Dr. Pickard's Address.

The following extract from Dr. Pickard's address, is taken from the Republican.

"An intensely interested audience, composed of young men who seek the truth "with whole hearts," listened to one of Dr. J. L. Pickard's best addresses at Close Hall Sunday afternoon.

The patriarchal ex-president of the University is famous for his fatherly talk to young men, and the venerable educator is always as assured of a respectful hearing as his auditors are of a discourse well worth their closest attention.

Sunday's address was no exception, as the following excerpt will forcibly attest:

"The season of the year bids us think of life's forces in nature. The gathering in this hall turns my thought to life-forces in man, the master of nature.

"You, young men, are brought together for some common purpose—the pursuit of higher education. Has it occurred to you that there is a highest education worthy your pursuit?

"Sparta had a high ideal when she took the boy from his parents and trained him in habits of physical endurance—manly strength was her aim. No braver soldiers have ever served a nation's defense. Socrates and Seneca saw in man man's possibilities and philosophy gained brilliant defenders.

"But Paul recognized the highest ideal attainable by manhood, taking his inspiration from Jesus the Christ. He drew his illustrations from the athletic field, used all the resources known to a highly cultivated institution: that he foreclosed, which things were behind him pressed forward toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. He could boast of his high birth, high standing, and still find his highest joy in humble service of his fellow men.

"As I study Paul's life, I am impressed with three dominant elements in his character worthy of our cultivation. These are self-esteem, self-control and self-sacrifice.

"To self-esteem and self-control our forefathers are turned for this hour. No great success was ever wrought by the man who held his own powers in low esteem. Note that I say his own powers, a real possession, not one fancied. There is a wide difference between self-esteem and self-conceit. The former has a firm foundation; the latter has no visible means of support. For one is current coin in the world; the other is counterfeit, defrauding only the unwary and the ignorant. There is immense profit to the purchase of the latter at its real worth. If you can find sale for it at the value marked upon its face.

"Right here I meet with that quotation from Paul, 'Let each esteem other better than himself,' and ask for my reason for declaring that self-esteem was a prominent element in his character. I have not forgotten the passage nor have I forgotten that every comparative has its positive.

"How can one have a wicked opinion of his neighbor unless he have a good opinion of himself. So when Paul tells us, 'For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think.' Again does the comparative presuppose the positive—that it is the duty of every man to think as highly as he ought of himself. It is pity sincerely the young man who in his estimate of himself fails below the standard which God's wisdom has set. It is pity, young men, that this condition is so little understood and so little appreciated.

"There is the mechanism that can be compared in perfection of finish, in technical dexterity, in adaptation of its parts to its several uses, in exactness of balance to the human body which is possible to place too high an estimate upon such a possession. Self-esteem will prevent the strain which improper stimulus entails; will save the perversion of self-sacrifice; the degenerating by nicotine; will guard against the consequences which may arise from muscular fabrication by excessive training; will shield it from the effects of exposure."

Alumni Meeting.

The local Alumni Association of the University met in society hall last Wednesday evening, and spent a few hours in a very pleasant meeting. The association was well represented. County Superintendent, S. K. Stevenson, and the president of the association, presided. After the social part of the meeting an election was held.

The following are the officers chosen for the ensuing year:

President—A. G. Smith.

Vice-President—Miss Ella Ham.

Secretary—Miss Lala Hutchinson.

Treasurer—I. G. Pratt.

Executive Committee—Mrs. Rich Professor McConnell, W. M. Davis, E. J. Loomis, Chairman of the Committee on University Scholarship, reported in favor of one free scholarship by the association.

Philomathic.

The Philomathian Society gave its last program of the year Friday night, and it was a good one.

First on the program was a declamation by Mr. Bettens, which was an extract from Daniel Webster's famous speech in reply to Mr. Hayne, being well rendered.

Following this was a medley, rendered by Messes. Hughes and Butler, which elicited vociferous applause from the audience.

The debate on the question of which was the best manner of technical training, the apprenticeship or the technical school, was well supported on behalf of the affirmative by Messrs. Strohman and Meiser, and on behalf of the negative by Messrs. Meier and Ooson, the decision being for the negative.

The program closed with an address on 'Thomas Jefferson, by Wm. H. Hughes, which was lengthy and well listened to.

The officers elected for the next term are as follows: President, J. G. Marnan; Vice-President, P. F. Mann; Chairman Executive Committee, J. S. Bosnia; Corresponding Secretary, O. N. Olson; Recording Secretary, G. C. Meier; Treasurer, S. J. Hughes; Marshals, T. E. Graham and A. F. Strohman; Reporter, E. P. Bettem.

The society unanimously tendered a vote of thanks to Mr. John Mott for his efficient services and arduous efforts in founding and maintaining the society.

Although the University of California track team will not come east this year, there is every reason to believe that the meet of the W. J. C. A. A. in Chicago June 6, will be much department of what is going on.

There is no mechanism that can be compared in perfection of finish, in technical dexterity, in adaptation of its parts to its several uses, in exactness of balance to the human body which is possible to place too high an estimate upon such a possession. Self-esteem will prevent the strain which improper stimulus entails; will save the perversion of self-sacrifice; the degenerating by nicotine; will guard against the consequences which may arise from muscular fabrication by excessive training; will shield it from the effects of exposure.

Yasser Field Day.

The field day of the Iowa College Athletic Association was held at the college oval, Pougkeepsie, N. Y., thoughts that several of the winners at the State Meet would give good accounts of themselves, or that they might be expected to make a clean showing if repeated at Chicago. Nothing definite will be known as to what showing Iowa College will make until after State Field Day. But "Old Hawkeye" has made a creditable showing for herself in past years and there is good reason to believe, in view of the increasing interest that Ames, C. I. E., and Cornell are taking in track athletics, that several of the winners at the State Meet would give good accounts of themselves if sent into Chicago. So far it has been the only Iowa schools represented at the Western Meet. It is certainly to be hoped that the representatives of any of the other schools who have a fair chance of winning at Chicago will be sent in to make things hum for old Iowa—Scarlits and Blacks.

The excellent work of the track team last Saturday reflects great credit on the men composing it and no loss on those who have had the management of the work. Much time and energy was necessary to bring about the victory, and its achievement while being a source of pride to the University must also be a source of personal gratification to the gentlemen who have worked under some adverse circumstances to give us so excellent a team.

Though we have beaten Grinnell in the Dual Meet, so many complications will be introduced in the State Meet that it is impossible to forecast the result. It is natural to the defeated party to revert to what might have been the result if circumstances had been different, and consequently the admonitions of the defeated party of Saturday mean little. Nevertheless the combinations that are possible in the State Meet will allow some other institution the victory. Whether or not we win next Friday, one thing is certain, we have a track team that we may well have confidence in to do its very best.

No doubt if there could be some means discovered of impressing upon the minds of men the importance of conforming to an agreement to which they make the process of estimating many matters of moment might be made much more accurate. There seems no legitimate reason for us, when an individual says, he will do a thing, why he should pursue the same tenor of his way with no apparent concern as to whether it is done or not. If a paper is circumscribed regarding any matter and a man signs his name to it, it would seem there is sufficient justification to conclude he has calculated the result. Actual experience tends to establish another fact, however, and it is true that any one concerned in such a calculation generally finds it necessary to deduct about twenty-five per cent of the agreements as meaning nothing. If this state of affairs was so well known as to be harmless it would need no comment. It is usually discovered by bitter experience and that alone. Every year students who are placed in charge of various enterprises meet more or less of this disappointment, but of course have no means of preventing its repetition.

If the evil result is not of sufficient to prevent a student from stating he will go to a certain place under given conditions, and then backing out, or subscribe for a publication which he does not intend to take, there should be enough of native honesty in his make up to prevent the falsehood. It is much easier to reckon on that class which will do absolutely nothing in such matters, and say so plainly, than on those who say "yes" when they mean "no." Much more evil results from the calculation based on something which fails to materialize into any thing more substantial than a promise than on what is known, even if it be known to be unfavorable. It certainly is an admirable characteristic to take an interest in all worthy enterprises, but better not do that than give a seeming support which amounts to nothing.

To those to whom these remarks may seem pertinent we would commend a higher regard for promises when given. The parable of the two sons is quite applicable to this point. The one who said "I go sir," and "wont not," is no more worthy of imitation now than some centuries ago.

As far as we are able to learn, the parties protested at Grinnell are John, Chase, and Rush.

Grinnell is kicking most energetically against the admission of John C. Pratt as an athlete. The Upper Iowa University is also hostile. This is all well and good, and the ambitious little school would, we fear, be keeping him out of the State Field Meet and admitting him as an amateur immediately after in order that he might compete at Chicago. Truly consistency is a jewel of the first water.—I. A. C. Student.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications as they cannot be cured by any means. Deafness is caused by an inflamed catarrh of the mucus lining of the ear. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Few cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hahn's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

College Notes.

At the State University of Wisconsin last week a mass meeting was held to decide upon the adoption of the honor system of examinations. The committee appointed has written the resolutions in favor of the institution regarding the workings of the system.

The following, in regard to Maybury's performance at the spring field meet held at the University of Wisconsin, this week, is taken from the Cardinal: "In the 235, Maybury started at scratch and Downer, 97, and Montgomery, 70, each with a fifteen yard handicap. Maybury outstripped the other men within 40 yards of the finish and finished with a good lead. Downer started and Montgomery closed the second. Time was 225, reduced the record 0.1 and to the intercollegiate record."

These are active days for the athletic department of the University of Wisconsin. The Varsity and Freshman shell crew are hard at work and are showing splendid body form and blade work. The class gig crews have been doing regular training for the past month and the races promise to be no less exciting than those of previous years. The annual regatta on May 29 will undoubtedly attract more attention than formerly, as the coming Yale race has created an intense interest throughout the University. Cardinal.

An interesting article appears in a recent number of "Science" by Professor Jastrow, giving an account of certain tests which were made on the slight-of-hand performers, Hermann and Kollar. The object was to ascertain how far these men, who have an unusual degree of experiences, are better than the average individual in regards the quickness and accuracy of movements. The results on the whole show a very decided superiority, except in respect of the quickness with which a movement may follow a signal, and the number of movements which may be made within a certain time; but a number of interesting details are given in the article.—Ex.
