The Historical Essay.

Physical Training.

There are many who still see with apprehension the proportions which physical training has assumed among the higher institutions of learning, and doubt the ability of the great attention paid to athletics, especially in the inter-collegiate games. These are the men who remember when students passed their courses of study and came forth well-equipped for the strenuous life without these artificial aids, at least, without any scientific training in the sports of youth. If the hard knock is occasionally after he got his honor, there was no suspicion that his education was not properly prepared. In fact, a generation or so ago most boys were brought up to take some side in the industries of the farm or shop, when they were preparing for college.

It is not so very long ago that work for well-do boys went out of fashion. The not distant professors of the day who now could be considered luxuriously heated rooms of rooms used to saw their own wood and look it up, and the members of the horse about which they read, they could fully appreciate. Indeed, in some cases, professors and presidents made daily stunts if uncodified on their own woodpits, and was not on the level with the one not beneath the dignity of the science. That the giants of those days who became famous in the law, in the pulpit, and in any other way whose boyhood had been hardened and invigorated and those who look back to those days with regret, and query whether modern athletics will produce a race of men like the old civil service.

But the question is not a practical one. Matters have changed, the whole social order has changed, and the modern scheme of education has to adapt itself to the new conditions. That athletics is a necessary part of the scheme of education can no longer be doubted, it remains to ask, is it the change before the time, that how a sound vigorous body is essential to the best mental training and achievement. Those who are foremost in athletics are foremost in the educational struggle for position in life, and they are generally not lacking in other qualities. Those who devote themselves to athletics with an almost professional zeal must be considered superior to those who only are every sort of dissipation for hidden them, but they must live of absolute altruism without and tempestuous, opulent, and and character, of discipline. This habit of self-control, this subdivision of all must, and the highest educational value to them. But not to them alone. They set the standard of conduct in college. Just the standard, and is that of health, of manliness, of self-control.

The hero of the college is the student who wins trophies for his alma mater by the use of the green field. It is he who sets the fashion and gives the tone to college life, and it is followed the reading of the paper was. To this standard every man in college is more or less desirous of attaining. Even though he does not expect to become a great athlete or a public competitor in the games. With this standard was made the college games real trials of skill and strength, and set a standard for the country and of honor and honorable competition far removed from any public games and races that have not even the merit of being games of chance. Charles Dudley Warner in his Magazine for November. Continued.)

American History Seminary.

At the meeting of this seminary Thursday afternoon, L. L. Johnston, read a paper on "The Discoveries of the Spaniards West and North of the City of Mexico." The writer first made up the Spanish discoveries below the Pacific coast, and discussed them at some length. The second part of the paper had to do with the discoveries among the Pacific Spanish or the Seminaries in New Mexico and Arizona. The discussion which followed this paper was on the probable origin and civilization of the Pacific Indians. The main point brought out was that these points of his opponent. The question was not as to the existence or absence of these W. L. Cowen, 94, had a paper prepared on "The Methods of Spanish Civilization." But the reading of the paper was postponed to the next meeting of the seminary, which will occur Tuesday, November 26th, because the teacher was absent from the regular day for the meeting will be Thanksgiving.

"The Harlot's Progress." This was the first appearance of Mr. Moore and it was a credit to himself and the society. The motion was a thoughtul production, well written and forcibly delivered. "An Address" was rendered by J. W. Lovell with very good effect. The debate was on the question: "Resolved, That it would be better for prast to return to moral form of government." Mr. Revell the first speaker on the affirmative started out with the statement that "A good monarchy is better than a poor Democracy," which was reviewed the history of Israel and the government under Rom Pedro. The property of the government under the monarchy was dwelt upon to some extent. It was claimed that the people were in control of themselves and self-government. The elections are carried on in many places under the protection of armed force. The people are accustomed to monarchy, unintelligent, and a part were uncivilized.

Mr. Fracker on the negative proposed to answer the points of his opponent. He denied the assertion that the Britains did not love their country; on the other hand lose of his country is phenomenon. They occupy a position equal and in some respects superior to other countries in education. The speaker acknowledged the ability and splendid career of Jos. D. Wegel but denied that he should have all the credit.

Mr. Beck advanced good points in support of the affirmative and its refutation of points of his opponent, and will not permit a systematic, continuous every night, and still be able to make a good key reply. The debate was decided in the negative.

Medical Department.

The attendance was full at the Delta Mu Quiz Wednesday evening. The good quizzes were given on Surgery, Bordering the determination of Professor Shimer and McLaughlin respectively. Professor Middleton was unable to be present at his surgical clinic Thursday on account of being unavoidably detained in Davenport. The attendance at the women's symposium, held at the University of Iowa, was for some reason been very poor. A sufficient number have entered the classes but if they would only attend regularly then there would be no reason for complaints. The old excuse of "no time" may be given, but if this argument is considered it will be found that it is made of its force since that hour is seldom used with profit. The student is usually exhausted after a day's recitation and study and this hour of vigorous physical exercise but what is needed to prepare one for properly utilizing the evening study hours.

In glancing at the election returns from over the State, we notice the large number of old W. U. I. students who have been elected to positions of honor. This emphasizes the fact that former students of this institution have a large share in the affairs of the community. In this there is great consolation for those who have been lamenting the niggardly appropriations made to the university in the past. It is natural to believe that the men who have gone out from here will comprehend the importance, the necessity of higher education and surely they will not have the illiberality to deny their sons as comparatively good advantages in the work of life as they themselves have had. We hope that a wise policy will be adopted by the coming Assembly with regard to the State institutions of learning; and that the legislatures will realize that when it comes to practical legislation for the State, higher education is a vital subject for their consideration.
