YESTERDAY'S PRACTICE.

New Men Showing Up Well in Practice Game. Scrubs Weak in Defensive.

The practice yesterday saw a slight improvement in the offensive work of the 'varsity over previous days. The weakness of the scrub team in anything like a spirited defense of their positions prevents any reliable figuring on tomorrow's result being made from this showing. The 'varsity's interference is still tattered and torn as a general rule though at times a brace is taken which gives the side line man a remembrance of how Iowa players have done on Iowa field in years past. Aside from Williams, Weiland shows the best work in staying by the runner and helping him along. Buckley played good consistent ball while he was tried in the backfield. The candidates for positions in the rear of the line have been accorded thorough trial this week in all the positions. Some unexpected brilliancy and fitness has been shown by candidates not generally mentioned in connection with places and some surprises are expected when the 'varsity line up is officially announced. Wyant at end showed himself a strong offensive player. Some trouble is being experienced in selecting a running mate for Burrier, the brilliant tackle, who with Joe Warner bore a large part of the brunt of last year's offensive play.

The varsity was weaker last night on the defensive than at any time during the week, excepting Monday's rotten practice. Melzer for the scrubs gained at will through the lines and around the ends and Macy and the other seconds very frequently plucked up their courage to the gaining point. Dwight Griffith ran the scrubs excellently, was always in his place in the interference and on fumbles or unexpected plays, was the always-present embodiment of his great brother, the ex-Captain John.

Three touchdowns were made by the varsity in thirty-five minutes' play. Watters kicked one goal and ruined the others by short kicks which went just under the bar. His direction was always true and with a bit more practice he will be able to fulfill all the requirements in the goal-kicking line.

A FACULTY DISLOYAL.

Students of Minnesota University Charge Faculty of Disloyalty to Athletics.

The charge that the faculty of Minnesota University does not support athletics, appears again this year. The faculty of that institution has decided to hold its regular meetings on Saturday afternoons at 2 o'clock and how, say the students, are the members of that body to attend the football games this fall under such an arrangement. It is urged that by this means those who are not interested, not only remain away from the games, but are enabled to detain those professors and instructors who would otherwise be loyal.

The Minnesota Daily indulges in this bit of suggestion: "The Daily would like to suggest that to still further show how much they love athletics the faculty pass a rule forbidding members from going to the games and compelling them to sit for two or three hours in a close room when they ought to be out in the fresh air enjoying themselves. Something must be done at once if the members who forget themselves and go to the games here are to be made to reform."

THE ATHLETIC PARK.

New Grand Stand and Football Field Ready for Use. Crowd can be Accommodated.

The new grand stand, which has long been needed and waited for, is at last almost complete. The workmen are rushing the work today and it will be ready for use at the Normal game tomorrow. This will be the first game ever held on home grounds at which the crowd will be satisfactorily seated. Heretofore the old bleachers have only been large enough to hold a few hundred, while the greater part of the crowd was compelled to stand around the side lines, but now, at the small games at least, everyone will be comfortable, for the new stand has a seating capacity of over four thousand. They are situated just across the track on the west side of the new football field, which will also be used for the first time tomorrow. With these improvements and those that were made in the spring the athletic park begins to take on an up-to-date appearance.

The first lecture of the term before Sigma Xi fraternity will be given next Wednesday evening in the amphitheatre of the Chemical building. It will be given by Prof. Calvin on the Pleistocene and other geological deposits in Iowa. The lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon views. The meeting is public and everyone interested in Iowa's Geology is invited to attend.

The "Ambrosia" and "M & G" 5 cent cigars are strictly hand made and not doped with flavor. Their rich, mellow flavor comes from the blend of high grade tobaccos from which they are made.

FRESHMAN TROUBLES.

Freshmen at Illinois University Submit to Indignities at Hands of Sophomores.

A few nights since, at Champaign, Illinois, the sophomores captured a number of freshmen and after putting them through various antics, they ducked them in the boneyard mud, "new suits" and all. The next night the freshies were again taken into the care of the kind upper classmen and were allowed to refresh the memories of rural days by riding the town cows, to the great delight of the captors.

One youth defended his pet moustache with a revolver and had been a little better marksman, serious injuries might have resulted.

Scandal Story Denied.

Hearst's Chicago American publishes a complete retraction of its last month's correspondent's malicious report.

Last evening's Chicago American printed in a prominent position on the sporting page the following dispatch under the head, "Iowa's Football Affairs run Smoothly."

"Iowa City, Iowa, Oct. 3.—Earlier in the season there were reports of scandal and disorganization in the athletic organizations of the University of Iowa, and these reports averred that several football players of last year's clever team had refused to return for football practice unless there was a change in the management.

"President MacLean has taken the trouble to investigate these reports, and he declares there is no truth in them and that the athletic affairs of the University are working harmoniously to produce the best football team possible. He declares there is no dissatisfaction with the management, which will be continued.

"Williams, Watters and Burrier, three of last year's team, were questioned regarding these reports and strenuously denied them. It is asserted at Iowa City that they are inspired by personal malice toward the present football management."

The Chicago American has always heretofore accorded to Iowa the best of treatment and it is plainly evident from the sentiments expressed in the above article that the American's new correspondent will probably be a man who shall bear the University of Iowa and Iowa City no "personal malice."

Reception for Ladies.

The Dean of Women wishes to announce that all ladies of Iowa City, who are alumnae, former students or friends, are cordially invited to be present at a reception to be given in the young women's drawing room in the hall of liberal arts, on Saturday, October 5, at 2:30 p. m.

Four freshmen have been suspended from the University of Minnesota for one year, on charge of vandalism.

COLLEGE JOURNALISM.

With but Few Exceptions Leading Journals are Edited Independent of Faculties.

The Literary Digest lately sent out inquiries to a number of representative college journals, east and west, asking for information as to some of the practical details of their editorial management. Replies have thus far been received from nineteen papers, including the Amherst Student, the University of Chicago Weekly, the Columbia Spectator and Morning-side, the Cornell Daily Sun and Widow, the Harvard Lampoon, the Princeton Tiger, the Williams Lit., the Vassar Miscellany, and the Yale Daily News. Judging by the replies received college faculties, nowadays, have almost nothing to do with college journalism, and the process of filling staff positions through election by the editorial board seems well-nigh universal. Of these nineteen college papers, only two, the University of Pennsylvania Red and Blue and the Wesleyan Literary Magazine, consult the faculty in filling their editorial chairs. In almost all, editors are chosen chiefly from the upper classes after various competitive tests, and this system seems to give general satisfaction. So far as reported, the method of competition adopted by the University of Chicago Weekly is the most stringent, and in effect, though not altogether in detail, approaches the nearest to the methods of daily journalism. Appointments are made on the basis of merit as shown in a six-months' competition among the reporters, to which any student is eligible. Twice a year, in June and September, a valuation is made of the amount and quality of work done by each reporter and each editor. The seven whose work is most satisfactory become the editorial board for the next six months, and the others are given places on the waiting list. The decision rests with a merit board made up of the managing and assistant managing editors and member of the English faculty of the university. Since the inauguration of this method great improvement is said to have taken place in the paper.—Literary Digest.

Application made at Iowa City post-office for entry as second class mail matter.

The Iowan invites faculty members to make their announcements to classes and departments through its columns.

Judging from the appearance of a cartoon in the Daily Nebraskan, one would be led to the conclusion that the artist of that publication must be haunted by bad dreams of the Minnesota-Nebraska foot-ball game.

Although apparently a little premature, a hard luck story emanates from the Drake camp. "The team is in a critical condition. The men have not mastered the signals and the playing is loose. The big team plays high, charges slow, and fails to diagnose the plays."

An "uncrossed goal line" sounds good to the Nebraskans after having defended it in one game and the Daily from that university calls upon the students to continue the record. After you have kept it unsullied by hostile feet for two seasons, Nebraska, then you may be proud of your record.

Unlike those of Minnesota the students of Iowa have no complaint to make in regard to the support given athletics by the members of the faculty. While here the faculty ask and demand that the highest grade of purity in athletics be maintained, that professionalism be countenanced in no manner whatsoever, and that a good class record be made by the athletes, in all of which the student body cheerfully acquiesce, yet with these rules established and rigidly enforced, athletics on this basis are given their proper recognition in university life. The faculty, professors and instructors not only sanction and attend the games but at the time of important contests half holidays have from time to time been declared in order that all might be present.

The new society rooms in Close Hall, which are being furnished, begin to look more like literary halls should look. They are a great improvement over the lecture rooms which the societies have been forced to use since the fire last winter, but yet they are far from what they should be. They are entirely too small as the crowd of a regular program fills them. The ventilation is also very poor and means should be taken to improve it at once. But perhaps the worst feature of them is the echo from the speakers voices. The walls and ceiling are built in such a way that the sound, re-sounds from one wall to the other and makes a muffled effect. This difficulty should be done away with by remodeling the ceiling and walls. These halls cannot at best be good for anything but temporary quarters and are a poor substitute for old South Hall.
