Friday evening about one-third of the class of 1892 met in the assembly hall to enjoy their second social function. The nearness of the event to the time of examinations no doubt limited the attendance, but it was evident to all present that the evening was a good time.

After having enjoyed themselves at the card table for a while, they forged the dice by which they had previously assumed, and were soon engaged in a game of drop the banisterball. The old-time rule of having to kiss the girl you could not catch, was not enforced, but the balls were thrown in the center of the ring instead. As a result the ring was soon lost, and the majority united in a round of waltzing themselves in conversation in the middle.

The gentlemen now engaged themselves at games of canasta, croquet, etc., while the ladies prepared to indulge in the dance which was to begin about 8 o'clock. South Hall was darkened, and amid this darkness the honors of leadership were conferred upon the youths who, attempting to arise with this new role, were met with raucous applause, with their quizzums, and fell in disgrace before the eyes of their sister classmaters.

In a mysterious way the puck of St. Nicholas seems to have found its way into the halls at this juncture, and ere it disappeared freshamn was permitted to draw in print in a movement of the social.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games of cards, croquet, etc., and until twelve o'clock the "Jim-Dandy" succeeded in convincing them that it was time for them to "get right out of there".

Medical Department

There have been many questions asked regarding the foot ball team that I have heard through a couple of weeks ago, and to answer those questions a few words are all that are necessary. The meeting of the Faculty was called, and steps have been taken to prepare rules for the government of such organization.

Dr. Harriman treated the Sopho- more class to an unexpected quiz. Two-card men had a couple of weeks ago, and to answer those questions a few words are all that are necessary. The meeting of the Faculty was called, and steps have been taken to prepare rules for the government of such organization.

The field kick.

It is not many years ago since we heard protests against flying wedges and other close-play formations in foot ball. That this system of play which proved so provocative of accidents and injuries might be eliminated as far as possible, the rules were changed. Five men were required to be on the line, and a goal kicked from the field was to count the same number of points as a ball carried over the line for a touchdown.

These changes have admirably accomplished their purpose. The number of injuries received by players has been less in the season just closed than ever before. The defeat of the teams that have relied on the "guards" and injuries have discouraged heavy mass plays. Kicking duels have added to the attractiveness of the game from the spectator’s standpoint.

Foot ball has deserved its name.

Now it is proposed to banish the drop-kick under the pretense that it exercises an unproportionate influence on the score. That this is hardly true can be seen from the games between Harvard and Yale, Harvard and Pennsylvania, and Michigan and Chicago. These will be remembered as probably the most important games played in 1906. Yet in none of these did the goal kick play a prominent part. Even Herscherger, who was heralded as the "freak" that would win the day for Chicago, was outrisped in his kicking by Carey, who had practiced at his position for some three or four weeks.

Some due regard should be had for the safety of the players and for the wishes of the spectators. If these are kept in view, the goal kick will be retained. Its development the past season has been one of the most hopeful features of the game.

University President.

The question of a new University President is becoming a prolific subject for editors and among the newspapers of the state. Writers of these articles all begin by declaring the personal interest in the choice of the Regents, but despite their apparent high-minded and profound philosophy, the one paramount consideration which seems to be the inspiration of these various productions, is not "What may be the personal ability of the man who shall be chosen?" but "Where does he live?"

Now, with all due respect for the knowledge, experience, and superior wisdom of these writers, we beg to say that we believe the matter of location is the last consideration that should affect the choice of a University President. It would be both unwise and unwise to attempt to draw a line around Iowa City and say "Choose ye from herein." Neither should the boundaries of the State of Iowa limit the choice. If the best man for the place live, in New York, London, or Peking, China, elect him President even if we do have to pay his railroad fare to Iowa City. Likewise, if the best obtainable man shall be a member of one of the present Faculties, let not his having lived and labored among us for our betterment be a hindrance to his promotion. Indeed, it is a question of location, perhaps, all other things being equal, one of our Faculty might have a better understanding of affairs and conditions here than would a man from abroad.

But let that question be decided on its merits only.

It may be difficult to find a man who shall possess all the qualifications to be desired. Besides being well educated, he should be a fair-minded, broad-minded, and a conservative gentleman, as well as an acute business man. He must be able to command the respect as well as the confidence of the several hundreds of the students, and the people of Iowa City, the State, and the rest of the world. He must be a man of such a bearing that he may create a good impression with the General Assembly, to whom the institution looks for sustenance. In short, he must be a man who shall direct the upbuilding of the University in the liberal spirit of the present century and of the new century which is near at hand.
