's conference meet to be held in Iowa City. Dave believes that too much preference has been shown Chicago and Northwestern in the past because of their central location, and is of the opinion that the meet should be rotated among the conferences schools that are able to accommodate it. Armbruster is going to Chicago armed with reasons why it should be held at the tank in the men's gym. He points out that Iowa has a bigger tank than either Chicago or Northwestern and that almost as many people can be accommodated.

Every City Has Peculiar Smell; Iowa City Owns Hair Oil and Gas

If a blind man were to drop down in Iowa City not knowing his destination, would its peculiar smell betray it as Iowa's seat of knowledge? According to experts, every city has a smell peculiarly its own. London smells of hot lubricating oil and petroleum while Berlin reeks of oil, badly groomed horses and old leather.

Paris, on the other hand, is distinguished by its smell of Parisian perfumes, face powder, coffee and hot bread. The aroma of Parisian perfume has the quality of toning up the senses and giving Paris a fragrance which no other city possesses.

Rotterdam, say travelers, is pervaded with the oder of strong coffee and stagnant water. Cairo, they declare, smells of hot donkeys and camels.

But what of Iowa City? It is not entirely overrun with Parisian scent, or are camels and donkeys a common sight on our thoroughfares. Instead, Iowa City is distinguished by the subtle perfume of hair oil too freely applied, or tresses burned by many marcels, and the penetrating taint of cigarettes and gasoline! Over everything is the penetrating odor of broken dorines and stale perfume.

U. High Typists Of 25 a Minute; World Mark 147

University high school students, who tickle the keys of an Underwood typewriter have progressed rapidly since classes in typing began last September. They are now able to do 25 words per minute, which is the average speed required of high school students at the close of the second semester.

In 1923 the world's professional championship record was an average of 147 words per minute for a period of an hour. Although the contrast between the average speed of the high school students and that of the world's championship record is great, E. G. Blackstone, instructor in the University high typing school, is well pleased with the progress of his students. Approximately eighty are enroll in the course, of which thirty are University students.

Kansas-Missouri Clash Today Will Decide M. V. Title

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—Championship hopes will be at stake in the east, south, and middle west tomorrow in the Thanksgiving Day programs which mark the close of the gridiron season in many sections.

Although western and Pacific coast conference titles races have been concluded, football fans anticipate keen battles in the east, where Pennsylvania's undefeated eleven will make its final bid for title honors by tackling Cornell; in the south, where Georgia and Alabama, both undefeated and the former unscored upon so far, struggle for southern conference honors; and in the mid west where Missouri University's hold on the top in the Missouri Valley conference race depends upon the outcome of her game with Kansas.

All three of these games will hold unusual sectional interests in a day which also marks the renewal of many ancient rivalries. In the east, besides the Cornell-Pennsylvania game which goes back over a thirty year period of conflict, traditional foes meet in the West Virginia-Washington and Jefferson contest at Morgantown, W. Va., and in the Penn State-Pittsburgh battle at Pittsburgh.

The middle west has two important intersectional games with Vermont at Milwaukee seeking revenge for the 20 to 0 defeat administered to the New Englanders a year ago by Marquette, while the Oregon Aggies invade Lincoln to play Nebraska. Florida and Drake clash at Gainesville, Florida, in an intersectianal fray involving the south and middle west.

Brown figures to conquer Colgate at Providence, and Syracuse invading the Polo grounds is expected to defeat Columbia, but again the rivals are well matched and it would not be surprising to many critics if opposite results occurred.

Classical Club to Postpone Meeting Until Next Week

Due to Thanksgiving vacation, the Classical club will postpone the meeting which was to have been held this evening, until next Thursday, December 4. A few changes will be made in the program.

High Scores Tie In R. O. T. C. Shoot

Anderson and Cristensen Head List With 92 ex 100

D. L. Anderson and A. M. Christensen have tied for first place in the rifle competition for first year basic R.O.T.C. students with score of 92 ex 100. The second highest score was ninety-one, tied by H. L. Bagwell and B. C. Barker. Four sections of the infantry, comprised of forty-eight men, participated in the shoot.

H. P. Bauman topped the high mark while from the prone position with a score of 25. The low score was 16. While there were no perfect scores made from the sitting position, several men shot a score of 24. With a perfect score of 25, A. W. Bass is high point man from the kneeling position. Twenty-two was the best score made from a standing position and twelve the lowest.

Zoning Ordinance Concerned With Welfare of the City, Asserts Higbee

Form of "Municipal Housekeeping" to Prevent "Further Monstrosities Being Built"

"THE proposed zoning ordinance is not aimed at any individual or group, it is a form of municipal housekeeping planned for the betterment of Iowa City as a whole", declared Prof. F. G. Higbee, chairman of the commission in an interview yesterday.

"The purpose of the ordinance is not to change things which already exist, he continued," but to keep further monstrosities from being built. The buildings which already exist contrary to the ordinance will be allowed to remain under a special permit.

The Iowa law requires the appointment of a board of adjustment for special cases where hardship is worked upon any individual. When such hardship seems unjust the board adjustment will have the power to grant special permits and make exceptions of certain individuals.

"In every case which has been brought against the zoning ordinance there has been a very apparent remedy." Professor Higbee declard.

"So far there have been three public hearings and the commission has recived a great many good suggestions. The sentiment of the people seems to be in favor of the measure. Those who are against it are, as a whole, those who fear that their business will be affected. However, in most cases, the objection raised, has been of such a nature that it could be easily handled by the board of adjustment. The objections which could not be adjusted by the board have been proven to be concerned with just that type of property at which the zoning measure has been aimed."

The ordinance has not as yet been completely revised but such revision will be accomplished within the next thirty days so that the complete measure may be submitted to the city council for consideration.

Woman's Club Will Count Voters in Last Election

The Iowa City Woman's club will telephone all members within the next two or three days to determine the exact number who went to the polls on election day. The information secured will be reported to the county chairman.

University High Adds Extra-Curricular Activity Period

A new period has been added to the University high school schedule. From eleven to twelve o'clock each day, the students will participate in extra-curricular activities such as glee club, debate, dramatics, class meetings, student council, and play practice.

D. D. Durrell, who has charge of the activities, says that this system of taking care of student activities should be installed in every high school as it is the only way to meet the problem in a satisfactory way.

Thanksgiving Services and Social Activities Sponsored by Churches

THANKSGIVING day services will be held by the Iowa City churches this morning according to the annual custom. The Baptist, Christian, Unitarian, Congregational, Methodist, English Lutheran and Presbyteran churches will participate in union services which wil be held in the Methodist church at 10:30 o'clock.

Trinity Episcopal will hold Holy Communion at 8 o'clock and Thanksgiving service at 10:00 o'clock. Zion Lutheran church will hold Thanksgiving services Sunday. St. Patricks will hold mass at 8:00 o'clock today. Several churches have planned special dinners and entertainments for the students who were unable to go home.

Union Services

The speaker at the Union services will be the Rev. Arthur L. Weatherly of the Unitarian church. Special music will be furnished by the Methodist quartette. Miss Esther Dyke, Mrs. Paddock, Eugene Burton, and William Edmondson accompanied by Miss Helen Orcutt will sing "Ye shall go out with Joy." by Barnby.

Invitation to the Union services is extended to all residents of Iowa City, by the Rev. Mr. Keeler who said: "We have been blessed above measure this year. Let us gather to give thanks to God for his good gifts."

The offering of the Union service will go to the United Charities of the city.

Student Plans

Special affairs planned for the students include: the Presbyterian church dinner last night at Youde's Inn; a dinner for sophomore students at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. E. T. Gough of the Methodist church.

The Christian Endeavor of the Christian church will entertain tonight at a supper at the home of Miss Mary Sunier, while the young people of the Unitarian church are having a party this afternoon beginning at 4:30 o'clock. A dinner will be served in the church parlors.

Police Discover New Clue To Bandit in Wynn Case

The discovery of a $5 bill spotted with what may be blood, may throw some light on the George Wynn case, in the belief of police officials. Wynn was in a local shop yesterday purchasing a package of cigarettes. For payment he presented a $10 dollar bill and in the change he received the stained $5. Police are now working in an effort to discover the party who gave the bill to the establishment.

Thanksgiving Day Baskets Sent Out

Organizations to Aid In Activities of Social Service

Thanksgiving baskets containing "goodies" for the day will reach about fifty Iowa City families through the social service league.

The league is serving somewhat the capacity of a clearing house and bureau of information in regard to needy families, so that the baskets may not be duplicated.

The Methodist, Christian and Trinity Sunday schools, the Christian Endeavor of the Christian church, the boys HI-Y club and the Girls Reserves, and the Elks are some of the organiaztions co-operating with the social service league.

EUROPEAN MAIL PLANE FAST.

BERLIN, Nov. 26 (AP)—A record for speed was established recently over the airline from here to London via Hanover and Amsterdam. The regular mail plane covered the distance of 622 miles in five and one-half hours.

Itemized Menu Drives "Family Thanksgivings" to Restaurant

Shall we stay at home or take our Thanksgiving meal out, is the problem every household faces nowadays, according to local merchants. Thanksgiving as a home day ain't what she used to be, they say.

No wonder. Take a small family of four; $6 will cover the bill for dinner out, and a seven-pound turkey alone is worth $4.50, nude of cranberries. Then the bird must be stuffed and all the trimmings provided. Even celery for four with hearts for all would be 60 cents; and with bread at 10, and butter at 60, and spuds at 25, not forgetting a couple of cans of soup, and olives, and jelly, and preserves, what's the use of eating at home—except to take in the aroma of roasting turkey?

A "tasty little salad," as the cook books say, wouldn't be amiss either, at say 50 cents for four. Besides, pumpkin pie bought ready made would be not less than 50 cents, and made at home, somewhat more. Or if you serve ice cream, it will cost you forty cents the quart, and discretion alone would name the price of the cake to serve with it. You may have both if you are very extravagant. Nuts to complete the meal are a little expensive at this time of the year because the new crop is not in. Fifty cents will provide the finish for the meal, they say.

Do you wonder that many families are planning to dispense with the pleasure of the Thanksgiving dinner at home and have made reservations for themselves and families at the local restaurants? Besides there isn't the responsibility of a large meal on mother's shoulders and without a doubt there will be fewer who suffer from a too bountiful dinner.

Thanksgiving Day Isn't What It Used To Be, Claim Grandparents

THANKSGIVING day was once a time when sleds flew over the snow to Grandmothers' house to the tune of jingling sleighbells. "We could always be sure of skating on Thanksgiving day" said W. T. Jackson, "but for the last three years there has been no skating at all." In the evening the whole family would gather 'Round the hearth to pop corn, roast chestnuts, and listen in well fed contentment to the stories that were told.

"Thanksiving is the same as it was fifty years ago" maintained F. J. Strub. The turkey still holds the high place of honor. even if we didn't go out and shoot one as our grandfathers did, and of course oyster dressing, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie are the inseparable companions of roast turkey.

It is the part of the day that comes after dinner that has changed. Some one goes to a movie, or has a date and the cozy family is broken up. Much of the old spirit has been lost and Thanksgiving and a feast is synonomous today. It was the opinion among the older inhabitants of Iowa City that, although to all outward appearance Thanksgiving day is the same as in the good old days, it really is not the same at all.
