"Under the Red Dome."—What most undoubtedly proves the fashionable dramatic event of the season will be seen here on this Thursday night. This drama will be produced with all the elegance of style and taste which it was, given in New York at the Empire Theatre. Stanley Weyman's novel as translated into a drama by Bird. Ross rises out of its romantic charm and spreads its wings, and in the hands of his capable company it will no doubt be thoroughly appreciated. Mr. Paul Gilmore, who expect the hero is "Under the Red Dome," and Miss Frances Gaines, a most talented seasoned actress, will play the heroine. The company otherwise is large, strong and effective, so that a most perfect rendition of this famous play may be looked for.

SECRET SERVICE. "Secret Service."—William Col- let's great reverence of the Constitution will be presented at the open house Tuesday night in the same manner as the previous one. The heroine is a beautiful daughter of a Confederate general, who is Mr. Robert Armstrong and Captain Thomas. The former, popular because of the feminine interest, is divided into the hero, who is con- sented in a plot to bring him into surace. Although the hero and heroine have differ- ences in sectional sympathy, they mutually compromise all.
