An Excellent Selection

We note in the Nebraska-Harper that Dr. B. Benjamin Andrews has accepted the chancellorship of the University of Nebraska. The selection is an admirable one and the University of Nebraska is to be congratulated upon the selection of a president who will be both an honor and a benefit to her. As president of Brown University and as superintendent of the Chicago public schools, Dr. Andrews has scored a decided success. He will bring to his new position executive and scholarly talents of the highest order.

We do not think that Nebraska has obtained a "triumph" that is as sincere as Iowa's, but, after taking such a chancellor as Dr. George W. Meadless from that university, we rejoice that Nebraska has obtained a man who is worthy to be her successor.

Dr. Andrews visited Iowa City some two years ago and made many friends during his short stay. He is hopeful that his new position will enable him to visit the University of Iowa often.

President Wheeler on Rushing

At the meeting of the student body around the Flag pole on Friday morning, President Wheeler defined his position upon the question of rushing.

"I hope," said the head, "it is going to be possible before long to get together every Friday morning in the gymnasium, and want to see this opportunity when I have so many of you before me to say just a word about the very interesting subject of rushing. I am very well aware that students of a great university like this desired to be classed amongst the progressive university students, and that all progressive universities which have grown out of their swaddling clothes have given up the practice of promiscuous rushing. There is no doubt that you will all desire to do that sooner or later. But you know how Moses did. He let the people go on doing some things for their sins. There is no doubt that a certain amount of good fun and rough play is not bad, but we have outgrown rushing because the classes are too large for it. Now we are going to try the experiment of turning it into a regular formalized game under the charge of referees who will be backed by the entire authority of the university. We wish to see if the old-fashioned rush can be reduced to a game with rules. I would treat the good name of the university entirely in your hands. I do not need to say anything more about it."—The Daily Californian.

Wisconsin's Intellectual Battles

The approach of the intercollegiate debates and the oratorical contest is a matter that should arouse our interest at the present time. We look forward with much pleasure to the glory which we expect to achieve through this spring through our debate team, track team, and crew.

This is well. Wisconsin can always be proud of her record in athletics, but she is not all she has been of pride of. She stands high in the roll of honor for achievements along another line. It is a fact that for years she has not lost an intercollegiate debating contest. Let us therefore encourage our contests that are to represent us in the coming debates against Iowa and Georgetown. Let us give our students the hearty support which is due to him that may carry off the honors in the contest of the Northern Oratorical League which is soon to occur.

Perhaps we often forget the importance of these literary events both to ourselves and to our universities, and it is not unnatural that we should do so. It is true the interest in them is not that of itself as that connected with the physical contest, the excitement over a debate cannot possibly be equal to the same pitch as that over a football game, whether the element of patriotism is involved or not. Yet we should not forget that our literary representatives are working for Wisconsin and they need encouragement and even rooting, if that be possible, as much as any of our athletes do. Then besides it is well to remember that the object of our university training is more connected with the intellectual side of our being than with the physical side. These considerations then should help us to assume a more lively interest in the oratorical contest and intercollegiate debates which are soon to take place.—The Cardinal.
