SOCIETIES MEET.

Assemble in New Halls Tomorrow Evening.

The men's literary societies will hold their first regular programs of the autumn season -- this Tuesday evening. The freshman boys have been mailed personal invitations by all the societies so as to give them opportunity to witness special literary ability. The new programs are not entirely furnished, but workmen are busily engaged in preparing.

NEW QUARTERS.

Change in Library's Quarters Much Appreciated by Students.

Perhaps most of the old students and some of the new ones are aware that the general library has been removed from the former library building and is located now in the sixth east room on the third floor of the new building of the college of liberal arts. These apartments are furnished throughout with oak tables and chairs. In the general reading room are found books on English, art and public speaking.

The periodicals, reserve books and librarian's office each occupy a room. Four more department libraries have been established in the seminary room, adding to the French, German, Latin and Greek and can be had. There are more books covering Pedagogy, Mathematics, Philology, and Engineering.

The card catalogue is to be placed at the head of the stairs, thus being most conveniently and easily found.

The catalogue room is full of new books, recently received, which are waiting to be distributed to their proper places. Among the general collection are two valuable sets of the philological journals, Roman and Germania.

There is a committee for the engineering department. Mr. E. N. Barrett has generously presented the university with volumes of theological works which belonged to the collection of his husband, the late Dr. Bar­rett, of the Presbyterian church. The New Testament in various dialects of India is the gift from Elbert Lockridge, '71, who is returning to India as a missionary. Mr. Lockridge also replaced a duplicate set a series of books which the library had destroyed. Because of the general enlargement, additional help has been secured in the person of Miss Wood, a cataloger, Miss Strong, regular assistant, and several fellows and students, who are to aid when necessary.

The State Historical Library, under the charge of Mr. S. Thomas, assistant instructor in politics, has been removed from its old place on Washington street to the southwest wing of the upper floor of the new building. In fact nothing but a low airling divides it from the general university library. Here the newspapers received and later are filed away. As both libraries have practically the same collection of students, students have better facilities to pursue their work along such lines.

Baconian.

The first meeting of the Baconian Club for the present academic year will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, in the lecture room on Friday, Septem­ber 27, at 7:30 p.m. There will be reports by the president, and an election of officers for the ensuing year. The president will read the book, "Baconian Exegesis in Colorado."

The report will be illustrated.

OPERATION.

The gates at the football grounds will be open tomorrow afternoon, to all who wish to see the teams line up. The practice is secret and no visitors can be admitted on any day but Friday of each week until further notice.

FALL FIELD MEET.

The regular annual fall field meet will be held at the athletic park at 9 o’clock sharp, Saturday afternoon, September 28. Every man in the university who expects to try for the team next spring should take part in this meet; no matter whether in training or not.

The object of the meet is to get the making of records, but to enable coaches and captain to ascertain what material can be counted on for the spring, and the manager to make an estimate in advance of equipments needed in the spring. It is requested that all who can do so, hand their names and addresses to Captain R. M. Anderson or leave them at the athletic office.

FOOTBALL SEASON TICKETS.

The executive committee of the board of control, at a meeting yesterday, decided to issue a book of season tickets to the 9 football games on the home grounds, the price to be $10. This is a new departure in the way of season tickets, those sold heretofore having included admission to the spring events in addition to the football games at a price of $6. Student faculty members and all citizens who desire these tickets may obtain them at the athletic office, 200, hall of liberal arts, or at Bloom & Mayer’s, Coast & Ben’s, or Snappe’s clothing stores. Student officers of the board will make as complete a canvas as possible of all students and faculties, but the merchants and other citizens will secure the tickets only at the places mentioned above, in order that they may be saved the annoyance of being approached by canvapers.

Haven’t seen him yet.

There is gloom in the Maroon camp on account of the determinate breaking of Kemp, the big substitute center on last year’s Wisconsin team, to leave the Midway school and enter the University of Illinois. The reason is that he could not get a guarantee from the coaches, claiming that he was ill treated, and it is said that Hersberger is the man with whom he had trouble. Kemp played in the game with Lohard and made such a good a substitute that Stagg was not using him to play one of the line positions. Kemp left last night for Iowa City.

Foot-Ball Season Tickets.

Season Tickets, including admission to the 9 football games to be played on the home grounds, will be on sale after Friday, September 27, at noon, at the athletic office, room 200, hall of liberal arts, and at Bloom & Mayer’s, Coast & Ben’s, and Snappe’s clothing stores. Price $10.
