IOWA BOYS IN CALIFORNIA.

SHOW LEMOY STANFORD HOW TO PLAY FOOT BALL.

The members of the 1895 Iowa at "Camp Merritt, have organized a foot ball team. Dick Galnes is captain of the bluest eleven, and acted as coach, and had the satisfaction of winning over the team coached by Cross of Yale.

The es Molesa Leader gives a simply write-up, from which we clip the following extracts:

"Scarcely can Iowa foot ball men imagine the manifestation which that tiny squad spread throughout the teams of California. To Stanford, men, the defeat of the team, was an almost unbroken record of victories, by opponents at first hardly dreamed, and the season was deeply disappointing and almost incomprehensible.

"It was more than earth is consider the scene of human endeavor, but the efforts put forth by the men of the 1895 to obtain funds to send the foot ball game were a mighty effort. The game was played on the university grounds at Palo Alto, about thirty-five miles south of San Francisco. No man in the squad had money to pay even for a seat, to the depot, such was the stinginess caused by almost two months without a pay day. However, however, were turning to see the game, and the day was proclaimed a holiday. Captains were consulted, and they borrowed and raised and wangled and scraped together to allow all who wanted to give minimum amount for railroad fare and expenses. A hurried morning at least 50 shouldering and wiggling enthusiastic fans, headed by the band, embarked on the Southern Pacific for Palo Alto Alto, ready to do battle with the Alamo.

"The old Ladero cars and rolls from other colleges of the state were put into play frequently. When the game was won this goods was packed up and delivered to a hundred others:

"What's the matter?

"Well well!

"We beat Stanford.

"In the end the Stanford routines occurred that even as manufacturers of noise they were outdoors.

"The game was played on Stanford's territory from the start. It was impossible for Stanford to hold back, but 30 shorting and yelling enthusiastic fans, headed by the band, embarking on the Southern Pacific for Palo Alto, ready to do battle with the Alamo. The old Lamar cars and rolls from other colleges of the state were put into play frequently. When the game was won this goods was packed up and delivered to a hundred others:

Bessaia Entertain.

Last evening Hessperia entertained her best friends very delightfully at Minnehaha. A well-laden table and warm fires precede the visitation, both of which were appreciated to the fullest extent. Miss Holmes was toast-ma.ster. After several witty toasts the tables were cleared away for dancing.

The Berryhill Orchestra furnished music the entire evening. The "C Grip" told best the merry time enjoyed.

New Books.

The new volumes are coming in at the rate of several hundred a week. Among those just placed upon the shelves we find the following:

History of English Literature, in 4 volumes, by Stedman Trumbull. History of Early English Literature, in 2 volumes, by stopford A. Brooke.

The works of Robert Browning, in 3 volumes.

The lives of Milton, Longfellow, Johnson, Austin and Dickens.

Several volumes on Agriculture, and Kindred topics, have been added.

Four volumes of Lives of 70 painters, sculptors, and Architects, by George Vasari.

The history of the Expedition of Lewis and Clark, in 4 volumes, by Elbert)]

The great Musicians, Composers and Singers, in Italy, France and Germany, is the subject for four volumes by Gbin T. Ferris.

F. N. Thorpe, 2 volumes, A Constitutional History of the United States people.

A large number of German books have also been added. They cover a large field, and can not be mentioned in detail. They can be readily found in the new shelf, in 15 volumes, bringing it up to date.

A number of public documents and government reports have been placed at the disposal of the students.

Another valuable addition to the magazine shelves, is Nature, a weekly journal of science, in 10 volumes, extending from Nov. '90 to Oct. '95.
