NEBRASKA'S VICTORY.

but the protestant scores. May tum to liberally and finally Brown is safe. Hubbard making an excellent stop. Field. A single to center. Brown is making a grand stop stand. Cowgill drives a hot one to Mayton, out at first.

In the ninth, Hubbard scores for Nebraska, and Lowby, Hubbard, and Mayton score for Iowa, making the score 14 to 7.

Following is the summary:

BRIDGEBORNE.

Playing the affirmative, he spoke in a clear and forcible manner, demonstrating the fact that he will be a valuable addition to our forensic forces.

Mr. O'Connor opened for the negative, and maintained that the affirmative had not stated which Branch of the Legislature they advocated, the optional or the obligatory. Mr. O'Connor's argument was a sagacious one and was well presented.

Mr. Moosin determined his time to a rebuttal of the arguments of his opponent stating that the system of so-called checks and balances we now have are not a success in preventing legislation. He made a strong plea, and will make good defense.

Mr. Armstrong for the negative, presented a chart showing the per- centage of illiteracy in some states. The arrangement of the points made in his argument was excellent. Mr. O'Connor followed, summing up the points of the negative. The debate was closed by Mr. Moosin, for the affirmative, summing up the points made in favor of the referendum.

The manner in which the debate was handled assures us that as in the past, so in the future, we will be able to carry our end in intercollegiate contests.

The declaration by L. E. Switzer, "How the Church was Built at Kebo's bar", a difficult piece to prepare, was nevertheless rendered in a most creditable manner.

Walter Secrett in "How Old Folks Won the Oaks," told, in a pleasing manner, how a little colored stableboy carried his master's horse successfully through the race, winning by a nose.

The program was closed by a violin and piano recital.

The judges awarded the declamation to the Irvingites by a vote of two to one. The debate was decided unanimously in favor of the negative. In the oration, the decision was on the affirmative. On the oration, on thought and composition, was: "Elocution" 61 per cent, and "Christian" 39 per cent. As it was impossible to decide the matter from the declamation, and in the oration, the Zeta takes the debate, and composition in the oration.

Cornerstone Laying.

At 11:00 A.M., following the cornerstone of the new University Hospital was placed in position with Lowry. Among the circumstances that are fraught with great historical interest.

Middleton, of the Medical department, was master of ceremonies; at the time above mentioned he guided the cornerstone into place and with trowel and mattock of wood taken from the old hospital building which recently occupied the site of the new structure, he laid it in bed of mortar in the walls of the hospital.

Following the laying of the cornerstone there were brief addresses. Dean Middleton propounded that future generations would say "they helped build it as they knew." Dr. Shaler, in his address, which was listened to with satisfaction of the University in having the assurance of a "grand, good hospital." Dr. Shaler, in his address, which was listened to with satisfaction of the University in having the assurance of a "grand, good hospital.

"How did Folk build the new structure," was well presented.

Mr. Moosin devoted his time to a rebuttal of the arguments of his opponent stating that the system of so-called checks and balances we now have are not a success in preventing legislation. He made a strong plea, and will make good defense.

Mr. Armstrong for the negative, presented a chart showing the per- centage of illiteracy in some states. The arrangement of the points made in his argument was excellent. Mr. O'Connor followed, summing up the points of the negative. The debate was closed by Mr. Moosin, for the affirmative, summing up the points made in favor of the referendum.
During the latter part of last week Iowa, as a state, was represented in three different oratorical contests, in as many oratorical associations, i.e. the N. O. L. which is familiar to us, the Interstate Oratorical Association, and the association of State Normal Schools. The result of these contests this year does not give Iowa the prominence which the educational statistics of the state indicate as her logical position. Iowa has educational facilities second to none of the states which participated in these contests, and the places she won in them were fifth, eighth, and first.

Miss Starbuck, of Oakville, was Iowa's orator in the Interstate Contest, and was awarded eighth place. Mr. Perry Hunt, of Cedar Falls, represented Iowa State Normal at the contest at Evansville, Ind., and was awarded first place. We congratulate our sister institution and her successful representative upon their victory, and trust that for saving Iowa from falling to a very unenviable reputation. Missouri has beaten us in this line, winning first place in the Interstate and second in the State Normal Contests. We also congratulate Missouri upon her sudden rise.

Allow us to note again, while the memory of these our defeats are fresh, that Michigan, which has won six out of seven contests in the N. O. L. has had from thirty-four to forty competitors in the home contests each year. It would be well to give full consideration right now and not a month or three weeks before our home contest next year. Let those who expect to be here next year, and who expect to take a part in this kind of work begin now. Statistics show that a proper amount of time has been expended in the production of the orations which won in these contests. This fact is significant. Don't put it off until next holiday vacation, but begin to think and write at once.

Cornerstone Laying.

1842. The stone and tablet occupy a position in the north wall of the administration building, about 20 feet north of the southwest corner.

In the cornerstone was placed a sealed zinc box containing the original charter, constitution, and bylaws of the Mechanic Mutual Aid's, copies of The Daily Republican and The Daily Press containing articles on the old Mechanics' Building, circular referring to same building, and the Historical Record for April 1867. The ceremony, with its use of these historical relics, forms a pretty chapter in the history of the University and its hospital. It is to be regretted that a more general announcement of the event was not made in order that more of the students could have been present to enjoy the exercise.

Manager Jake L. Shermann, 90, of the 97° foot ball team, accompanied two cars-load of stock into Chicago for a local stock dealer this morning. The real purpose of his visit to the World's Fair City is to arrange for a foot ball team among the U. S. and Univ. of Chicago next season. The above report was sent at our office this morning. We wish Mr. Sherman success in his negotiations.

At Close Hall, this evening, occurs the annual contest between the Theological and the Lowell Societies, of the Iowa City Academy. The Theologians will be represented by Miss Pratt, in a declaration, and Mr. Anderson, in an oration on "Evolution in Government." The declamer for the Lowell is Miss Edeline, and their orator, Mr. Downin, will deliver an oration on "Alexander Hamilton." The subject for discussion is "Resolved, that cabinet officers should be given a seat in Congress and a voice in its deliberations." It will be affirmed for the Theilos by Messrs. Fillman and McKerny, and denied by Messrs. Adams and Downin, of the Lowell.

Parsons & Woodworth have a neat little contrivance in front of their store, known as the "free air" machine, for filling bicycles without pumping. We will all give it a trial.

There is much Cowork, in this section of the country, and especially in Iowa, and only the few months were required to be made. The new cream separator is a solid foundation, and provided for the cream separator and to6 cream separators can be secured, are a creditable, and one which has been in use for several years. A creditable, and one which has been in use for several years, are a creditable, and one which has been in use for several years.

IOWA WINS THE B

THE DECISION OF THE UNANIMOUS

Last evening a fair crowd attended the State Universities of the Iowa whose men, for the 1 joint debate. The evening looked forward to by most S.C.I. students. The Debaters were many as the parlour over which we were forced to address the gallery was not with considerable at the second floor with Minnesota, held it seemed to that the student body were elected in any of the good University, but in an assembly of a different sort.

Dr. Charles A. Schreeder president of the people who after the schedule came was G. W. Watson. The debate, the debate, fully, the victory and the question was stated "Should the United States be elected by direct vote?"
