IOWA CITY, IOWA, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1893.

NO. 12.

REPUBLICAN CLUB.

There will be a meeting of the U. S. I. Republicans at Chas Hall, Wednesday evening, October 18th, at 7 p. m. All Republicans in the county are invited to attend.

S. K. STEVENS, Pres.

Athletic Ball.
The Athletic Association will give a ball at the Armory Saturday evening. Meals will be at the Field Meet in the afternoon and will be presented during the evening. Tickets 85 cents. Admission to gallery 25 cents.

Notice.

There will be a meeting of the Board of Directors Tuesday evening, Oct. 17, in the botanical room, at 7:30 p.m. All students interested in the biological sciences are invited to attend.

Law Literary.
The Laws had an interesting program Saturday evening. Hall, L. V., read a well written paper on "Language." The debate was on the question, whether the stand taken by the Republican and Democratic parties of Iowa on the liquor question, is detrimental to the interests of the state. This question was argued by McVey and Schofield on the affirmative, and Hogan and Noon on the negative. The best part of the program was delivered by Mr. F. W. on the boys by Chancellors McClain, on the subject ofchemistry, which was deservedly well appreciated.

Fossil Plants Discovered.
The last number of the American Geologist, October, 1893, contains an article by Professor T. H. McClure, describing a new species of Cycad. Cycadophytaeae. Plans have been hitherto unknown in the geological strata of the county. Professor McClure himself is the geologist not only introduces a new species, but an entirely new group of plants. At present, this American geologist. Professor McClure found a number of individuals of this interesting group of plants, during a recent visit to some out of the way localities in the region of the Black Hills. The article referred to is illustrated by half-tone figures reproduced from photographs of specimens secured for the University Museum.

Annual Ball.
The Junior class met at 8:30 at the Armory Saturday evening. The vespers in the Annual Ball were filled so that the band is now composed as follows: Allen, Editor in Chief; Mason on the drum, assigned Chief Business Manager; Williams, Chief Literary Editor; Davis and Virtue, Misc. Mason, Assistant Business Manager; Decker, Rogers, Anderson, Robert L. Burrell, and Henderson, Literary Editors. Hennessey, Miss Ashley; Oliv, Editor; Kearf, Waites, and Miss Gilbert, Miss Ingham, Humorous Editors. Kinnison and Miss Lomas, Department Editors; Ditten and Blakey, Art Editors.

The class decided to have a social a week from next Thursday, and to meet a committee to make the necessary arrangements.

Personalities and Its Place in Expression.

Mrs. F. K. Partridge, Instructor in Education, lectured before the pupils of the high school on "Personalities and Its Place in Expression." The lecture contained many valuable suggestions in the way of developing the power of expression. In the course of her remarks she took occasion to say that expression is subjective, not objective; it is not of the body, but through the body. It is the soul that speaks. Forgettingfulness of self and all things is expression. The lecture contained many suggestions in the way of developing the power of expression.

The laws side Anthony indulg- ed in too much rough playing.

The Game With Denver.

According to the telegram received from Denver Saturday evening, the S. U. I. team are defeated at the rate of 36 to 0. While we did not expect a victory, this score is entirely too overwhelming to meet with our entire approval. The team we sent West was apparently the best one that has gone out from this school. At least it had the weight and the experience and the coaching. That they could not at least hold down their opponents better than they did makes it very apparent that there is a radical fault somewhere, either in the men or in the management. From our observation of the practice games we have thought all along that enough stress was not given to defensive playing. We remember that at one practice in particular the scrimmage team with only eight men won a touch-down from the full varsity team. We hope this Denver defeat will show the boys their weaknesses sufficiently and spur them on so that they will make a good showing in their Eastern trips.

A full report of the game will be published in our next issue.

Baconian Club.

Professor Jamison addressed the club Friday evening, on the subject of "The Evolution of Rapid Transit in Cities."

The means of transit of which there is anything known, was a chair suspended from a pole and borne on the shoulders of two carriers. From this was developed the sedan chair, so called from the city in France, where first they came into general use. These chairs served the purpose very well at that time, for the streets were very narrow and so rough as to make wheelless vehicles out of the question.

In 1817 the London city to have an omnibus line, and from there the system soon spread over Europe.

Next came the street cars, or tram cars, such as were in use in connection with the mines of England. These were at first built with flat wheels and flanged rails, but now the street cars of to-day are built to be run on the same plan which was found to be too expensive and the wheels were flanged instead. The rail at this time were wooden, but were afterward reinforced by strap iron nailed along the top.

In 1826 the street railway was built in this country. It was in New York and was called the New York and Harlem Street Railway. John Stephenson was the first builder and is at present at the head of one of the greatest car companies in the United States. Animal power was used at first but was not economical. When it was found that the average life of a street car horse was four years and that a horse averaged only two hours work per day, some other motive power was sought.

In 1872 John Halliday invented the cable system in San Francisco, and so successful was the venture, that now the cable cars are used not only in our large cities but also in Australia, New Zealand, and Constantinople. Electricity was first applied to street cars in Cleveland, Ohio, and now the number of electric systems is nearly double that of all the other systems combined.

London has a very elaborate underground system, which cost $250,000,000 and the same plan was adopted in New York but was suspended by the elevated road. This permits the use of steam and admits of much greater speed than the horse cars, the average being sixteen miles per hour as compared to seven miles, electric and cable lines and four for horse lines.

The paper was discussed at some length, after which Professor Notting reported on a discovery about the hydriods obtained by the Bahama Expedition, and Dvorak Gleditsch gave a report on anesthesias.

At the next meeting Professor Blackwood will present a paper on "Sources of Muscular Energy."

Hesperian.

The program was opened with an instrumental solo by Mr. T. J. Stoughton. This was followed by a declaration, "Willie Baird," given by Miss Lomas, who entered afterwards her declaration in a way that thrilled the whole audience.

Annael Collins, '94, gave a five minute speech in which she humorously depicted the various characters that may be seen hurry ing across the Campus to eight o'clock recitation.

The audience next enjoyed a violin solo by Miss Larrabee after which Elizabeth Jones, '96, gave a declaration. "Pomona Prison," The section was left, otherwise it was very good indeed for the ministry of the moment.

The debate of the evening was on the question, "Is the present financial distress due to the election of a Democratic Congress?" It was affirmed by Marion Davies, '96, and Fanny Davis, '96, and denied by Helen Stewart, '96, and Frances Church, '96. Miss Davis talked naturally and well but was not quite systematic enough in marshalling her points. Miss Stewart wander­ed about too much in the first part but during the last part she made some of the best points made during the whole debate. Miss Davis talked well and held the interest of her auid, once from the beginning to end as did Miss Church who came after her.}

Jose Corlett then gave a decla­ration. This was Miss Corlett's first appearance on a Hesperian pro­gram and her declaration showed her through acquaintance. The pro­gram was closed by an instrumental duet by Misses Kleeberger and Wood.

S. K. STEVENS, '96, received the nomination of the People's party of the county for Superintendent of Schools, last Saturday.
A good motto for the young gentlemen of S. U., or any other young gentlemen for that matter, to follow, is the old saw that "what's worth doing at all is worth doing well." And this principle works as creditably when it comes to military drill in the school battalion as it does anywhere. Probably the tendency is not so marked now as it will be later on in the year, but there is always a number of men who are inclined to show their distaste for military drill, and their carelessness for proficiency along that line by showing bearing in the ranks and dilatory movements. Such behavior may afford a balm to the ruffled sensibilities of the individual, but it entails a greater loss, and should be classed among the actions of the man who cut off his nose to spite his face. Headlessness during the drill period means the taking of a dead weight to the individual, cripples the company in its race for the prize banner, and lowers the efficiency of the battalion as a whole. The man who drags himself over the campus simply because he must keep up with the company, is playing a losing game with himself, is imposing on his fellows, and is cheating in the extreme. The drill hour can be made as valuable if not more valuable than any other hour in the day by attention and promptness in rendering commands. In compiling the S. U. Directors last week, our attention was called to the fact that the Base-Ball Team has as yet no Manager. Now S. U. is to have a base-ball team next spring that will be in any way creditable to the Institution a Manager should be selected at once. Base-ball teams cannot be developed in a day. In football it has been U. I.'s greatest weakness in athletics and oratory that everything is put off until the last minute and then it is thought that by hard training and great enthusiasm victories can be won. It takes more than enthusiasm to win a foot-ball game or an oratorical contest. It takes ability and that of a kind which usually has to be developed and such development comes slowly. Let us begin now and possibly next year we can retrieve the defeats of last year.

We wish to call the attention of the management at Close Hall to the unfinished condition of the reading room, and the utter want of system in the arrangement of the periodicals and papers kept there. Of course we all recognize the difficulties which lay in the way of getting the room cleaned and papered at the beginning of the term, and appreciate that this unsettled condition of things could not be helped for a time; but certainly four weeks is too long. This reading room had come to be the common resort of a very large number of students who had a few leisure moments in which to glance over a daily paper or to read some one of the many standard magazines which were kept on its shelves. And we regret that from a sheer inability to find the paper they want in the heterogeneous mass which has littered up the one reading table in the room during the past few weeks, many of these students have been driven to spend their leisure time in other places.

We do not wish to unduly criticize, but we do think that it is high time the magazine shelves were put in their places, and some effort made to keep the various journals in their proper places, so that members of the association and their friends may enjoy the privileges of this reading room as they formerly did.

"The Inside Track" was presented to a large and well pleased audience by the Wilson Theatre, Oct. last evening. The different characters were well portrayed, the dialogue bright, and the plot and climaxes very entertaining. Several neat and pleasing specialties were introduced by Miss Minnie Phelps and Mr. Ed Wheeler. Taking everything into consideration, the company, play, stage settings, etc., were up to the standard, and gave a great deal better satisfaction than some more pretentious companies. They should be well patronized throughout the week.
