Evenon Vibert Report

On your editorial page, May 18th, you gave space to an article on college fractures. Will you kindly receive the idea from an anti-fraternity standpoint.

That the motive and the principle of college fraternities are good, fortune would certainly attempt to deny. And that there may not be much helpfulness by means of the mystical bond, in college or out, only entirely ignorant or prejudiced would challenge. But it is a practice and the result by the good of any standard is determined, and this being true, there is much to criticize in the practice of the college fraternity idea as carried out today.

The editor of the Inter-Ocean is with without doubt correct in his statement that the fraternity reaches much that the cure is not done set as essential to the well-being of the college student.

As to the social improvement gained at the fraternity, it is a noticeable fact that the men sought by the fraternities are those that have already much publish the matter of clothes and manners, and rarity is the honest, shedding student, who has only the future before him, invited to fraternity membership. In other words, the fraternity is an institution which builds up a false aristocracy, and does inconceivable injustice to the greater number of students, if in reality it be what its own membership claim for it. But that a little social injustice might creep in, that would be no reason for condemning were such societies were in other ways above reproach. Fraternities, if they have a place at all, should be filled by men, and the idea of a secret society being a home to shield youth from temptations, is so preposterous, as judged by observation, as hardly to need comment. It is, however, one feature that is most dangerous to the youth of our colleges. The allurement of the fraternal club are so great, and the bond so strong, that few can resist the very straits which threaten. The secrecy makes the worst immoralities possible. The fraternity system, without detection by the world, and little by little it is undermined, so that when college days are left behind, and the fraternity as well, and the man starts on life’s road, many times he is left with the memory of habits contracted and guarded and shielded by his Greek letter fraternity.

I do not condemn the fraternity as wholly bad, nor have I pointed out many features which should be corrected if the idea is to prevail. But I own, and never set use only the second stroke on an out at Haddock. Haddock brought the eighth game out at the fourteenth stroke by pounding at Emma’s, and by lobbing. In the ninth Ellis made a plucky effort. With the score 15-40, and the crowd cheering Haddock almost too vociferously, he out-volleyed Haddock at Lowell, and at touchened his sidelines. The tenth the last game made into death, and each point was fought long. Haddock drew Ellis’s side out, out-volleyed him, again. The final stroke was a point. Ellis drove it into the net and Haddock won

The finals in doubles between HU-

set-Cornell won, 9-7, 4-0, 7-6, 3-5, 4-1, 2-4, 1-0.

Iowa played fine tennis in the second, and was so far apart by Cornell in the sixth and seventh, and the eighth games, the score stood

5-1, 4-0, 6-4, 2-0, 4-3, 5-5, 4-3, 4-4, 4-1, 4-4, 4-1, 4-4, 4-1, 4-4, 4-1.

In the third set Iowa did little, but in the fourth by the spectator encouraged both players. In the fifth Moore played his best game, and Cornell was scored.

set-Cornell won, 9-7, 4-0, 7-6, 3-5, 4-1, 2-4, 1-0.

Iowa-Oregon State, 3-5, 4-0, 6-4, 2-0, 4-3, 5-5, 4-3, 4-4, 5-4, 4-6, 4-6, 4-6, 4-6.

The third set was played in singles between Haddock and Ellis furnished the best and most encouraging. The first set went easily to Haddock. Only one set went to the tennis, and Haddock won that by nine strokes.

set-Cornell won, 9-7, 4-0, 7-6, 3-5, 4-1, 2-4, 1-0.

In the second set Ellis began to place his balls. Haddock failed to lob over him, or else sent the ball out of court. The fifth Haddock won a love game, on his serve, three times being served, all of them wilted. Ellis won the remaining games by hard work. Scores:

set-Cornell won, 9-7, 4-0, 7-6, 3-5, 4-1, 2-4, 1-0.

The third set showed that Ellis had continued that he could not win by his law, and let him be placed. With Haddock at the net, he caught him by a side-line stroke, time and time again.

set-Cornell won, 9-7, 4-0, 7-6, 3-5, 4-1, 2-4, 1-0.

The fourth set was perhaps the best set of the match. With the score three against Haddock broken, and by the most brainy set work, fine lobbing, and placed returns of the law-

Haddock won set and match. Scores:

Iowa-Cornell, 5-3, 4-1, 2-4, 7-5, set and match.

Hull and Iowa, started out well in their preliminaries with Ellis and Watkins, of Penn College, by running a 15-3 score into five, and winning the 14th stroke. The game was won by Hull’s brilliant net work. Weed played a consistent game, and Ellis and Watkins divided the honors evenly.

set-Cornell won, 9-7, 4-0, 7-6, 3-5, 4-1, 2-4, 1-0.

At 10:30 a.m. the first preliminary in singles was played between Haddock, of Cornell, against Mackintosh of Cornell. Haddock played his usually brilliant game, and was not defeated by any lobs. In the second set Haddock weakened in polishing, and Mackintosh came to the set to the third game. He stayed there as best he could throughout the set. Haddock won the seventh and eighth games. Scores:

set-Iowa won, 9-7, 4-0, 7-6, 3-5, 4-1, 2-4, 1-0.

set-Cornell won, 9-7, 4-0, 7-6, 3-5, 4-1, 2-4, 1-0.

The debate if not paid from the column, the careful in,erminating such rumors as may fit through the windows of its sanctuary. It is unfortunate that there were no announcements between the two young men in question at the field meet Friday, but the affair came to nothing serious, and as evidence that the gentlemen themselves regretted the occurrence, they shook hands and apologized to each other Friday evening. The State Press attempts to save itself from the criticism it is evidently expected, saying apologistically: "We may be misinformed, but ..." It is unfortunate for the University city that one of the daily papers would publish such a rumor as a fact without having obtained any verification of its truth. And besides, an injustice has been done to the two gentlemen in question.

Positively Dangerous.

Human nature seems to be somewhat the same in many parts of the earth, as is evidenced by a vigorous editorial protest in the Ariel against the abominable practice certain youths have of shooting the battle ants, turning some sausals between the fours, etc. of the Minnesota Varsity companies, to the utter disgust of all beholders. The same evil has existed in S. U. I. for many years, and it is time some one should call a halt. As a result of the Ariel's protest, armed guards are stationed about the drill ground with strict orders to do their duty. They have done so, and now the evil has entirely disappeared.

Erdophobic.

The Senior Erdophobes presented a very entertaining program to a large and appreciative audience in South Hall, Saturday evening.

Miss Shults' opening piano solo was loudly encored.

The two declamations, "Dat Possum Dinner," by Miss Owen, and "The States Chief's Daughter," by Miss Riggs, proved pleasant substitutes for the pantomime written by Miss Larabee which was given on account of the illness of some of the participants.

Little Miss Bradley very gracefully rendered two dainty vocal solos, with accompanying action.

The theme of the evening was "The Open Secret," a Radcliffe incident in two acts, with the following cast:

Madge, E. O. Waald, Ema Owen Agatha, H. Larabees Carrie, Hattie Riggs Elinor, Loelia Estes May, Winifred MacFarland Edith, Antoinette Stober Kate, Dorothy Wickersham College Girls.

Gracie, M. McFarland, Alois Graff Madge's Little Sister.

Mrs. Apptiquee, Mabel Fostor Madge's Mother.

The performance was lively and interesting throughout. The local hits, especially, were applauded.

The program was closed by a pleasing piano solo by Miss MacKiny.
