Medical Department.

The recent report of the Board of Regents shows that for the two years 1893-95 the income of the Medical Department has been $17,918.69, while the expenditure has been $28,320.45, which is the largest expenditure of any department at the University during the given time. Great credit should be given the department for the supply of anatomical material used by the Homeopathic and Dental departments, all of which, as well as the demonstrator's salary, is now charged to the Medical. The Medical Department professors lecture to the Medical, Homeopathic and Dental students in Anatomy, Chemistry and Pathology, without distinction, and partly so in Physiology, Materia Medica and Histology, also to the Pharmacy students in Materia Medica. This comparatively lessens the expenses of the other departments.

The city Board of Health of St. Louis furnishes anti-toxine free to all the doctors of the city for use in diphtheria.

The senior class of Ann Arbor, Mich., have elected a Chinese lady secretary of their class.

Senior—"Excuse me, Professor, but can you see a nucleus with a common microscope?"

Professor—"No, you cannot."

President Elliot, in his recent address before the medical alumni association of Harvard, recommended that after 1900 a college degree of B. S. or A. B. be the lowest requirement to admission to Harvard Medical school. He says the present requirements are altogether too low. He also recommends that the curriculum be enlarged and broadened so that students may choose several elective studies.

In Montana, after July 1, 1898, no one can practice medicine who has not graduated from a full four years' course.

Three of the foremost lady graduates of Ann Arbor, Mich., are doctors, namely: E. J. Howan King, '77, of Tientsin, China,—she had done more to introduce surgery and medicine into China than any other person; E. J. Mosher, '75, and Lucy Hall Brown.

The new hospital has greatly increased the clinical advantages at Ann Arbor. The report shows that there are many advantages in having a hospital controlled by the school that cannot be obtained in private hospitals. We welcome the day when our Medical Department will be thus equally blessed.

The pathological laboratory is soon to be supplied with a new set of storm windows.

Dr. Bierring will have a report on a post mortem in the next issue of the Tri-State Medical Journal, of St. Louis.

Dr. Guthrie did not meet his classes this week, Tuesday being election day and the Medical Department was dismissed till Wednesday morning.

A large number of the boys who went home to vote returned yesterday and to-day.

Mr. Wm. Corns went home Tuesday to stay over Sunday.

Miss O'Keefe is visiting her brother of the Senior class a few days this week.

Medical and Homeopathic students are now busy with careful study of muscular tissue in the histological laboratory.

Drs. Whities and Hutchinson were last week voted into the Johnson County Medical Association.

Some of the Juniors commence dissecting this week.

Mr. Kegil, M. '97, returned yesterday from Walcott, Iowa, where he was called by request of Dr. T. Byrems, last week, to take charge of the doctor's practice for a week.

Irving.

Irving's ever increasing audiences speak louder than words as to the quality of her programs, and last Friday night was no exception to the rule of large audiences and good programs.

After Professor Berryhill opened the program with a violin solo, Mr. Swisher declaimed, "She Would be a Mason." Criticism is not possible. No greater compliment can be paid to Mr. Swisher than to say he is as good a declaimer as he is a debater.

Mr. Bailey, one of the new Irvings, next appeared in an oration, "The Partition of Poland." His production was characterized by fine composition and excellent thought.

The debate of the evening was on the question, "Resolved, that the present theory of the law of inheritance is right in principle."

Mr. Clements, another of Irving's new members, made a strong opening for the affirmative. His argument showed careful preparation and clearly demonstrated his good qualities as a debater.

Mr. Hamann opened the argument for the negative making a very clear and forcible speech. He established that a suitable reform in this line would remove a large and idle class, who squander wealth and do nothing for the good of society. The government has a right for a share in such wealth.

Mr. Seaman then closed for the affirmative. He argued that the state is more able to take care of itself than the infant, and that inequalities are a benefit to society. Mr. Seaman had some very good points that would have been improved by a more forcible delivery.

Mr. Frailey then closed the debate in his usual fine manner, giving a very clear analysis of the theory of inheritance. He stated that inasmuch as wealth is a reward of the state for superior ability it should not be used as power by inferior ability. Such a system gives rise to the extension of class rule and prevents all from standing on equal footing.

The debate was decided in favor of the negative.

The declamation by Mr. Whiting, "The Monster Cannon," was excellent. It is useless to attempt to criticize Mr. Whiting's production, all are ever of the highest order.

Mr. Biggs closed the program with a speech on "The Independent Voter," and succeeded in holding the undivided attention of the audience. Mr. Biggs is to be commended on introducing the political issues of the day in the new light in which he treated them. As a deep thinker and forcible speaker he is one of the foremost men in the University.

It would not be out of place here to remark on the excellent showing of the new men in Irving. All that have yet been on the program have made strong appearances. Judging the remainder of the new men by those who have been tried and not found wanting, it is safe to say the future of Irving is as secure as is the present.

EDITORS VIDETTE-REPORTER:

I have read with interest your recent articles on the foot ball situation and while I agree with you that our team has had a great many disadvantages in various ways, I nevertheless believe that there are several weak points which can be remedied at once if the proper parties do the right thing.

In the first place, taking the team as a whole, I believe that the game with Parsons College should not have been played, as the victory over this unimportant team caused our men to overestimate their own playing abilities, and to think that we had a winning team this year—a theory which has unfortunately been disproved in the last three games our team has played.

I do not wish to be too hard on the boys, especially after such a defeat as they met with Saturday, but I do not believe that they enter into the spirit of the game enough. There seems to be too much timidity and fear of getting hurt, caused principally by the inexperience of many of our players.

There are several weak points on the line which must be strengthened if we expect to keep our opponents from making great gains on us. While I have great confidence in Captain Leighton, I do not believe there is any foot ball player living who can successfully play the three positions of right guard, right tackle, and full back in three consecutive games, especially when he is not used to the positions. The sooner Leighton gets back to his old position of right guard, and gets a field captain behind the line, the better it will be for our team. Scripture or Thomas could either one of them play on the line with advantage, while Chase distinguished himself in the position of half back last Saturday against Wilton, and should be given a trial. Sawyer seems the most available man for quarter-back.

The boys are agitating the question of getting a coach for the rest of the season, and while the team would probably receive much good instruction, the time is limited and it is doubtful if it would result in much advantage at this late hour. Our team work cannot be good if the men do not play their positions, and if they are not allowed to play their positions then something is wrong.

EDITOR VIDETTE-REPORTER:

An article in your paper of the 15th of last month, entitled "The University and the Legislature," inspires me to add a word to the strong points made in the article named.

I will amplify one point and emphasize it if I can, namely, that "the Medical Department is demanding a hospital and there is absolutely no way of avoiding this necessity." I have taken the liberty to italicize certain words in the quotation to avoid prolixity. I do not wish to be considered narrow in thus emphasizing or be thought lacking in loyal friendship for other departments quite as much in need of more room. I will discuss, however, the Medical aspect of the question, and leave to the other phases of the "want column."

The flood tide of 200 matriculants has at last been reached. Whether it is to be maintained at this gratifying point and increased materially, or is to ebb toward less worthy institutions, depends much upon whether our legislators are fully awake this winter to the fact that Iowa has within easy reach a total attendance soon of 2,000 and later of 3,000 students—provided adequate room to house them is furnished. A new, thoroughly modern and well equipped hospital costing from $50,000 to $75,000 means 300 students in the Medical Department. That is an increase of 50 per cent of the present attendance and corresponding increase of income. The same Faculty could very nearly instruct the 300, instead of 200, as now, thereby making the increased income nearly net.

The present inadequate facilities could be made a part of the system of hospitals thus established, including the Homeopathic, by setting the present city hospital apart as a State Lying-in Hospital. To the teaching then could be added an excellent general Training School for Nurses. The Medical, Gynaecological, Surgical, Ophthalmological and other clinics would then be rich in material for illustrative purposes, and the already enthusiastic and loyal alumni of the Medical Department would never cease to bless us. "Tis a consummation devoutly to be wished," is it not? Who then could find it in his heart to do other than pray for it, speak and write words for it, and sit up nights for it if needs be. Yours expectantly,
C.

It is probable that the Amateur Athletic Union, at its meeting in New York Nov. 21, will attempt to take control of the foot ball played by amateur athletic association teams. In several of the large athletic clubs there is a disposition to ignore the rules of amateur sport. Foot ball men who have been paid either for coaching or playing will be barred from A. A. U. contests. They are really professionals but parade as amateurs. The question will undoubtedly be taken up at the November meeting, and the professionals will be barred out of amateur contests thereafter.—Ex.

According to careful estimates, three hours of study wear out the body more than a whole day of physical exercise.—Ex. Let our Freshmen take warning.

The preliminary debate to the Chicago contest occurs to-morrow night at the Opera House. There will, of course, be no programs given at the society halls, and it is earnestly hoped that there will be a large audience at the Opera House to encourage the contestants. The societies have thought best to charge no admission fee in order to secure a good attendance, and we trust their efforts in guaranteeing the expense of the contest will be rewarded in the manner they desire. These contests in the past have been productive of much good to the societies, and this year a special effort is being made to make them a feature of the year's work. It is fair to expect from the importance of the coming debate that all the representatives of the two societies are thoroughly prepared to render the discussion profitable and entertaining.

The present year promises to be of unusual interest among the literary societies, and we expect to see much improvement in the literary standard of the University. Already the strife is on, and to-morrow night's contest will decide who is to represent us in the coming debate with Chicago. Another debate is arranged with Minnesota, and it is with pleasure that we note in the eastern college papers that "The University of Iowa will debate with Minnesota and Chicago Universities this year." We are attracting notice abroad and must keep our reputation good. Now is the time also when the contestants for the oratorical contest should be at work on their productions. We understand there are several men in the Law societies who would do well in this contest, and hope to see them write orations for the contest. The University must be well represented if we expect to win any honors in the oratorical line.

The two oldest literary societies,

Zetagathian and Irving, have now each reached their constitutional limit in membership. There are still scores of Collegiate students who would like to do literary work and have not the opportunity of belonging to a society. Three years ago the Laws had nothing that could be called a society, but now have three literary organizations, all of which are in a flourishing condition. We believe the period of our growth has been reached where it would be justifiable to start another literary society for Collegiate students.

The Republican, of this city, says: "A thrilling problem in simple mathematics presents itself to the friends of the 'Varsity foot ball team. Last year the S. U. I. eleven defeated Kansas 14 to 12. Missouri defeated our team 32 to 6, and Nebraska defeated it 36 to 0. Now, if Kansas beat the local eleven 52 to 0 this year, what will Missouri and Nebraska do? One of these games will be played in two weeks and one on Thanksgiving Day." The same paper also has this incident to relate which occurred on the southern trip: "Down in Cameron, Mo., the University foot ball team (and substitutes) eighteen in number, sat down to a hotel table, to which the landlord started to bring eighteen telegraph-ordered meals. When he set his eyes on Kinney Holbrook, the unreconstructed Southerner declared that the colored player would have to eat in the kitchen, whereupon the boys arose in a body and left the hotel. The traveling men in the train which had carried the team, the conductor and other trainmen also refused to patronize the 'Know Nothing,' and only one supper out of the twenty-five prepared was served."

The joint debate which takes place to-morrow evening will be an interesting and hotly-contested one. Both societies are represented by strong men and, judging from present indications, this will be one of the best held in the history of the societies.

CALL ON BLOOM & MAYER FOR CLOTHING AND HATS.

Erodelphian.

North Hall was again well filled last Saturday evening, the occasion being one of Erodelphian's programs.

A vocal solo by Mr. Hershire opened a most interesting program. After this, Miss Ethel Perkins gave a declamation entitled "Grandmother's Story of Bunker Hill." This was Miss Perkin's first appearance in Erodelphian, but judging from her success the society may expect much of its new members.

The next number was a declamation by Miss Minerva Lowman, entitled "The Two Church Builders." This piece is very touching and was well rendered by Miss Lowman.

Instead of the usual debate, the audience was entertained by a discussion between Bertha Remley and Maud Butler. The question, "Can a broader culture be obtained by a college education than by an equal amount of time and money spent in travel," was ably handled, Miss Remley bringing forth carefully prepared arguments for the affirmative, and Miss Butler for the negative.

Miss Mae Freeman then gave "The Courtier," in a very entertaining manner.

Following this was a declamation, "Martha Virginia's Hand," by Miss Ethel Charlton. Miss Charlton spoke with her usual ease and grace, and her selection was well appreciated by the audience.

Next on the program was a piano solo by Miss Barrett, which made a pleasing diversion.

Miss Beulah MacFarland then gave a most interesting speech on "The New Woman." Miss MacFarland described first the woman of past generations, then the woman who is commonly known as the "new woman," and closed with a beautiful tribute to the ideal new woman.

The last number on the program was a declamation by Miss Mittie Pile entitled "Rivermouth Rocks." This piece is a beautiful selection and to those who have ever heard Miss Pile it is needless to say that she did it justice.

The program was very good and worthy of the efforts of Erodelphian's members.

Notice.

Professor Charles A. Keffer, formerly a member of the Faculty of the University of Missouri, Acting Chief of Division of Forestry, Agricultural Department, Washington, D.
