LITERARY SOCIETIES.

New Students Formally Included In Quill and Scroll Societies.

The new men, who expect to do their literary work, are now being worked by the old men who are new in the University. It is left to the students in some corner of the campus a crowd of Zeta around a new man trying to convince him that their society is superior to all others. In another corner a crowd of Irving- are preaching the virtues and strong points of the Irving to some one else. The Philos may also be seen explaining what a mistake it would be to become anything except a Philos. The gay societies are also at work.

For the benefit of these new students who are told so many different stories that they are unable to tell just where they are at the following list of societies with their records and qualifications for membership.

The Zetagathian society and Irving Institute together unite and form the literary society of the university, which holds annual contests in debate with the Literary Societies of Wisconsin and Minnesota. The Philosophian society has held one debate with a society of Grinnell College and also one of the societies from the University of South Dakota. The Oratorical League is formed by the literary societies of the three colleges. This League annually contests in the Northern Oratorical League.

The Irving and Zetalaghtian have had class and preliminary contests for the past ten years. During the first six of these years the Zetagathians won by far the greatest number of victories. However, this year the Irving and Zetalaghtian men, the old ones for the most part, have been on the side lines and helping with the details of the meet. This new track team is under the track condition. The Irving, as referees did excellent work and worked through the list of events after the meet started at 2:15 o'clock.

Athletic News.

All branches of the Athletic Union must hereafter be under the hands of the manager by the first which is in order to be presented for approval of payment at the executive committee of the University. These meetings will be held on the first Saturday after the first day of each month.

AMERICANS VICTORIOUS.

Representatives of Harvard and Yale Win at Chicago Series with a Score of 6 to 3.

The condition of athletics at the University is in a very unsatisfactory condition. To remedy matters, representatives of the leading colleges are making changes among their classmatess by means of which they hope to raise sufficient money to put the football team on a firm financial basis. The scheme is as follows: The signers promise to pay $1 toward the support of athletics for the current term with the understanding that a season ticket be issued to each one of them. All this is providing that eighty per cent of the students in the institution put their name to the petition.

President Roosevelt has written a letter to the Yale bi-centennial committee expressing an entire satisfaction which begins October 19 and it is expected that a number of officers are to be appointed as a result. It is unadvisedly stated that Roosevelt and Sargent will report to the committee, preserving to them the title of tradition from Yale at the time of the bijcentennial.

AMERICANS VS ENGLISHMAN.

The athletes representing Harvard and Yale Colleges met the British team from Oxford at Berkeley Oval, Wednesday and the Americans proved themselves superior to their English opponents. There were nine events in the program and of these two were won by the Americans with the following results and as only firsts counted, the score was 6 to 3. The Cambridge men excelled in the distance runs and finished first in the half mile, mile and mile and two-mile runs. The Yale and Harvard men shared honors, each winning three firsts. The Yale men placed here cred it the high and broad jumps and the 100-yard dash, while Harvard defeated the Englishmen in the hammer throw, the 120-yard hurdles and the quarter mile run.

Summary of Events.

High jump — 1st, Spraker, Y., 5 ft. 11 in.; 2nd, Kerman, H., 5 ft. 9 in.; 3rd, Smith, C., 5 ft. 7 in.; 4th, Henderson, O., 5 ft. 9 in.

Broad jump — broad, Spraker, Y., 24 ft. 6 in.; 2nd, Ristime, H., 21 ft. 8 in.; 3rd, Henderson, O., 19 ft. 10 in.

Hammer Throw — 1st, Beal, H. 106 ft. 8 in.; 2nd, May, O., 98 ft. 4 in.; 3rd, Hines, O., 85 ft. 5 in.

The points were divided as follows: Harvard, 37; Yale, 3; Cambridge 3. Oxford 9.

Anect the Freshman.

From the following article, taken from the Michigan Daily News, it would appear that the Michigan first year man is not so successful as at Iowa.

"The lot of the freshman is truly a hard one, and this year the old men are rich on the same old relish. The old draft of selling 'cam­ pus tickets and library seat' tickets was worked once more, and chucking upper classmen and0 sophomores took in the new men.

One very big man — the greatest cut to his last but he bespeaks a fresh face and the Soph made him down the street and asked if he was fresh. Said he, 'I don't want to be robbed by any monopoly.' He was directed to the handsome mansion on the campus that is occupied by Presi­ dent Angell.

"Go there," said the joker, "walk right up to the door and ask for the president.' But at last found an anti-trust bashery.

But worst of all the varieties of freshmen by the old class are going to be in session, will be invited and ex-President Cleveland will be in session to make the principal address.

Two of the regents, P. K. Hol­ land, of Alamo, and Edward Ing­ am, of Alona, were in the city yesterday. They said it was not their wish that Cleveland should consent to speak, but it was hoped he would. President Mac­ Lean, the head of the university, will address the students at the Yale centennial celebration October 25. He will go to Prince­ ton, and in the fall he who is at Cleveland's consent. Senators and other friends have been influential in his favor. It is possible Senator Dolliver will visit Iowa City to listen to his purpose of prevailing on him to come west across the Mississippi. In case Mr. Cleveland will not come, the regents have several other men of national reputation in mind. These are ex­ Speaker Reed and Bourke Cochran.
The Iowan, a student newspaper of The University of Iowa, publishes a variety of content, including news articles, advertisements, and announcements. The text includes announcements about the availability of a new catalogue, information about the Iowan's subscription services, and notices about upcoming student events. Notably, the text mentions the publication of Volume 3 of The Michigan Daily-News, which has reached its exchange table and is a very creditable college publication.
FRESHMAN-SOPHOMORE.

The Freshmen Proclaim their Recent Victory and Announce their Ability to Repeat the Dose.

About 8 o'clock last night some two hundred of the '95 men gathered in front of the central gate to burn the '94 class in effigy. A mock coffin was procured, the deceased '94 representative placed therein, and some happy band were soon dancing about the flames which consumed the vanquished foe. Not a sophomore could be seen. But even with this they were not satisfied and last night sometime during the short hours those naughty freshmen, flushed with their great victory of the afternoon, stole out and by means of large and conspicuous proclamations sought to "rub it in" on the defeated sophomores. This morning from one end of the city to the other may be read posters bearing the following:

Warning! We came! We saw! We conquered! Hear Ye! Hear Ye, what we have to say.

The freshman has won the day. The sophomore's cradle is a thing of the past. For cradles can't hang over the class of '95. We feel very sorry for the class of '94. But when they are ready we'll give them some more.

Class of '95.

An Important Monograph.

Professor Houser, of the Department of Animal Morphology and Physiology, has just published a work upon which he has been engaged at the Marine Biological Laboratory, the University of Chicago, and the John Hopkins University. This following review of it is copied from a recent issue of Science: "The Journal of Comparative Neurology for September (Vol. XII., No. 2) contains, in addition to the usual reviews of literature, but one paper entitled, The Neurons and Supporting Elements of the Brain of a Cephalopod. By Dr. G. L. Houser, of the University of Iowa, a monograph of 154 pages, with eight plates. The entire central nervous system of the common dog octopus, Octopus, has been examined by the best neurological methods, both new and old, and an attempt is made to give a picture of the complete neurons characteristic of each important region of the brain. So far as this can be attained by the methods of Weigert, Golgi, Nissl and Heidenhain, among others, it has been quite successfully accomplished, and thus an important addition is made to our knowledge of a critical phylogenetic stage of the vertebrate nervous system. The supporting elements have been subjected to the same careful study. The phylogenetic point of view has been before the author throughout, and interesting general conclusions are suggested in connection with the various cephalic regions, notably, the problems of nerve components, the physiography of the cerebellum, Reissner's fibre and its associated osmianum for direct motor reflexes between the optic tectum and the body musculature, and the forebrain."

Like apple blossoms fall in the spring, after a shower of rain, when the wind blows through the orchard, so do tears fall from the eyes of spectators during a production of "Uncle Josh Sprucey" and just as the sun follows the rain, so does laughter succeed the tears in the rendering of the drama. It is not an affected story. It is a true tale of a few simple, but honest people, the principal incidents of their lives, tied together with pure, and at the same time, beautiful language. It is just a stage poem, filled with all tears in the heart, and also will co-mingle the tears of spectators during the rendering.

yesterday morning and said to him, ‘I’m looking for my English class.’ This is a class in German,” said the professor, “what instruction do you have?” “I don’t know,” said the ‘og man. “Well, what hour are you supposed to have it?” “I don’t know.” “Well, don’t you know in what room the class you are looking for is held?” “No.” “Well,” said the professor, “I am afraid that I cannot help you, and then you had better get an announcement.” The first year man thought so too, and sadly wandered towards the secretary’s office.

The first social function of the year was the dancing party given Thursday evening, by Mr. and Mrs. Max Mayer in honor of their niece, Miss Helen Cohen. The K of P. halls, decorated with autumn leaves and golden rod, made a very pretty appear-
