The ZetaThagians Win

MINNEAPOLIS PRELIMINARY GAMES AGAINST COMPETITION.

MINNESOTA VS. IOWA--ENDS IN A DRAW.

The team for the debate with Iowa, which is to take place at this university some time in May, has been selected and consists of Menas Giakost, CALDWELL, and Jerome.  M. CALDWELL is a student of the Law Department and a member of the Kent society. He is a graduate of Hamline University and is an orator of considerable ability, having represented Hamline in the state debate three years ago. The University of Minnesota, April, January 19, 1906.

The ZetaThagians proved superior to the sons of living in the annual Minnesota preliminary given before a large volume on the ZetaThagian side at least than at the Wisconsin preliminary. The men of the south had hoped to win this debate and turn back the tide which went against them last year. The living from their position on the rights of the hall cleared as firmly as their rivals on the left and everybody yelled until their lungs waxed dried and voices hoarse. All except

The speeches differed in tone. That never happened. Secretly instructed by the side of little Laetus was a man of history and debate. Twice in the past M. CALDWELL, president of the debate, began, appearing on the platform, announced that the decision had been unanimous for the ZetaThagians. Then did the ZetaThagians set up huzza of joy that started the arches of the classic opera house. They had been so happy themselves for some time, those few past whose enthusiasm for the successful debate had branded itself for the past two years. While the victorious ZetaThagians were hugging them debaters and carrying on their debate to the cheers of the audience, M. CALDWELL, president of the Kent history society, was making things interesting in the region of the James hotel. He left the opera house in a manner that suggested that he had private information of a fire alarm to be shortly turned in the street. Seeing three fellows following him at a distance of about forty yards, he began to opine. The men who followed him were now certain that he had something ominous on his conscience. They sprang up. The course up Clinton street became interesting. CALDWELL's rubbers (he had noticed that Iowa was a wet town and cane provided) flew off by the Chileno's bank. CALDWELL sped on the faster.

The University of Minnesota defeated Iowa in the field meet last spring. It was the opinion of some men that this was due to the advantage gained by having the meet on their home ground. There is another meeting scheduled for this year. CALDWELL, for one of the best debaters of the university, will meet with thirty others. He gave up on the same as the hotel lobby and asked for the news. He refused. After talking to Mr. E. D. Ogden of Williamsburg, the president of the debating league, about the matter he worked up to his room accompanied by Mr. Ogden, looked up the notes, and threw them out of the window.

"They are too new to me," he said as he did. "I have the whole debate in my head. If you can take it out of here, you are welcome.

The Minnesota debates registered at the St. James hotel at G. L. Caldwell, Hamline, Minn. The writing on the page of notes left in his note book, and in the letters which Mr. E. D. Ogden, as secretary of the Iowa debate leagues, received from him on behalf of the Minnesota debating team, are all equally favorably as being written by the same man.

He was recognized by Mr. W. H. Adams, '92, who has attended the university of Minnesota. The reply admitted that he was from the University of Minnesota. His defense for his action was: "All is fair in love and war. This evidently is not love. So it is war. That's why I came." He said that he failed to understand why the gentleman who demanded his notes seemed so unfriendly to the matter. He said that he had paid fifteen cents to get into the debate and he didn't see anything wrong with keeping the notes for use in his business.

The reply is now a junior in the law department of the University of Minnesota. He is president of the freshmen law class last year. Before entering Minnesota, he attended Hamline University, and the denominational institution located at St. Paul, Minnesota. Probably from this he received his brilliant idea of registering from "Hamline, Minn."

He personally identified his picture in the Minnesota Alumni. He appears there as a member of the Kent law society and as an executive officer of the Republican club.
