THE REGISTRATION

Number of New Students Equals the Whole Number Graduated Last Year.

Owing to the great rush in the registrar's office it is impossible to give an exact account of the number registered, and anything like an authoritative statement as to the numbers enrolled is impossible at this time. However it is certain that a healthy increase will be shown in the number of students enrolled. Already there are some 400 new students registered which equals the total number graduated, from all colleges last June, and there are many new students in town who have not yet registered, owing to one cause or another. The total registration last night was 138 and as we go to press is approximately 140. A smaller per cent of the old students have registered than usual, as many of the former go to their classes for a day or two and register later. The size of the freshman making class is a pleasant surprise. Instead of all of the medics going through Chicago, as was predicted when the building burned, the freshman class this year is much larger than last and this in the face of an increase in the requireement to take from their two hundred and ninety first to forty months. President MacLean predicts that this year will run up to between 1800 and 1900, and the figures seem to be bearing out his prophecy.

Soil will have to be imported from one Iowa's corps of pitchers during the past two years. The Daily Iowa, however, is not in the mood to blame the men, who are sufficiently interested in their chosen profession.

THE IOWA'S HAND TO YALE.

IOWA'S HAND TO YALE.

President MacLean and Prof. Andrews Named as Delegates to the Yale Promotions.

In response to the invitation tendered the University of Iowa by the Yale University for the bi-centennial celebration of the founding of Yale, the following message, signed by President George E. MacLean, Jr., Yale, Ph. D., L. L. D., and Launcelot Winchester Andrews, Ph. B., Yale, Ph. D., are appointed to represent the State University of Iowa, which has taken part in many Yale athletic events, among its presidents and faculties, at the bi-centennial celebration of Yale University.

May Yale continue illustrious in the republic of letters and of learning.

The regents and faculties of the State University of Iowa acknowledge with thanks the invitation to be represented at the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the founding of Yale College. President George E. MacLean, Jr., Yale, Ph. D., and a. L. L. D., and Launcelot Winchester Andrews, Ph. B., Yale, Ph. D., are appointed to represent the State University of Iowa, which has taken part in many Yale athletic events, among its presidents and faculties, at the bi-centennial celebration of Yale University.

First Drill.

The first drill of the year and also the first under command of Captain Eunice took place yesterday at nine o'clock. One hundred and forty men were out owing to the fact that a large number of the new men are not yet equipped uniforms and others have not completed their registration. The battalion and companies were sized and the men put through the exercises.

The new men were taught the position of the soldier. In all, the battle was handled in a very orderly manner, from all appearances Captain Eunice will prove a strict disciplinarian. In these campaigns, he so conducted himself as to merit, and received several medals for bravery and meritorious service in action. Since leaving the army, on account of wounds received in action in the war, he has been instrumental in military science and tactics in the Fairfield Military Academy.

Preliminary Practice.

Dr. Kipre in the "Leader" justifies the usage and talk of our football players.

Fall Field Meet.

The question of preliminary training in football, by which is meant the preparation before the opening of the season, has given rise to much discussion and in this season practically abandoned. The tone of professionalism arising from excessive training quarters and the apparent attractiveness of a summer outing free of charge, is mainly responsible for the doing away at some universities of what is truly an essential and very necessary part of the season's work. Such criticism natural enough when the idea is presented in an expensive seashore resorts for weeks, but great expense is not essential, and the average freshman probably the individuals making a team is of far more importance than other thing, and yet uniforms and all the paraphernalia for the protection of players is bought by the athletic organizations of all the universities without the Union. In my opinion preliminary training is essential, I think no one will question, and the game is suffering in the lack of material. The accidents that could in a great instance happen under the "endurance training" phases of the Union are not long a period given simply to the physical development of the men.

The heavy schedules played between universities in the west, make it imperative that their team should be in form comparatively early, so that in order to condition the players preliminary training is essential; and the western schools, with much good sense, have ignored the protests of social and athletic managers.

On the other hand, the preparation before the school begins.

The serious injuries in football comes largely as a result of lack of training and the just protests of the college authorities. It is largely attributable to the shortsightedness of those who, having the matter in charge, know but little of the responsibilities they are apparently so willing to accept. In the preparation of a team is particularly, this true. The boys, anxious to test their strength, come into personal contact long before their physical development is adapted to the field conditions.

Much has been written and some published about the football suit, the physical equipment of the player. He must be at some time in the season, when even the names of the players are known. Noticing the physical strength or weakness, is a faculty I can only look upon with envy.

The material is excellent, so far as the weight is concerned, but a lot of men, anxious to do their work as well as possible, I have heard several times that the equipment is hard to develop or grasp the system being taught, only time can determine.

The Daily Iowan, as is stated on the first page, is published by the students of the State University of Iowa. This means just what it says and all of it. The Iowan is a student organ; for, by and of the students of the university and each and every one connected with the university is invited to co-operate in bringing it to success. This it will attain in the measure that it represents the students of the university. Contributions are gladly received from any and all, governed, of course, by newspaper usage respecting the identity of the author. None are barred from the editorial board of the Daily Iowan. Merit is the only criterion that will determine the make-up of the staff, and those will be selected, who demonstrate their interest in and adaptation for newspaper work by contributing to the paper suitable news matter. Anyone desiring to do newspaper work while in school is invited to enter into the competition on the board. Next year’s editors will be selected from the best reporters of this year.

Patience is a most necessary quality to possess, particularly at the first of the year. It takes lots of it to pass through the ordeal of registration without losing your temper. However, Miss Quill in her wisdom seems to have enough to make up for what everyone else lacks. It takes patience sometimes to find the rooms where your classes meet, but you only have to do this once a year and after you once find them you sometimes wish you hadn’t. It takes patience to make yourself believe, day after day, that the lovely white columns in the arts hall are really, truly marble, but they are. It takes a great deal of patience for laws and medics to be housed in the same building as they are in the arts hall, and maintain that orderly peace and decorum which is the proper demeanor of university students. It takes patience for the freshman to go to drill, but next year, when he can order some other fellow around, he will put on his blue suit with glee.

There is still room for improvement in the quality of spirit here at Iowa. Just at this season of the year, when the university is about to enter on another football schedule, the unanimous support of every student should be given to the team which will wear the old gold in 1901.

Phil Hall Receives.

At the Phil hall, last evening, was held a reception for the freshmen by the Philomathean and Octave Theta societies. About a hundred invited guests were present, and a very enjoyable evening spent.

President and Mrs. Lean were present during the earlier part of the evening, and in a short talk the President congratulated the societies upon their new hall, and the better opportunity it gave them to meet in social gatherings. He also spoke very encouragingly of society work in general, believing it to be a highly beneficial adjunct to the college curriculum.

The Ames Student appears this year as a twice-a-week newspaper under the editorship of Clyde Wathen, who last year made a reputation on the paper as local editor. The Student has always been a wide-awake college paper and will this year he better able to give all the Ames news to its readers. The Student is now the second college paper in Iowa to issue twice a week: the Scarlet and Black, of Grinnell, having satisfactorily served the students of Grinnell for several years as a semi-weekly.

University Golf Club.

Plants are being laid for the formation of a university golf club. There are already several clever players in school and that their number has been added to by the freshmen is evidenced by the appearance of many of the latter with a sports bag and a bunch of clubs. The members of the university club will probably become associate members of the Iowa City Golf Club and use the links north of the city. Matches for the fall will probably be arranged with several of the neighboring clubs and also with some of the western universities clubs. This movement meets the hearty approval of the golf players of the school. The date of the meeting for organizing the club will be announced later, at which all interested in golf should be present.
