Missa boys have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord,
He is transfiguring on the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored.
He bath loosed the fatal lightning of his terri-

His truth is marching on.

I have been him in the watch-trees of a hundred circular camps.

They have built him an altar in the evening
camps and temples.

I can read his righteous sentence by the
dawn and noon;

His day is marching on.

I have read a fiery gospel, writ in rows of bunt-

As ye deal my commentaries, so with you guaranteed shall deal.

Let the hero born of woman crush the serpent with his heel.

Beneath God is marching on.

He is sitting out the hearts of men before his judgment seat;

On his seat, my soul, to answer him, be sub-

intel, my soul!

Our God is marching on.

In the beauty of the hills God was born across the sea.

With a glory in his bosom that transfigures you
and me,

As he died to make men holy, let us to make men free.

White God is marching on.

The Juniors are bringing suits in various counties all over the State. They have a lucrative practice, but most of the money comes from their "Dear Fathers."

Don't ask a Senior Law anything about Constitutional Law or jurisdiction of the State and Federal Courts for they have passed those studies, and are now filling up the blank leaves in McClain's Outline and General Law and Procedure.

Pursuant to call, the members of the Law class met on Monday, Oct. 19th, and organized a Literary Society. The offi cers elected were as follows: J. R. Ogles, Pres., Chas. W. Huberty, Vice Pres., O.
Steele, Secretary. (Not to be published.)
During the last session of the Michi gan Legislature, a law was passed prohibit ging the manufacture of embalming-mace.
The Wayne county court decided the law unconstitutional for technical reason s and because it prevented men from engaging in legitimate business.

IOWA CITY.

This institution embraces a Collegiate Department, a Law School, a Medical Department, a Homoeopathic Medical Department and a Dental College.
The Collegiate Department embraces a School of Letters and a School of Science. Degrees conferred are Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Science, and Civil Engineer, and the course of study in each is thorough and thorough, at the student's option. A course of Lectures in Agriculture is given to the Senior Classes.
Tuition, $70 per term, or $210 per year, in advance. Rental of text-books, 50c per term. Purchase price, 50c for the two years course.

The Medical Department consists of the two years Preparatory course for the degree of Doctor of Medicine, and the two years practical course for the degree of Doctor of Medicine. This course extends your well known course of study, except in the study of the human body, during the last year of study.
L. C. Blanding, ’85, spent last Sunday among friends in Iowa City. Bland takes an unusual interest in the S. U. I.

Wm. McMeekin, formerly a member of ’85, sends in his subscription from Sunny Hill, Ill., his home. McMeekin is still a pedagogue.

Miss Gertrude Davley, of the Sophomore class, entered school again this week. A little late, but "better late than never."

Rev. E. W. Symonds, recently of Kalamazoo, Michigan, will occupy the Unitarian pulpit to-morrow, both morning and evening.

Miss S. Laura Ensign, A.B. ’76, A.M. ’79, now a professor in the State Normal School, at Cedar Falls, is visiting old friends in Iowa City.

D. C. Blissfield, of ’85, is now in the employ of the Pioneer Press. He will continue the study of law, in the office of Chas. W. Pollock as before.

University and Academy text books from 10 per cent to 25 per cent lower than any other store quoted.

Miss Mollie Tuttle left for her home in Des Moines last Monday morning, after quite an extended visit with the Misses Ross and other friends in the University.

Those desiring The Epworth Hyman, recently adopted by the M. E. Church, can procure them at Allin, Wilson & Co’s, where a large invoice has just been received.

J. E. Newell has been "holding down a claim" in Ford County, Kansas, during the summer, and is now engaged in teaching. He sends regards to friends and class of ’86.

It is said that the Senator pips, if placed on the head of a Freshman turn a green color, supposedly because they pose the property for which chemists are famous.

F. A. Aby came to the assistance of the Chorus Class last Tuesday night with his cornet. It is to be hoped he will come regularly and help each part over the most difficult passages. Could not arrangements be made for a cornetist to lead each part?

Bollinger recently received a choice chocolate cake from his—, and well, some one in the death like stillness of the night entered his pantry and polluted it. "Jim" will gladly confer with any one possessing a clue which will lead to its restoration.

The republicans of Alamosa county have nominated for superintendent of schools, Miss Dora Serrangle, of Paint Creek. She is a graduate of the State University at Iowa City, and is a young lady of more than ordinary ability, and would fill the office creditably—Clayton County Journal.

The same state which proved a stumbling block to Maj. Anderson last week, now received Col. A. again during drill on Wednesday. This time it was Cotten who went down with rather uncomfortable force, and Frank thinks that not even one of the prize Senior "bookers," could have done the business in a business way had the need for it been the needed stake.

D. B. Conolly, of the Junior class, is in town meeting old friends. He thinks the instead of enlisting in the army for the winter term, but if he does not will keep up his studies and graduate with his class. Con, if you had only been had this term you might have had the notice yourself. Don’t you see?

The seven dissident Seniors of Grinnell, referred to last week, have decided to remain there, as the following extract from a student’s letter at Grinnell will show: "The students had a meeting last Friday morning, in which they most patently entreated the Iowa City influenza clinic to stay with them, and we finally concluded to do so."

Dr. J. K. Green, of Constantinople, gave a very interesting talk at Chapel Monday morning, upon the objects of schools in Turkey. Recitations closed at 11 o’clock, and the students assembled in the Chapel to hear him deliver a care fully prepared lecture upon "The Rise and Decline of Mohammedanism." He also spoke before the class in Political Economy. The Dr. is an earnest, ready and thorough work, and we hope he will come again.

The match game of foot ball between the Laws and Sophomores last Saturday was called a draw game. The Laws won the first goal and then declined further play. In the early part of the game, Y. R. Lowell, playing with the Laws, met with an accident which will cause him to use crutches for some time. In some unaccountable way his ankle was sprained, V. R. has always been a lucky kibber, but the day of reckoning has at last come. His lameness does not prevent his appearance at school, however.

This issue marks the first appearance of the Medical column with Mr. R. Brooks as editor and J. W. Hall as assistant. It is the purpose of the Vineyard to give all departments of the University a fair and impartial representation. The Dental, Homopathic and Pharmaceutical departments will cheerfully be given recognition. The price of the paper has been raised a cent at a figure within the reach of every student. The editors of the different departments are always a glad to receive assistance both in the form of news and subscriptions, and if you wish to be kept informed, send in your subscriptions at the rates of one dollar per year. The Vineyard has not lost any advantage from the change of price. The staff is maintained by the students.

A subscription list is also ready, and will be sent on request. The Vineyard is a quarterly paper. It is published at the Vineyard office, by the Vineyard, for the Vineyard.

No subscription to the Vineyard will be refused, and we are prepared to publish every article that can be written about the University and its connections.

It is reported that one enthusiastic democrat thought he was attending a veritable convention last night.

Several of the corporals and sergeants have donated herrings, the distinguishing mark of non-commissioned officers.

A. J. Birey, who formerly frequented the classic halls of the Collegiate Department, has returned to a mediole.

Miss Ambrey G. Gray, a graduate of the Medical Department last spring, has recently opened an office at Wilton.
The Department of Pharmacy is now in full blast. As the youngest department, naturally it has the smallest enrollment. The small number in attendance is by no means discouraging to the enthusiastic students, but the fact of the matter is that very few of themselves are of the proper age, and there are many who do find the course stimulating. The following are the names enrolled in that school:

The Homeopathic Medical Department reports the following enrollment:

Mr. Shorthouse, author of "John Inglese," is engaged on a new work of importance.

Professor W. Mass, of Aberdeen, who was formerly the editor of the extinct "Emmuer," is said to be the author of the novel now running through Blackwood, entitled, "The Crack of Doom."

Professor Green has completed a new work entitled "Two Thousand Years Ago," or, "The Adventures of a Roman Boy," in which he aims to produce a picture of the last days of the Roman Republic.

Messrs. Cassel & Co., are to publish "Representative Poems of Living Poets," edited by Miss J. L. Gilder. The peculiar merit of the work is that the poems are selected from the poets themselves, and that no English or American poet of note will be omitted from the collection.

Henry W. Shaw, the humorist, better known as Josh Billings, died last week at Monterey, Cal., of apoplexy. His first production was written May 25, 1863, under the name of "Josh Billings" he being over 45 years of age. Since then his philosophy and quaint spelling have given him a high reputation for originality and a deep insight into human nature. His "Allmakin" attained at one time an immense circulation.

A New York daily newspaper, discussing the success of some of the latest stories, says: "Among the prices paid to authors for their work, the most generous offer is $500 by the Atlantic Monthly for the best short story. Frank R. Stockton's story cost $50 ($500 is worth $250). Mr. Trowbridge receives $50 per 1,000 words. There are, in fact, four scales of prices now paid for short stories. The first is $25 for the smallest story, paid by the smaller magazines; the second is $10 a thousand words by the popular-monthly publications; the third is $5 a thousand words to writers who have acquired some degree of reputation. The fourth scale varies with the fame of the writer, but H. Howells or 'Mark Twain' will produce no story or article of any kind for less than $500 or $1,000. The most difficult and to induce to write is T. B. R. Rich. He once received $1,250 for a short poem in Harper's Magazine. His price is from $300 to $400 for a poem of a few verses."

The growth of the University in influence, usefulness, and efficiency has been very great. New buildings have been erected, new departments added, and old ones broadened and improved. But there seems to be one point which the school to a certain extent has neglected, and that is the scholastic training of its pupils. The interior decorations of the buildings, the paint, the furnishings, and the wall decorations are not such as to cultivate a taste for the beautiful in those who gaze upon them every day, unless indeed it exercises a long for that quality, in its too evident absence. But these things of course require a large expenditure, and that the school, so long as an institution is growing and requires all its means to pay out into new departments, rather than to embellish its halls and corridors. Of course, a little child needs a little time to grow and dare not tax it too much in other directions. We have hopes however, that when the University has added its more rapid growing, more attention may be directed to things of beauty, as the moral effect of beautiful surroundings, upon those who are to go out and live and build houses, making them beautiful or indifferent, can not be doubted. Who can tell the influence which the campus, and its well-trimmed trees, may have upon the city, and landscape gardening of the future? Again a chair of esthetics or a course of lectures on Art would be of great benefit and instruction to those student who have not time or inclination to study those subjects independently. The objects of a college course is culture as well as instruction. And no person can be called cultured who has not cultivated his garden more than his garden. The Thrift of the Theory, its History, House Decoration, Landscape Gardening, art are interesting and important to know about. Undoubtedly many students go away from school with little or no idea of these things. They do not know what Titian or Murillo, or Rubens was, or where to place him. I was almost going to say, that colleges and their general culture of our aesthetic and moral natures refine us and determine whether we shall also be good men.

The meeting of the Orationist Association is a reminder that the contest can not be very far away and death in turn is a reminder that some fifteen or twenty ambitious students are probably beginning to think of subjects and material suitable to bring forward upon that occasion. The college contest lies in the minds of some, a questionable item of literary competition. There is nothing that is like it out of college and those who adopt its style in school must drop that style if they pursue further literary labors after graduation. This so-called contest is a thing by itself. It seems to be peculiar to a certain period of a man's life, beginning with the High School era and lasting through his college undergraduate years. Before he reaches the High School, stern necessity compels him to write an "essay," and on some eventful Friday, he undertakes his schoolmates with a pencil, not as a professional, but straight forward, and with meddling interest and perhaps instructive account of the Boy, the Goal or the Like. And when he has graduated from college and has entered the lists of literary effort with the great minds of the world, again he takes up the method, instinctively adopted by the schoolboy, and if he would be successful, talks with men face to face. Like the boy he has something to tell and he tells it: a little more philosophy, but still, a child needs all little time to grow and dare not tax it too much in other directions. We have hopes however, that when the University has added its more rapid growing, more attention may be directed to things of beauty, as the moral effect of beautiful surroundings, upon those who are to go out and live and build houses, making them beautiful or indifferent, can not be doubted. Who can tell the influence which the campus, and its well-trimmed trees, may have upon the city, and landscape gardening of the future? The BORES.

There's the man who lets you shake his loaded hand—

"He's a bore.

And the man who leans against you when you stand—

Get his gaze.

There's the man who has a fact

That the world is, year by year,

Growing worse—we perhaps he's near

Bolt the door.

There's the fellow with compliments quite antiquated—

He's a bore.

And the man who asks you 'What? when you speak—

Though you roar,

There's the man who slaps your back

Well, it's the bottom of his stomach—

If you think he's on your track,

Bolt the door.

There's the punter with his everlasting pen—

He's a bore.

And the man who makes alliteration "fun"—

There's the man who tells the tale

That a year ago was stale

"Let's not be out of joint—

IOWA CITY furnishes eleven new men to the present Senior class.

Aside from the propriety of a chapel exercises every morning, to impress the importance of sacrifice, the new boys are actuated Monday morning. Then the next important anniversaries are repeated which often leads to bullying blunders. The topic last Monday morning was "Expenditure of Money." The topic in the past is the increase of the course of studies. This year has doubled the expense of studying.

The number of students other than those who are graduating is gradually diminishing in the course. The cause of it is the increased expense due largely to students themselves. The rivalry of the desire of each class to outdo that which has gone before, in the social scale, leads to such high-pressure entertainments that the poorer members of the class are, in reality, placed in the social ostracism.

Horace D. Corr, appeared in his role of "Don Juan and Pythias," at the Maas Temple last night. Mr. Corr, as a member of the musical tragedy, in previous years, has been pronounced by those who have heard him to have a fine voice, and to be well calculated for that kind of work. His voice is of good quality, and his acting is such that he is able to carry on the part of the character with great effect.
