SCHOOL OF COMMERCE

Courses in Higher Commercial Education May be Offered Next Year by the University of Iowa

One of the chief objects of the university school of political and social science is to fit men to be better business men and citizens The university authorities recognize that there is a great demand for higher commercial education among the young men of the state. One of the prominent alumni of the university now engaged in a large business, said the other day that the university would have to provide for this demand if it is to fulfill its function as a state university. The pressure of business demands on young men in the state has been felt this year by the university in its collegiate department, where but a slight gain has been made in attendance owing to excellent business opportunities that are open to young men. To provide for the fitting of young men for the more responsible and difficult business positions, the Iowa school of political and social science will next year be prepared to offer courses in higher commercial education.

The courses which will be offered in this department of the school are not yet fully determined but they will probably include the following divisions:

1 A body of knowledge and principles applicable to any form of business management and organization, the training, in fact, which is needed by a business man as such.

2. A more special preparation of banking, insurance, and commerce, the diplomatic service, and public administration.

3. Such further teaching and training as will prepare men for journalism or for participation in civic affairs

President Angell, of the University of Michigan, said recently in a public address: "It seems to me that it is the duty of the universities to train men so they may be fitted to guide the great international concerns." This new effort for the practical education of business men is the newest thing in higher education. Schools of commerce and finance have appeared under various names in the last decade in many of the educational institutions of the country. Among the examples of these schools which may be mentioned are the Amos Tuck School of Administration and Finance of Dartmouth college, the school of Commerce of the University of California, and similar schools established by the universities of Wisconsin, Michigan, Chicago, Columbia, and the University of the City of New York. The purpose of the universities of the country to play a part in the development of higher types of citizenship and effective statecraft has been evidenced for some years by the great interest taken in the departments of history, and political and social science. The University of Iowa has been fully alive in this matter and there is now offered by the school of political and social science a civic-historical course preparing men for public administration which now has some one hundred and fifty students enrolled in it. The purpose of the university to take a more direct share in preparing men for the practical affairs of business is a newer phase of the school's activity. Not only have the interests of education demanded the organization of such courses. Commercial reasons alone imperatively require that immediate and decisive steps in the direction of higher education be taken by the business men of the country. The increasing competition of the world the successful efforts put forth by the European nations to equip their merchants and bankers with every means of carrying on the intense competitive struggle for enlargement of markets and advancement of business, demand that the commercial youth of the United States shall have better training and sounder education in all that is essential to the carrying on of a successful business enterprises. The training needed is something more than is now given by private business colleges. Besides bookkeeping and mathematics there should be a study of such subjects as merchandise, commercial geography, civil, commercial, maritime, and international law, statitics, commercial history, commercial tools, transportation, political economy, money and banking, the science of physics and chemistry in at least an elemental degree, and a familiarity with any of the languages of commerce, especially German, Spanish, and French.

The length of the course in higher commercial education will be about two years. The best way that it could be taken would be in the junior and senior years of a regular college course. The electives are then sufficiently flexible to allow the student to take just the studies that he would find the best adapted to the business which he desires to enter. It is possible, however, for those who do not feel that they can spare the time for this course, to enter directly the courses which they desire. This will probably be done by over half of the students who take the courses in higher commercial education.

The offering of this course in higher commercial eduucation will involve the addition of two new men to the instructional force of the school of political and social science. These will be instructors in insurance and accounting and in the consular and diplomatic service.

The rest of the courses required would either be found in courses already offered by the school of political and social science or would be drawn from other departments of the university, such as engineering, botany, chemistry, geology, English, and law.

Professor Loos, the director of the school, is of the opinion that the business men of strong commercial cities of the state, Des Moines, Burlington, Muscatine Davenport, Clinton, Dubuque, Cedar Rapids, Sioux City, Council Bluffs, and others will give considerable support to the University of Iowa in encouraging this movement. Professor Loos is desirous of presenting the subject to the boards of trade and chambers of commerce through out the state, believing that the idea of a higher commercial education for the young men of the state will meet with a cordial reception from the representative business men of the state. "It is an effort on the part of the university," said Professor Loos, "to more nearly fulfill its mission as a state university. We believe that a course in higher commercial education will fill a practical want in the state."

F D Letts, L. '99, now a rising young attorney of Davenport, was in the city yesterday, accompanied by his brother who will enter the College of Liberal Arts.

The managers of the Iowa League base ball teams will hold an adjourned meeting at the Kirkwood Hotel at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, to pass upon a number of applications for membership in the league, and to revise the constitution of the league. The managers of other college teams in Iowa have been invited to be present, and a number have signified an intention of accepting the invitation.

POLITICAL SCIENCE CLUB

One of the Prominent Institutions of the University—Its History—Some Important Papers

One of the prominent institutions of the university is the Political Science Club, composed of professors, and business and professional men of Iowa City who are indicated by the name of the club. It was begun in October, 1896, as a friendly neighborhood gathering of professional students and has since grown into an organization of influence in the university. It meets at the homes of the members on alternate Monday evenings. The paper of the evening is read by some person appointed by the executive committee and after this follows the discussion of the paper. This waxes very warm at times but there are no reporters present at the meetings and only faint rumors reach the outside world of the wordy encounters in which dignified professors throw dignity to the winds and lock horns fiercely in defence of their favorite views on social, educational, and political questions.

Professor I. A. Loos has been the president of the club since its organization. In his retiring address at the meeting of the club this week, he briefly reviewed the history of the club and made some suggestions for the future of the club. Among these were considerations for the improvement of the club's regular programs by the introduction of regular program features in addition to the papers, the question of whether the club would not wish to make application for a room in the new Hall of Liberal Arts which would give the society a regular domicle and permanent place of meeting, and the urging the members to make a greater attempt to publish the papers that were read at the club meetings in the technical journals of political science, which would be glad to take them if they were offered, and in the university studies in Sociology, Economics, Politics, and History Professor Loos also suggested the establishmenl at some future date of a university magazine of political science as one of the things which would be welcomed by the club.

Among the papers which have been read before the club in past years have been: The Common Law, by Professor Samuel Hayes; What is Political Science? by Professor W. C. Wilcox; The Politics of Aristotle, by Professor I. A. Loos; The Political Ethics of Herbert Spencer, by Professor B. F. Shambaugh; the reason of the Law and the Doctrine of Precedent, by Chancellor Emlin McClain; Education and Democracy, by Professor Jesse Macy, of Grinnell; Some of the Psychological and Ethical Aspects of Political Science, by Professor B. F. Shambaugh; Some of the aspects of Modern Socialism, by Professor I. A. Loos; Education as a State Function, by Mr H. C. Dorcas; Economic Science from the standpoint of the physicist, by Professor L. G. Weld; Government Regulation of Commerce by Chancellor McClain; Fiscal Operations of the Civil War, by Mr J. W. Rich; The Government by the United States of Annexed Territory, by Chancellor McClain, The Theory of Penalties, by Judge M. J. Wade; The Growth and Influence of Corporations, by A. E. Swisher; Pawnshops in Europe and America, by Dr W. R. Patterson; Government by Injuction, by Professor H. S. Richards, secretary of the College of Law; City Politics, by Miss Jane Addams, of Hull house, Chicago; the State Board of Control, by Dr W. R. Patterson, the statistician of the board; Trusts, their Origin and Probable Influence, by Chancellor McClain and Professor Samuel Hayes; Classification of Trusts, by Professor I. A. Loos; The Philippine Question, by Dean A. N. Currier; Commerce as a Factor in National Policy, by Mr A. E. Swisher and the Federal Control of Trusts, by Judge M. J. Wade.

The papers which have been read this year are: Some Tendencies in Modern College Education, by Professor J. J. McConnell; A Chapter out of Practical Politics, by Professor E. A. Wilcox; Economic Causes of the Reformation, by Mr H. G. Plum; The Science of Anthropology, by Dr J. H. Ward, fellow in Anthropology at Harvard; Some Practical Problems in Sociology and Politics, by Judge M. J. Wade.

Many of these papers have been since published in magazine and book form or delivered as lectures.

MINNESOTA PRELIMINARY

Second Big Debate of the Year—Excellent Question and Fine Debaters at the Opera House Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night the Minnesota preliminary occurs at the opera house. This debate will be upon the question: "Resolved, that the Immigration into the United States should be restricted to persons that can read and write the constitution of the United States in some language, except that satisfactory provision should be made for the admission of persons dependent upon qualified immigrants" The question will be offirmed for the Irving Institute by Mr D. R. Perkins, of Cedar Falls, Mr G. S. Calkins, of Iowa City, and Mr H E. Spangler, of Panora. The Zetagathians will deny it through their representatives, Mr E K. Brown, of Solon, Mr R. M. Hanson, of Mt. Pleasant. and Mr J. W. Morse, of Osage.

The Minnesota final debate will occur at Iowa City on March 1, 1901. The Iowa team will be chosen in the same manner as for the Wisconsin debate, the winning society choosing two men and the losing society electing one debater. The question for discussion was pronounced by Minnesota last year It is: "Resolved, that it is unwise to attempt to tax personal property."

President's Inauguration

An invitatson to the university students to be represented in the inaugural parade in Washington, March 4 next has reached President MacLean. Steps will probably be taken to have an Iowa delegation present, and the matter will probably be referred to the students for action at a mass meeting to be held for the purpose in the near future. Alumni of Iowa who contemplate attending the inauguration and who desire to join with the students in attendance in order to make a good showing for the university, are requested to correspond with President MacLean. A rate of one fare plus $2 for the round trip has been secured. The communication is as follows:

Washington, D. C. Jan. 7, 1901.
George MacLean, President,
State University of Iowa,
Iowa City, Iowa.

Dear Sir:—With a view of inspiring patriotism in the young men of our country by means of the object lesson which the Inaugural Ceremonies will present, the Inaugural Committee has the honor to extend through you an invitation to the student body of your institution to participate in the Inaugural Parade of March 4th, 1901.

A similar invitation has been sent to all the leading American colleges and universities, with the hope of having as many of them as possible, whether large or small, represented on the above occasion. It is earnestly requested that you give this movement your hearty approval, and either in person or through a committee of your selection, present this matter for the students' consideration in mass-meeting assembled.

It is desired for obvious reasons that the committee be informed at the earliest date practicable of the representation, if any, it may expect from your institution.

Respectfully,
WALLACE DONALD MCLEAN,
Chairman Intercollegiate Com.

The Board of Control meets this afternoon to discuss a number of matters in connection with the spring schedules.

IMPORTANT NOTICES

Summer Session Plans

The faculty committee having in charge the summer session met at the office of the chairman, Thursday. The plans for the summer session were considered, and among other things, it was decided to provide for the establishment of a technical school for library training, to be held under the joint auspices of the University and the State Library Commission; provided the State Library Commission is able to complete necessary arrangements for the conduct of the school. The instruction will be given by a specialist in the field of library work, and the opening at the university will afford the librarians of public and other libraries in the State an excellent opportunity to further fit themselves for their work.

Notice

Only members entitled to vote will be admitted to the Athletic Union meeting, Friday evening; those entitled to membership certificates under the Amended Constitution can get them at the door. Members will please bring their membership certificates.

GEORGE W. EGAN,
President.

YOUNG PEOPLE WANTED

To Learn the Jewelry Trade

We need a large number of young people, from twelve to twenty-two years old, as students of the manufacturing jewelry business, to begin immediately.

An especially fine corps of instructors have arrived from Providence, Rhode Island, ladies and gentlemen who are experts in his own department, together covering all departments, and are gifted with the special faculty called aptness to teach.

Students who develop a faculty for that branch will secure special instruction in hand engraving, by an expert in that specialty.

Do not delay, but send in your name, age and address to W. F. Main Co., Iowa City, Iowa. The winter months are at hand, and this is the time to begin. Thoroughly master any department of this work, and you are always in demand, always independent, always command a good salary.

MAN IS FORTUNATE

in that the cut of his garments is not subject to as many changes as that of his wife, daughter, or sweetheart; besides, he wouldn't have the patience to endure as many try-ons a year. Nevertheless, to avoid monotony, there are slight differences from year to year which the well dressed, as well as the dressy man appreciates. To see the novelties for this Fall and Winter you have but to call on

Medical Notes

Dr McClintock was away on business last week.

The seniors finished Operative Surgery last Friday afternoon.

Dr C. C. Smead of Newton was in attendance at Tuesdays clinic.

The Soph dancing club had one of their pleasant parties last week.

W. E. Bullock, '01, is absent, being at the bedside of a sick brother.

Hobbs, '01, has had a severe cold that has kept him in his room a few days.

Dr Decker of Davenport is lecturing to the seniors Wednesday forenoons, on Diseases of Children.

The next issue of the Iowa Medical Journal will be devoted to the University College of Medicine.

Miss Daly, '01, will soon be ready for class work after her seige of typhoid. Miss Smith is still quite sick.

The senior class invited Dr Shrader to lecture to them a couple of hours. His first lecture will be Friday afterdoon.

Dr Dalby, on coming in a half hour late to clinic Wednesday, found the students all on the top row, singing to rest themselves.

The next medical dance will occur on the 25th instead of the 18th as announced. That date being given for the Sophomore Cotilion.

There has been quite a general roar among the boys regarding the changing of the course next term to nine months when it was scheduled not to begin until 1902.

It was with deep regret that the nurses of the University Hospital received the intelligence of the death of Miss Black, a member of last years' class. Her death occurred January 1st at Chariton, Iowa, of typhoid fever

S. U. I. Monogram Spoons at A M. Greers.

J. J. Sharpe, '97, now principal of the Oxford high school is visiting in the city while his school is closed on account of scarlet fever.

Lecture by Professor Arthur Fairbanks

Professor Fairbanks will give a lecture in the Congregational church on Wednesday evening, January 16th, on The Greek Conception of the Future Life It will be illustrated by the stereopticon with views taken by himself in Greece from the monuments, reliefs, etc. This will be an intensely interesting subject and merits a large attendance. Admission 35 cents.

A POOR RELATION

Presented under the auspices of Iowa City Lodge No. 590 B. P. O. E. Saturday night, January 12, 1901.

It is a marvelous stage creation that can keep an audience of playgoers on the verge of tears for two hours and a half and preserve them from weeping simply by making them laugh. Such is the character of Noah Vale in Sol. Smith Russel's charming play "A Poor Relation." It is essentially a role that appeals to the sympathies at times deeply: and being delineated with exquisite finish by Frank Keenan a comedian whose methods are peculiarly adapted to the character, it is no wonder that the play that forms its setting has become a household word for all that is clean and wholesome on the American stage. Manager Fred G. Berger carries the same scenery, properties, etc., used by Mr Russell himself and a company superior to any that has yet appeared in the piece, including Miss Maud Abbott, Kate Long, Fanny Barry Sprague, Katherine Dooling and the two children Rip and Patch, and Messrs Geo. R. Sprague, Geo. B Miller, Marcus Moriarty, John Cumberland, and Chas. Buman. Our play-goers have not yet forgotten the enjoyment afforded last season by this exquisite play and we can prophecy a bumper house for Mr Kennan when he opens on Saturday night

TOWNSEND'S STUDIO.
IOWA CITY, IOWA, June 2, 1900.
TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN;
The picture committee from the Law Class of 1900 wishes to express their full and hearty appreciation of the work done on the large class picture, and also on the large class photos of the same, as well as the other work done by the photographer TOWNSEND. We very highly recommend him to future classes.
Committee,
