The wonderful achievement of fortuitous success, a genuine and not the result of the name and renown of the team, Iowa has maintained a high winning average in its fifty-five years in Iowa City. Professor C. F. Irish, one of Iowa's former coaches, and the university has given her an equal footing of that of any university in the west for two long seasons.

The lots of the sons of Iowa are cast in the unrelenting world of toil and every one of them the duty of preserving the university, university and traditions forever unmarred by unworthy deeds or motiefs—this is the duty that comes with the glory of being an Iowa.

The范文所提供的文本是关于北威斯康星州和爱荷华州的一场橄榄球比赛的报道。比赛发生在北威斯康星州的李奇大学和爱荷华州的爱荷华大学之间。比赛的激战持续到最后一刻，使得比赛结果难分高下。北威斯康星州在比赛的最后时刻，由路德·W·西格斯特德（L. A. Berk）投射的球被约翰·J·巴克鲁（John J. Bakewell）成功接住，将比赛拖入加时赛。结果，比赛以33比33的比分结束，双方通过加时赛打平，最终以33比33的比分结束了这场比赛。
The left half takes care of the middle, and has the right and tackle open a little between them, that half, with the left tackle and guard standing back the line. The quarter outside, the guards back the line, and the fullback charge the line. The right half back takes the ball by getting the kick receipt in the hand of the line. That half, with the right tackle and right guard back the line, will have to go for yards, and even get a few double passes. At the end of the season, the ends were doing fine work on the passing end. Ely's fine showing in this play gained him the capture of the right end back.

Dr. Knipe thought up new plays all the time from November 1899 to September, 1900. At least, the Chicago papers asserted this soon after the Chicago game, that game, that line of the tie score, and there is room to believe that the assertions were made upon good grounds. The 1900 team were mostly old men when Dr. Knipe had trained the fundamentals in 1899 for the work of years to come. The play that caught everybody's attention was the flying interference play, as Coach Stagg styled it. He has been much talked and written about by ex-players who do not know what it really is.

In diagram as follows:

NORTHEASTERN

The diagrams for these formations are given. The play is worked in the left, the same manner as in the right, allowing the relative change of position. Each of the plays has variations and tricks that tend to keep the opposing eleven somewhat in doubt as to where the play will be deflected. The real secret of the success of Dr. Knipe's coaching is in the plays, through which the Hawkeye team has as large an assortment as any in the country, as it is seen in the snap, and nearly as much work to any man in the country. "You'll have to hurry, boys," in Dr. Knipe's constant attention.

By getting their play under way as soon as possible at the back half, the Hawkeyes have the war always in the rear. As a sweet thing, the special formation of tackles and backs will beat the line as used in the most half back in the second half in the second part of the game. After the strength of the Northwesterners has battered the opposing line, for a while, the end runs are tried more and more frequently.

It will be a great pleasure to every Iowan to know that Dr. Knipe has developed in that position one that probably will remain at Iowa the coming year, and that he will have more of an inside wish of every Iowan. He has already demonstrated his ability as a captain by the way he has played in that position on the 1900 base ball team. Williams has been an expert as a coach and trainer of athletes, but he has not been a director of an athletic policy, as the record shows. He is a student, professor and friend of football. The first part of his ambition can only say, Knipe is Iowa's and Iowa is Knipe's.

where an informal speech was re- jected. Samuel Clyde Williams came to the university from Shelly, Iowa. He played for two years on the Shelly High School team, the last year as captain of the team. In this he entered the university as a freshman, studying in the scientific course of the College of Liberal Arts. His first year was spent in the freshman team where he was right half back and the best individual player on the team. In 1899, he was made the "Vanity" where he played throughout the season at right half back, with Morton as his partner at right half back. In 1899, he changed to quarter because of his superior abilities at passing the ball. Captain Griffith who had placed him to the place and Williams was placed there.
