Prizes for Linguists.

The American Institute of Scientific Literature offers prizes in Hebrew, New Testament Greek, and the Old and New Testament in English. In each of these subjects there will be given one first-prize of $100 and one second prize of $50. The examinations are offered without fee and are open to all college students and to all '96 students entering the first year class in a Theological Seminary in the autumn of 1897.

The examinations will be held in the institution in which the candidate is a student on March 10, 1897. The examinations will be conducted by a member of the faculty in each institution in which an examination is to be held. The questions, under seal, twenty in number, furnished the examiner by the institute, will be opened in the presence of the class, in a room which he shall name. Three consecutive hours at such a period of the day as shall be most convenient for examiner and candidates will be allowed for each examination.

In connection with each examination the best twelve papers will be selected and these twelve will be submitted to a committee of competent judges for further selection. All possible precautions will be taken in order that the judges may have no clue to the identity of the writers. The prizes will be awarded solely on the intrinsic merit of the papers.

Further information and forms of application may be obtained from the American Institute of Sacred Literature, Hyde Park, Ill.

Chicago's Eastern Trip.

Chicago on her eastern trip won from Cornell and Pennsylvania, but lost her games with Orange Athletic Club, Yale and Harvard. Of these, the first three reflected great credit upon Chicago and the West; at Yale the team did not play its game and was badly defeated.

In an interview at Detroit, Professor Stagg said that he was hardly satisfied with the trip. He said: "The Yale game was not at all satisfactory and spoiled the effect of the entire trip. There, from some inexplicable reason, the team utterly collapsed and played at times in a manner which would hardly do credit to a grammar school." He said further: "I think that Chicago had the misfortune of meeting all of the teams, especially Harvard, when they were playing at their best. As a whole a good impression was made for Western baseball, particularly in the first three games of the series. Chicago's greatest weakness was in not having a pitcher on whom she could absolutely depend to pitch a good game."

When asked to compare the Michigan team with the teams of the East, he gave Watkins a great, but at the same time, well earned compliment. In the first place Michigan is much stronger in the box than any team Chicago met on her trip. In fielding Harvard and Yale in particular showed up wonderfully well, but at the same time, Michigan unquestionably plays as strong a fielding game as any of these teams. In batting also, I would not say that Michigan was not as strong as the strongest we met in the East."

When asked what he considered Michigan's chances if she had taken an eastern trip, he said: "Of course it is hard to tell what would be done on such a trip, but I think she would probably make a better showing than Chicago." This, coming from Professor Stagg at this time, cannot but show that he has a very wholesome respect for Michigan's playing, and it is moreover a high compliment to Sexton's coaching and to the individual work of every man on the team.—U. of M. Daily.

Apropos of the wide-spread interest in the "respiration calorimeter" experiments conducted by Professor Atwater, at the Wesleyan University, the Review of Reviews for June publishes an exhaustive account of Professor Atwater's investigations on the subject of foods. It is not generally known that this inquiry is being prosecuted under the auspices of the national government. The Review article sums up the results thus far reached. It has been found that as a people we are extravagant in the purchase of foods, that we consume too much fat and too little of the flesh-forming substances, such as the gluten of wheat, that we suffer from overheating, and that our methods of cooking are generally faulty. As to the prospects of food supply for future populations, the conclusion is very optimistic. It is believed that the densest population will never be able to consume the vegetable growths made possible in the future to say nothing of artificial manufacture of foods. The political situation in the United States on the eve of the Presidential nominating conventions is admirably covered by this number in its departments of "The Progress of the World," "Current History in Caricature," and "Record of Current Events." Prospective convention-goers will be greatly interested in Dr. Shaw's sketch of "St. Louis: This Year's Convention City." Apropos of this season's rush of gold-seekers to Alaska this month's issue presents an authoritative description of the gold-fields of Alaska prepared by a member of the staff of the U. S. Geological Survey.

College Notes.

The M. S. U. Independent comes out with a splendid commencement number. It contains 28 pages and has a fine colored cover.

Several students of the University of Chicago have been suspended for "cutting gym." It appears, unfortunately, that many of them are students who spend all available time in working to support themselves.—Ex.

Chaucer describes men and things as they are; Shakespeare, as they would be under the circumstances; Spencer, as he would wish them to be; Byron, as they ought not to be; and Shelley, as they never can be.—Ex.

Letters received at Yale University say that important discoveries have been made in the excavations at Corinth under the auspices of the American School at Athens. The site of the ancient city has been found in a number of places. A broad, paved street has been laid bare, and a great number of red figures and vases of an exceedingly ancient period have been found. It was necessary to excavate at great depth, sometimes reaching nearly thirty feet below the surface.

The recent assemblage of delegates from many educational institutions at Chicago, avowedly in the interest of politics, is a righteous movement. The college man is needed in politics, and as one speaker remarked: "When college enthusiasm gets into politics, rottenness will get out." The college man is too apt to hold himself aloof from political circles on account of corruption found there until the ward politician has thoroughly contaminated the whole municipality, and then he is free to expound his theoretical remedies in oration and elsewhere. If politics are corrupt, college men should be first to actively aid in the purification.—The Earhamite.

The experience of a number of ball games suggests the question as to whether it would not be better to have but one umpire in our intercollegiate games, and be a disinterested man hired for the purpose. We would not have this considered a complaint against those whom we have asked to umpire for us, because, if we do say it, we believe that our ability to furnish an umpire who will let his fairness be master of his loyalty is reasonably well established. Yet experience shows that this system of umpiring is not universally practical. That the other way is more nearly so is shown by the results obtained in other leagues. It is unsatisfactory to lose a game when more just umpiring might have changed the outcome. It should be just as unsatisfactory to win a game under the circumstances. We believe that if the Iowa Intercollegiate Baseball Association should make this change they would be slow to again resort to the present custom.—The Cornellian.

THE VIDETTE REPORTER,

The delay of Chicago University in submitting the question for debate next year is causing considerable annoyance. The local secretary has written several times for it with no success. We trust Chicago has not concluded to give up the contest as it is a matter which we had hoped would be of annual occurrence.

It will be remembered that we sent a question last year before school closed and received the result of choice of sides soon after vacation began; this allowed much more time for preparation than otherwise could have been gained, and the debate was very successful. There is altogether too little of business principle in the conduct of these matters. Delay is quite as detrimental to the success of a debate as to transaction of other business. Chicago should, if possible, be prevailed upon to hurry up matters immediately.

In some respects, no doubt, the popular impression that mankind, today, enjoys a greater degree of liberty than formerly, is well founded. Individuals are less restricted as to action, by government interference, and less circumscribed by custom. Nevertheless, in view of the ever growing number of organizations with governments of their own, and in view of the popularity of such organizations, it is doubtful if men were ever so much governed before. Every day business furnishes abundant illustrations of this fact. It is scarcely possible to discover an artizan or indeed a man of any class who is not subject to rules whose stringency materially effects the trend of his movements. It is true that such rules and regulations are usually in part the product of the minds they govern, but that scarcely divorces them from suspicion of tyranny in many cases.

College life, as usual, illustrates its phase of social activity in a manner not radically different. The vast number of organizations maintained by students is a characterizing feature of modern education.

No doubt there is much to be said in defense of organized effort toward the accomplishment of any legitimate end. Indeed, without organization, nowadays, little can be accomplished.

The tendency, however, which it seems is becoming more marked continually, to complicate rules and multiply regulations on every hand, is not a feature of organization which is commendable. Whether it be in athletics, or in any thing else, no good can arise from too much government. So soon as regulations are made for any thing unnecessary they defeat the end for which they were designed.

If complications are introduced in rules proportionately as the importance of athletics increases, it will not be surprising in a few years if the legal profession shall maintain a subdivision known as "Athletic Lawyers." Indeed any one who now is able to maintain his reputation as an authority on such rules is little less than a natural jurist. To the uninitiated there seems some suspicion of foolishness in the matter. It is probably no more, however, than the manifestation of a general tendency in this particular line.

In the recent gift which Mr. Deering made to Northwestern University she has received a noble offering from a noble benefactor. A resident of this city for years, the donor has seen the growth of the institution which has been to him as a charge, and in his declining years, he has seen the greatness and power of that institution, we may indeed rejoice that he has seen fit to add to that power by such a generous donation. As indirect recipients of the gift, we, the students, cannot too fully show our appreciation to Mr. Deering. The coming of so large a sum, free from any but the most helpful stipulations, is indeed fortunate, and we are to be congratulated upon having such a noble and generous benefactor of our institution as Mr. William Deering.—Northwestern.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

HARRY W. HANSON, Pres.

The following is taken from the Unit, of May 30: "The base ball team has only once, on the home grounds, shown what it can do. That was in the Cornell game—when the S. U. I. fellows were up here to yell for us. The team had been up half the night before, several of the best men were injured and could not play, and nearly half the nine were playing in new positions, but for the first time this year the team was supported from the grand stand, and the sensation was so novel to the players that they "braced up" and accomplished an unexpected victory. But this support did not come from Grinnell men. It came from our S. U. I. friends who realize the force and value of such encouragement. The crowd at Marshalltown yesterday contributed to our victory by enthusiastic support and encouragement. The only spectators of which the team has had cause for complaint have been those of Grinnell. The treatment of our players on the home grounds this year has been in some cases shameful. There are men on our team who would greatly prefer to play the league game with S. U. I. at Iowa City, although it belongs here, because they get better treatment by the spectators there than at home. This is a sad commentary on our vaunted Grinnell spirit, but it is a true one. This has not been true of all teams. The foot ball team last fall was well cheered, so was the track team in the recent Dual Meet. Just why so marked an exception should be made in the case of the base ball team no one seems able to explain. It is not too late to mend our actions in this respect."
