VOL. 28.

IOWA CITY, IOWA, SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 1896.

S. U. I., Grinnell 3

The postponed exhibition game between Grinnell and S. U. I. was played off this afternoon, and was a fine exhibition ball game. The success of Nemesis was certainly in favor of our management, as the day was a perfect beauty. There was a large crowd on hand and great enthusiasm prevailed.

With today's game the season's work was fully started, and it is to be hoped that the same college spirit may be noted in all the games of the season. Old gold was to be seen everywhere, and when a phenomenal play was made the enthusiastic crowd went wild. "The ladies were present in large numbers, and joyfully waved their old gold." The make up of the teams was as follows:

S. U. I. Grinnell 3

_ 7

Grinnell:

Earned run

Brownlie 3, Haley 2, Ingham 2, Moser 1.

Grinnell:

Bases on balls - Davis 3; Leighton 1.

Mr. Smith's Returns.

The following is from the Daily Reporter:

Charles L. Smith returned Wednesday morning to Iowa City, stopping on his way to listen to Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith left Iowa City two years ago — Dec. 28, 1893. He has pursued his researches for the benefit of the University's Science Department, and incidentally for the great benefit of the public. He has been most successful, both in health and work. His labors have been chiefly in Mexico and Arizona. Many of the plants he collected are of great scientific value.

In all Mr. Smith has secured 1,000 species of flowering plants and ferns, and a couple of hundred species of fungi. At Oaxaca he collected 82 species. Many of the plants are of great scientific value, and the work is well worth the cost.

Miss Morris Brown is county attorney of Lee County, N. D. W. T. Price is practicing law at El-

There is, perhaps, no matter in which the decline of military sentiment in the present century is more noticeable than in college life. The youth of our land have become so warlike in these "piping times of peace" that they look upon the assuming of arms three times per week with far less longing than might be wished. Indeed some have been heard openly to attack, that is verbally, the whole system of regulations by which they are compelled to don the stern trappings of war and do service on the campus three hours per week. This from the standpoint of an admirer of the military science is undoubtedly one of the most discouraging indications of the present day. Be that as it may, "it is a condition and not a theory that confines us," and in view of the condition anything which can tend to lessen the abhorrent sentiment of our youths is certainly to be commended. The Battalion is to have a trip to Cedar Rapids Tuesday. No doubt it will be an enjoyable occasion and the Battalion is not to be envied because it has nobly deserved the treat in view of the suppression of the belligerent sentiments of its members.

While we have been giving a good deal of attention to the development of our resources in formal discussions, and no doubt we have done well in that direction, it may be questioned whether there is at the present time sufficient stress laid upon the importance of purely expository speaking. Nothing need be said as regards the importance of this art. Indeed it is evidently of as much value as that of preparing a logical argument with due preparation, and it is a far less common accomplishment as well.

It may be impracticable to introduce such a feature into the program of our literary societies on account of the audiences which they entertain each week as to do so extraneous speaking would tend rapidly to diminish the attendance. We believe, however, that more attention should be given to the matter and that we are in need of organizations with that purpose in view. The societies usually conduct Saturday sessions, but too often these are abandoned by reason of the late sessions of the previous night. The regular debates each week do no doubt are excellent practice in this direction, but there is always a tendency to make them formal.

Certainly so important a feature of literary training should not be neglected if it can be accomplished in any possible manner. Some mention was made some time ago of an extemporaneous joint debate, of which the winner was to receive a valuable prize in books. We hope the matter has not been abandoned, as it would undoubtedly prove an incentive of which we stand in need.

It should be remembered that improvement in extemporaneous speaking serves as direct and valuable training in all other descriptions of public discourse. It is in that sense doubly important.

No class meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, at T. v. College, in Close Hall. Many of the members go to Cedar Rapids, so meeting is postponed.

CHAS G. BURLING, Pres.

Ohio University is now one of the schools that offer a course in journalism. The course is two years long. All the work is in the History and Political Science and English departments, thus putting no additional expense on the University. In this course the English department requires considerable more essay writing and news articles than in the other courses, but, aside from this, there is no more in the course than could be provided at any school which has strong Political Science and English departments. Since the course costs the University but little, and there is a demand for it, we see no reason for not adding a new course of two to the above named departments and establish such a course.—M. S. U. Independent.

The Kent College of Law

The Kent College of Law, located at 1143 Washington St., is one of the most prestigious law schools in the Midwest. The college offers a wide range of legal education programs, including undergraduate, graduate, and continuing legal education courses.

The curriculum includes courses in legal theory, legal history, legal practice, and legal ethics. The college is particularly known for its focus on practical legal education, with a strong emphasis on experiential learning.

The college is home to a number of legal journals, including the Kent Law Review, which is one of the most respected legal journals in the country.

For more information, please visit the Kent College of Law website or contact the admissions office at 1143 Washington St.
The Western College team will be in attendance in Chicago this Saturday morning to spend one optical slide.

The Senior took the lead from the Botany class.

The last of the series of Kappa receptions occurred Friday evening at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Sawyer, and all who were fortunate enough to be present report a delightful time.

The Young Men's Meeting, Sunday, April 26, will be addressed by Hon. Milton Remley, subject, "The Trial of Christ from a Legal Standpoint." This will be well worth hearing, and Mr. Remley should have a large audience.

The debate at A. M. E. Church, Thursday night, subject: "Which is the mother of the chickens, the hen that lays the egg, or the hen that hatches it?" attracted quite a number of students ambitious to perfect themselves in oratory and debate.

Home Field Day. The annual Spring Field Day will be held at the fair grounds, Friday, May 1st; games called at 2 p.m. The class obtaining the largest number of points will hold the class cup for the coming year, and will also practically decide on the team to represent us in the coming Spring Field Meet at Grinnell, in State Meet, and at Chicago. Entries in the various events close Tuesday noon. All who intend to contest must hand their names to the captain or manager before that date. Admission, 20 cents. Carriages and grandstand free.

Senior vs. Junior Law. The Senior and Junior Law classes played their second game of ball this morning at the ball park. A goodly crowd was in attendance and great enthusiasm was displayed by the members of the classes represented. The Seniors took the lead from the juniors and maintained it to the finish, the final score being: Seniors, 14. Juniors, 10.

Notice. All Seniors must appear at Coover's Studio for photos before May 10th.
