Two Congressmen Assail Methods of Prohibition Chief

Two Million Appropriation to Supplement Dry Law Is Cause of Protest

[By The Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, June 26—Indulging in one of its favorite pastimes of the present session, the house today participated in a round of prohibition debate.

Consideration of the second deficiency supply bill which, among other actions carried $2,680,700 to supplement the $10,655,685 already provided for prohibition enforcement during the fiscal year beginning July 1, served as the vehicle for bringing up the subject.

Gorman attacks Drys

While representative Gorman, republican of Illinois, and Laguardia, progressive socialist of New York, vigorously assailed the dry law and conditions under it. Representative Upshaw, democrat of Georgia, urged his party to come out with a "ringing" pronouncement in support of the eighteenth amendment in the 1928 presidential campaign.

Gorman charged prohibition with a grave responsibility in recent crime waves in his home city of Chicago, while Laguardia concentrated his attention on Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury who is in charge of enforcement.

Assails Andrews

Assailing Andrews as a "typical cringing office holder who is seeking to please the administration, the drys and the wets", Laguardia shouted that the proposed distribution of the 235 additional dry agents to be employed under the new appropriation, "is not to prevent liquor coming into the country but to conciliate the entry and to give concessions at certain ports for that very purpose."

Upshaw, reviewing the last presidential election, accused President Coolidge of not making a definite stand on the Ku Klux Klan and said the democrats had been afflicted with "too much Madison Square".

Cites Chicago Conditions

Comparing conditions in Chicago as he knew them as a letter carrier eight years ago with those at present, Gorman, said his route lay in "an orderly community" but now "there is much crime".

"There is more drunkeness among the young people of today than the adults of eight years ago when I worked in their midst, girls who don't drink strong liquor are rare exceptions, and they all 'whiff' that eternal companion of drink, the cigarette."

"The young men all drink and they get stupidly drunk from the rotten stuff they drink. Other vices have come among plain folks as a result of strong drinking, indulging in intoxicating drinks at their dances and other gatherings has produced the immoral and suggestive dancing among them and a combination of both drinking and dancing has brought in an aggravated immorality."

League Will Renew Attitude on Bible

BALTIMORE, June 26 (AP)—The convention of the Walther League here July 11-15 will bring upwards of 3,000 young men and women from all sections of the country. Its keynote will be "Seek Ye the Peace of the City."

It will also define what the League considers the proper relation between the church and state.

A mass chorus of Lutheran Choral Societies will sing at the sessions. Besides the regular business meetings, the convention will be featured by a sacred concert, a pageant of the Reformation, a fellowship, dinner, and several sightseeing tours. Many of the highest dignitaries in the Lutheran church will make addresses.

The convention will be divided into five departments for separate discussion of problems.

Set Flood Death Toll at 1,300 in Mexican Disaster

Survivors Threatened by Starvation as Waters Lower

[By The Associated Press]

NOGALES, Ariz., June 26 — A dispatch to the Nogales Herald today intimated that 1300 persons had lost their lives in the flood water of the Santiago River, which inundated the farming section around Leon. Guana Juato, Mexico.

The flood is receding after two weeks of torrential rains which sent the stream on a rampage covering farm dwellings, crops, and sections of the little town of Leon.

The message pictured a scene of desolation with long lines of the homeless passing through improvised morgues trying to identify relatives, while district residences and public buildings which escaped the flood were thrown open for relief of the homeless.

Hunger Threatens

Hunger is beginning to show its ravages and stores and warehouses have been opened to the demands of the stricken inhabitants, the message stated, while every precaution is being taken to prevent the outbreak of pestilence.

With miles of railroad washed out and bridges swept away attempts to bring in food and medical supplies had been hampered, and the few relief workers who thus far had succeeded in penetrating the region were unable to cope with the problem.

Flood Peak Passes

Reports from the upper Santiago river indicate the flood peak has passed.

The present disaster is declared to be even greater than that of last January when the river broke from its bank and 1000 people were drowned.

Leon, a small city in the heart of an agricultural section is situated about ten hours from Mexico on the Mexico national railway.

Sixty-Two Drawn by Arsenal Sights

Museum, Shop, Lock, Warehouses and Dam Viewed

The crown prince and princess of Sweden who will visit the arsenal at Rock Island today will not see the sixty-two students who visited the arsenal yesterday on the second excursion of the summer session.

The party left Iowa City at 7 a. m. Saturday and arrived at the arsenal at 9:30. They began the tour of the island by driving through one of the huge machine shops constructed during the war. The island itself is over a thousand acres in area.

Other places of interest visited included the museum, the confederate and union cemeteries, the Moline lock of the canal adjoining the island, warehouses stored with tanks, tractors, and field pieces, the old Davenport house, and the headquarters building.

This arsenal, the largest in the world, is an establishment including buildings and war equipment valued at more than $348,000,000. The expansion in value occurred during the war.

The members of the party had lunch in Rock Island and on the return journey stopped for an hour at the Palmer school of chiropractic to visit radio station WOC and make a trip of inspection through it.

Perfect weather and excellent roads made it possible to complete the trip home in record time, the excurionists returning to Iowa City at 5:30 p. m.

Senate Postpones Farm Bill Action

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — The rebound of President Coolidge's public endorsement of the Fess-Tincher farm credit bill fell heavily in the senate today, and further consideration of agricultural relief was deferred until next week to permit rounds.

As soon as the senate convened proponents of the McNary equalization fee measure retracted from their position of favoring abandonment for this session of all substitute farm proposals.

Their spokesman, Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, withdrew his motion made yesterday to lay aside farm legislation with the explanation that he did not know the president favored any of the pending farm measures when he offered it and that he did not wish to be in the position of preventing a vote on any proposal which the president would relieve the farmers. This served to further complicate the situation and decision to lay aside all agricultural bills until next week resulted.

The progressive leaders are urging their forces to vote against the Fess-Tincher bill on the ground that farmers do not want it, while the regulars who are urging senators to stand by the president insist the bill will furnish adequate farm relief. Democratic leaders said their ranks were divided on the question but a majority is expected to oppose the bill.

Senate Takes Up Formal Charges of $3,000,000

Claim Campaign Cost Will Exceed Sums in Penn. Race

[By The Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, June 26 — Another broad vista of campaign investigation outrivalling that in the Pennsylvania primary was opened up today with the presentation to the senate of charges that $3,000,000 was spent in the Illinois republican senatorial primary in which Frank L. Smith, chairman of the state utility commission defeated Senator William G. McKinley.

The charges were recounted by Senator Caraway, democrat Arkansas, who read from a prepared manuscript. They include allegations that Smith received innumerable contributions from heads of public utilities, that Daniel Insull either individually or through his utility corporation alone contributed over $5,000 and that a utility deal involving about $20,000,000 in property draw from the interested bankers. E. H. Rollins and Sons, "more than $1,000 into the hands of Allen Moore, Smith's campaign manager."

Demand Investigation

Demand also was made that there be an investigation of how much money was given to John Walker and Frank Farrington said to "have handled the labor votes in Illinois" and the cost of the "palatial headquarters" of the Smith forces in the Congress hotel in Chicago of the sending out of travelling representatives from those headquarters with great quantities of currency freely used to get votes.

According to the charges, Senator McKinley spent $1,000,000 in his efforts to be renominated while the claim was made that Smith had distributed twice that sum or as much in the aggregate as has been uncovered in Pennsylvania on behalf of the great tickets.

Plan Adjournment

Investigations of the Illinois situation was planned by the senate campaign funds committee as soon as the inquiries into the Pennsylvania primaries and activities of the anti-saloon league is completed and congress has adjourned.

The committee held only a brief session today, but in its course Reed, democrat, Missouri, announced that if information could be obtained warranting it the investigators would inquire into the political activity of any and all organizations, "whether it is church or Ku Klux Klan or anti-saloon leagues or anti-saloon Volstead or anti-eighteenth amendment or anything else."

Who'll Get the Star?

THE KANSAS CITY STAR, one of the few remaining great conservative newspapers, is about to pass into the hands of new owners. The future of the paper is in doubt, and the entire southwest is astir over the possibility of its falling into the ways of the "yellow press" or becoming the subsidized instrument of financial groups.

Years ago William Rockhill Nelson founded the Star and placed it on a high plane. His paper has been comparatively free from political domination. It has been a community builder, and the greatest example in this country in the use of small headlines.

The headlines will spread like fire over the front page if Bonfiles of the Denver Post succeeds in buying the Star. It is a matter of opinion as to whether that change would be good or bad. The political independence will change in case Haldeman-Julius, editor of the little blue books and former associate editor of the socialist New York Call buys it. The stereotyped policy will immediately appear in case the Scripps-Howard group are the high bidders.

Realization of any of these possibilities would change the famous paper, but the effect might or might not be bad. The calamitous could only occur in the event of sale to the financial groups of St. Louis. That would be tragic. The three states which have depended upon the Star for upbuilding, substantial news for a half century would get instead a warped and distorted lot of "news." But a greater evil would lie in the loss to good journalism. Papers owned by industries or organizations and operated solely for the purpose of furthering the interest of the groups have not only failed but have left an unwholesome and disgusting record.

It will shed great credit upon the trustees of the Nelson estate if they reject the undesirable bids. The trustees are men of education, being the heads of the three universities—Kansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma, and their learning should enable them to keep the Star in hands of those who have a community's interest and the paper's responsibility uppermost in mind.

Aimee Comes Back

AIMEE PcPHERSON has returned from the limbo of a Mexican kidnaper's prison, so she says, and District Attorney Asa Keyes, of Los Angeles, has announced that he will reopen the investigation of the case at once and penetrate to the bottom of the alleged kidnaping, torture and ransom demands.

To our mind the investigation is worth while. To use a light and frivolous expression, we have thought that there was something fishy about Aimee's disappearance all along. It did not have the earmarks of a bona fide snatching up to heaven of a "woman of God" it was too obviously an impossible thing for a woman to drown so near the shore without leaving some trace or attracting the attention of at least one of the life guards who patrol the beach.

Since Aimee's reappearance we have noticed that her story does not agree with that of Miss Emma Schaeffer, her secretary, who went to the beach with her the afternoon she disappeared. Though the disagreement is in minor detail it may be taken as an indication of the way in which her story rings in the ears of the Los Angeles district attorney. Aimee said that she sent Mrs. Schaeffer to see about some soloists for the Angeles temple services, while Mrs. Schaeffer asserted that she had gone to get some tidbit "of which she was particularly fond." We expect many more unexplainable discrepancies to appear as the investigation progresses.

At present the whole essence of the case, we think, may be seen in this discrepancy.

Prophets have been known to disappear before now, and Aimee was no poor publicity agent. Angeles temple, which Aimee founded and has kept running, is an institution that pays enormous financial returns to the investor and Aimee is almost the sole stockholder. Too, there was a reward of $25,000 offered for her safe return and after she was given up for dead a collection was taken up at a service in the temple to be used to build a permanent monument to her memory; $15,000 was received for this purpose. We wonder if this money will be returned to the donors, now that Aimee has returned. We give Aimee credit for being too much of a business woman to do anything as foolish as that without some ulterior purpose. But she may; and if she does it will be for purely business or advertising reasons.

At that rate her sojourn in parts unknown was very much a paying proposition—$15,000 for a month's leave of absence. We could hardly hope to do better ourselves.

However, we think that Aimee might have arranged to make a more impressive exit from the scene of her labors. She might have left in a fiery chariot, or in a whirlwind, or in any of a number of ways that would have shown more convincingly that she is possessed of the divine afflatus.

At any rate she is back and the probe is under way. We do not pretend to be a prophet, but we hazard a guess that Aimee will be "shown up" if Mr. Keyes does penetrate to the bottom as he said he would.

"Make Every Dollar Sweat"

RECENT reports show that the national debt has been reduced $835,000,000 during the past year. The treasury of the United States shows an unexpected balance because tax laws produced more revenue than had been estimated.

Commenting upon this rather pleasing state President Coolidge pointed out that the surplus will be applied to debt reduction as every dollar of debt paid means an annual saving of four cents a year in interest. He also stated that although a larger outlay of money is contemplated for next year, no increase in taxes will be necessary but rather he will insist upon a little closer trimming of expenditures in several departments.

One of his hearers very aptly remarked, "We must make every dollar sweat," and it fits the case admirably.

Most of us would scorn to mention saving four cents but "Many a nickle makes a muckle" and "A penny saved is a penny earned." What America needs is not more money to spend but more careful spending of what she has. Insist on a hundred cents' worth for every dollar and the purchasing power of a dollar will rise rapidly. Spend money only for what serves a useful purpose and when you have it, try to get value received. In other words, "Make every dollar sweat."

Could this remark be made a national slogan, all debts could be met readily and tax-howlers be without cause for wails. Applied to state, county, and municipal activities, fewer chair-warmers would loaf about, drawing fat salaries for infinitesimal services, fewer contracts for unnecessaries would be let, fewer cases in which a dollar was paid for thirty cents worth of material be found.

Similar conservation in the conduct of private business would have the same effect as an increase in income. Almost any office, store, or factory could study out means of saving, which, by the end of a year, would amount to a surprising sum.

In personal matters there is also an opportunity for retrenchment. Why order a full dinner when but half of the food can be eaten? Remember that "A stitch in time saves nine" and frequently the price of a new garment. If you are buying service, see that no time you pay for is wasted. In short, keep in mind the precepts and example of the head of the nation and "make every dollar sweat."

A Democrat President?

IN their search for a presidential candidate for 1928, the Democrats will have difficulty in overlooking Senator Reed of Missouri. Since Warren G. Harding told a Kansas City audience in 1920 that "the people of this country owe Jim Reed a debt of gratitude which they can never repay," Reed has been presidential timber. His opposition to the Wilson faction of the party and the league, clinched his popularity in the minds of the opposite wing of his party and threw out a drag hook to dissatisfied republicans.

Recently he has figured largely in showing up the republican operations in Pennsylvania. Still more recently he, more than likely, struck a knockout blow to the corn belt farm relief bill. The east will respect him for that. The south will move in a body under his banner, for that section opposed the bill. And the west will admit the courage of his action.

Reed is mauler of republicans when that is the order of business. He is a diplomat with vision in politics.

But what will the Democrats do with his foreign relation views with respect to the party's record on that question?

Gray—How did you list the money that fortune teller got from you?
Green—I entered it under the head of "Prophet and Lost."

Crawford—My wife hasn't said a word to me for three days.
Saylor—How's that?
Crawford—She accidentally put glue on her brush instead of tooth paste.

Poems That Live

Transfiguration

Cold blue the night,
Steel blue the moon;
My breath was white
As moth cocoon.
A night so chill
My careful tread
Creaked, and was still,
Creaked—and was dead.
Then, window glow.
Through festooned frost
Above, below,
Half seen, half lost
In forest lake,
In lake and fern,
In fern and brake,
A tendril's turn
Revealed your hand
And then your face
In fairyland
Of frozen lace.

Two Carnival Men Pay Gambling Fine

Owner and Concession Proprietor Appear Before Carter

Charged with operating a gambling wheel, William Wolfe, owner of the carnival, and D. H. Goldman, plead guilty before Justice of the Peace B. F. Carter at 10 o'clock and were fined $50 and costs, totalling $56.75.

Mr. Goldman was owner of one of the concessions that operated a chance wheel. According to the state law, for every chance sold, something must be given in return. The operator of the concession was not doing this, so Mr. Wolfe, owner of the carnival, was arrested by Sheriff James Martin. Mr. Goldman accompanied him to the justice's office, and when it was found that he was the owner of that particular concession, both were charged with operating a gambling wheel.

Carousers Plead Guilty to Three Charges in Court

In a Packard car bearing an automobile license made out to Lee Richards of Muscatine, Iowa, "Marshall" and five other youths made a fast but crooked ride into the city to a cafe. They were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Don Price and hailed into court this morning.

What Is A Life Underwriter?

One who executes and delivers a life insurance policy. In other words, a person whose business it is to offer the known benefits of life insurance to individuals, to corporations, to partnerships, etc.

But further, the life underwriter is one who must convince those clients of the benefits offered. This means stimulating contact with human character, and with large affairs. Some underwriters prefer the game of character and deal mainly with individuals. Others prefer affairs; to them is open the great field of business insurance.

Furthermore, the business of life underwriting pays highly for initiative and ability.

And still more, the life underwriter offers to his client a commodity which has no risk in it, does not deteriorate, and adds no burden of mental worry. The life underwriter sells absolute security, the foundation of serenity of mind.

It is worth while to think these things over now and to remember them when, perhaps, you find yourself wrongly placed in whatever business you may have chosen.
