JOHN MARSHALL DAY

Great Chief Justice Lauded in Seven Excellent Addresses—Great Speech by John N. Baldwin, L. '78, of Council Bluffs

February Fourth was John Marshall day at the University of Iowa. Mminent members of the bar, the bench, and the college recounted John Marshall's services to the United States, wished for another giant such as he for the country at the present time, and resolved to celebrate the date of his elevation to the Supreme Court of the United States. A large number of the members of the state bar association from all over the state, members of the supreme court of Iowa, members of the faculty of the University of Iowa, and students in the university from all the colleges gathered in the opera house Monday afternoon and evening to celebrate the day when John Marshall, America's greatest jurist became chief justice of the supreme court of the United States.

The platform at both afternoon and evening sessions was occupied only by the speakers of the day. Seats were reserved in the body of the house for the members of the state bar association, the visiting supreme judges, and the members of the faculties of the university. The afternoon session was presided over by Aon J. J. McCarthy, of Dubuque, the president of the state bar association. The program was opened by a song by the university glee club. President McCarthy then gave a brief address on the significance of John Marshall day.

The principal address of the day was delivered by Hon John N. Baldwin, L. '78, of Council Bluffs, who spoke upon John Marshall. His address was an eloquent and masterly handling of John Marshall's life and work. The climax of the address was in the closing paragraph:

"Marshall was as good, if not as great a patriot as Washington; wiser, if not as talented as Hamilton; nobler, if not as clever as Jefferson; and for Purity, Truth, and Justice his star glitters the brightest in that constellation. I venture this sentiment for this day and occasion—the Constitution of the United States: It was a growth rather than a creation, and not the work of any one man, but Marshall was its Expounder, Webster, its Defender, Lincoln, its Preserver, and Eternity, its Keeper."

The evening program began at eight o'clock. It was opened by a musical selection by the university glee club. President G. E. MacLean, the presiding officer of the evening, then made a short address on John Marshall as he appeals to an Educator and to the Student.

Judge W. S. Kenyon, L. '91 of Fort Dodge, then spoke upon the Life and Character of John Marshall as a Citizen. Judge Kenyon said in the closing paragraphs of his excellent address:

"May the life of the great chief justice ever be to the citizenship of the great republic an inspiration to truth and virtue, to the young manhood of the nation, with its matchless and illimitable possibilities, an inspiration toward the higher attributes of life; to a realization that character and manhood is within reach of all, and that true wealth is noble character; to the lawmaker and interpreter an inspiration to the just and equal and common-sense administration of all laws.

"While Utopian ideals are but dreams, yet in reviewing the pure and simple life of this eminent citizen may we not hope, be it dream

GLASGOW'S ANNIVERSARY

Four Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the Founding of the University of Glasgow—Iowa Invited to Send Delegates

On the twelfth of June the University of Glasgow will celebrate the four hundred and fiftieth anniversary of its foundation by the favor of Pope Nicholas V. The University of Iowa has been invited to send delegates to attend the ceremonies. The invitation has been referred to President MacLean with power to act. Some eight years ago a similar invitation was received from the University of Bologna. On this occasion, Professor Perkins represented the university.

The invitation is in Latin, and the reply will be written in that language. The invitation is stamped with the seal of the university which represents the Pope with his shepherd's staff and his two fingers raised to bless the people.

Homoeopathic Notes

Dr Gilchrist's sub clinics in surgery are constantly increasing in interest.

Dr H. E. Carver, '99, of Oskaloosa, Iowa, brought a patient to the hospital for private treatment Wednesday.

Jackson and Cooper, ex-'02, now at Hahneman Medical College of Chicago will return to Iowa next year to complete their courses.

A committee of the senior class has been instructed to negotiate with the faculty regarding commencement speaker. Senator Dollen will be invited to deliver the address.

The current Cornellian contains an illustrated appreciation of Burton E. Sweet, Cornell '93, Iowa L. '95, the committeeman on the republican state central committee from the third district, and one of the representative graduates of Cornell college.

Colonel C. A. Clark of Cedar Rapids was called upon in the senior law class yesterday morning for a speech. Colonel Clark told of Achilles who was wounded in the heel and said that the heel was the vulnerable point of the lawyer—he is liable to be tripped up by something he is not prepared for. Colonel Clark's address was highly appreciated and heartily applauded by the laws.

At the close of Mr Baldwin's eloquent address yesterday afternoon, a most delightful reception in honor of the supreme judges and the members of the bar, given by President and Mrs G. E. MacLean at their College street residence was attended by the guests of honor, the members of the local bar, and the deans of the university faculty and their wives who were asked to meet the distinguished guests from abroad. The reception lasted from four till six o'clock.

It is reported that on last Saturday morning the Citizen composing rooms witnessed a discussion between the printer who was setting up the Quill's account of The Mikado and the editor-in-chief of that paper as to the spelling of the word "cast." The editor-in-chief had a final "e" on the word in his copy which spelling the printer said was wrong, proving his assertion by Webster's International. "Well," replied the undaunted editor, "'caste' is right, I know it is. They spell it that way in the VIDETTE-REPORTER."

Central High School of Philadelphia is now competing with the University of Pennsylvania in the granting of degrees of B. S. and Ph. D., because as the high school authorities say their course "is quite equal to that given by the University." The University authorities are righteously indignant and say that the matter is too ludicrous to be seriously considered.

ANDREWS ON WASHINGTON

Chancellor of Nebraska University to be Here February 23—Also S. F. Smith With Original Copy of America

The eighth convocation of the University of Iowa and the last of the college year will be held on Washington's birthday. E. Benjamin Andrews, Chancellor of the University of Nebraska will be the principal speaker of the day. Mr S. F. Smith, the son of the author of America will also speak at the convocation and will have with him the original copy of the national hymn.

Dr Andrews was in Iowa City in 1898, while he was president of Brown University. He was afterwards superintendent of the city school of Chicago.

EIGHT STATE ORATORS

Small Colleges of the State Wins the Places on the Contest at Mt. Pleasant—Winning Orators and Orations

The judges on thought and composition for the coming state oratorical contest, which will be held at Mt. Pleasant on the 28th of the present month, have just made a report to the state contest officials, and from it, it is learned that the following colleges will be allowed places on the program: Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Simpson, Indianola, Parsons, Fairfield, Iowa Wesleyan, Mt. Pleasant; Penn, Oskaloosa; Lenox, Hopkinton; Upper Iowa, Fayette; Drake, Des Moines.

The various orations are as follows: Benedict Arnold, Coe; Self Adjustment, Simpson; The American Volunteer, Parsons; True Republicanism, Iowa Wesleyan; Crain's Question, Penn; Mission of Government, Lenox; The Triumphs of Nationalism, Upper Iowa; The Coming Industrialism, Drake.

The Judges on thought and composition were S. W. Morehead, editor Gate City, Keokuk, Smith M. McPherson, judge federal court, Red Oak; Emlin McClain, judge supreme court, Iowa City; F. T. Oldt, superintendent of schools, Dubuque; A. V. Starms, superintendent of schools, Cherokee. The banquet will be held at the dormitory of Iowa Wesleyan University on the evening of the 27th in honor of the visitors. The contest on the evening of the 28th will be at the auditorium.

The Cornellian (Cornell College) says that the contest this year seems to be a small school combination.

The Daily Republican and the Daily State Press printed excellent accounts of the Marshall Day afternoon program in their issues yesterday. Their papers today contain similarly fine accounts of last night's addresses.

The selections given at the Marshall Day program in both afternoon and evening by the men's and womens' glee clubs were much appreciated and received deserved encores. The glee clubs showed great musical ability and their home concerts will be awaited with interest.

Indiana university has a warning placard at the entrance to its campus: "No hunting or shooting allowed on the college grounds." The Indiana Student states that rabbit tracks were in evidence after the fall of snow yesterday and intimates that guardians of the campus should be appointed to stand on its boundaries to warn off all rabbits, that the students of Indiana be not tempted to transgress the rules.

STUDENTS SWINDLED

Knox College Men and Women Appointed Guards at Buffalo—Fifty Cents an Hour for ten Hours Per Day

One Charles Boyle, of Oak Grove, Iowa, has been working the students of Knox College quite successfully on a scheme that was ingenious, to say the least. Having provided himself with printed receipts and other matters, Boyle represented to these susceptible seekers after knowledge that he was delegated with the authority to appoint a certain number of guards and ticket sellers for the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo. All that was necessary for them to do was to furnish satisfactory recommendations and a dollar to bind the transaction. In return for each dollar Boyle gave a receipt to which he signed the name of E. J. Lyman. As a further guarantee of his identity he mentioned the fact (?) that he had played guard on the Grinnell College foot ball team. An advertisement in a Galesburg paper helped matters materially, and it was not long until twenty nine young men had been separated from their $1 bills, likewise about a dozen young ladies. Fifty cents per hour for ten hours' service each day was the compensation promised to both gentleman guards and lady ticket sellers.

Boyle was arrested at Grinnell last Sunday and taken to Illinois to face the music. The real E. J. Lyman is well known in college circles and bears a most excellent reputation.

Maxon, D. '01, visited friends in Des Moines, Saturday.

Hon J. C. Davis went east on the one o'clock passenger this morning.

Judges Deemer and McClain and Hon A. B. Cummins took the one o'clock train for Des Moines this morning.

Mr Brewer will not be able to meet his class in journalism tomorrow night, owing to his absence on a trip to New York.

John Marshall day was celebrated in many cities and university seats yesterday. Some of the largest celebrations were at Yale and Pennsylvania.

Hon A. B. Cummins, of Des Moines, who gave the eloquent and forceful address on The Court and The Judge last evening, will again appear before university students the evening of March 29, when he will speak at the medical commencement.

Judge and Mrs Emlin McClain entertained at an informal tea last evening the visiting speakers of the Marshall Day program. Among those present were John N. Baldwin, Mrs Baldwin, Mrs Stewart, Miss Dodge, President and Mrs J. J. McCarthy, Judge Horace E. Deemer, Hon. A. B. Cummins, Hon J. C. Daves, Hon Wm. McNett.

At the close of the last address on the evening's program for John Marshall day, President G. E. MacLean thanked the state bar association for inaugurating its first celebration of John Marshall day at the seat of the state university. President McCarthy thanked the local committee for the work which they had done and congratulated the speakers of the day upon their excellent speeches, saying that their addresses would become a part of the permanent legal literature of the state.

EDITORIAL.

THE Iowa Citizen, the paper which first voiced the "great demand," was, according to its last issue, engaged in the delightful occupation of sitting on the fence. There are times in this strenuous life when a case of cold feet is entirely creditable to their owner's understanding and foresight.

THE privilege enjoyed by the students of the university yesterday of listening to the eloquent, scholarly, and inspiring addresses of the distinguished speakers of the afternoon and evening was an opportunity greatly appreciated by university students. May the state bar association observe the day annually and each time at the seat of our state university.

Class Elections

The junior annual election held last Saturday by the Sophomore class was somewhat out of the usual run of Hawkeye elections. Instead of one of the slates triumphing to the utter defeat of the other, both seem to have received a fair measure of defeat and victory. All of the candidates voted upon would have made good editors and we believe the board finally elected is an excellent one. The occurrence of a junior annual election is an occasion of thoughtful reflection to many who have gone through such a period of excitement in the past.

The election last Saturday, if we understand it correctly, had many encouraging features. It has always been a source of regret to many that the Hawkeye elections were determined principally by the desire of North and South Halls, of fraternity and anti-fraternity men to secure all the places upon the board for their members and allies. The editorship of the annual is a hard and difficult position, one for which the selection in a class of one hundred members is narrow. That any consideration beyond those of securing the best editor for the place should obtain in an election has been an unfortunate but usually present conditions to class elections. The necessity that has picked for the heads of the two opposing slates the men who will attract the most outside votes has led to the peddling of other editorial positions among the various elements of the class, regardless of efficiency and capability. Hence an editor has often found, upon his election, that he is surrounded by a board of figure-heads who have been put on as his assistants for political reasons, while much of the talent that he would have gathered around him, had his personal wishes been consulted, is out in the cold by reason of defeat in the election. This state of affairs has reached its climax when not a single member of the class who voted for the defeated ticket is allowed a minor position on the board. The excuse for it has not been that all the talent in the class is resident in the victorious majority but that the necessity of the political canvass has resulted in the promising of all the positions on the board.

This picture is, of course, exaggerated to bring out the tendency of a system rather than its actual condition either at present or in recent times. The moral which we wish to draw is seen in the election on Saturday, when a considerable element of the class refused to enter into any political alliance but voted for the men whom it considered would make the best editors. We hope that in every succeeding election there will be a larger and growing class of this sort. When such an element holding the balance of power, too strong to be disregarded by any group of aspirants for honors, is in every class then the elections will be better for the university and the class. If each member of the class could go into an election and vote for the man whom he had considered the best fitted for each office, the ideal election would be secured. This may be a Utopian scheme, but we hope to see the steady growth of its spirit in class elections.
