NEW PHYSICS COURSES.

They Will be Made Possible by the Expanding of the Department.—Many Changes Planned.

The physics department of the university, which has long been cramped into the ground floor and basement of its old building, has lately been granted, in addition, the use of the second floor of that building. The space vacated will be occupied by the general library. This added space will enable the department to better handle the branches already taught and to conduct some lines of study and experiment before impossible.

Plans for the expansion of the department have been submitted to the board of regents who have unofficially approved them, preliminarily, particularly the lack of funds prevented their immediate execution. These plans contemplate the constructing of a lecture room on the second floor of the same general arrangement as the present one, and the construction of a new amphitheatre to accommodate two hundred people. Besides the ample increase in room there will be an increase in floor an apparatus and preparation rooms, a new office for the head and a large laboratory to take the place of the present one. The department has no ground floor, which is much too small.

The ground floor of the building will be subdivided and rearranged for special laboratories, seminary rooms and library room. The present lecture room will be made into three smaller rooms and the present library room will be divided by a partition, into two, one of which will be used to accommodate the library.

In addition to these needed changes in the interior of the old building, it is proposed to construct a stairway which will give easy access to the roof. This will be done for the purpose of meteorological work. A station will be set up there with special recording instruments and a complete set of government meteorological apparatus. The equipment which the department will be prepared to conduct experiments on air currents and air pressures and also offer courses in meteorology and atmospheric changes.

Professor Veblen, head of the department, who is now voluntary government observer in this city, states that there is probability of this becoming a regular government position, as a paid officer in charge when the new observation rooms are completed.

CO-EDUCATION UPHeld.

President MacLean Defends the System—Better Than That of Harvard and Columbia.

In his address to the women of the "U" at the opening of the women's drawing room Saturday afternoon in the Grinnell Hotel, President MacLean took the opportunity to say a good word for co-education. His address in part, was that last year, he had been criticised for attempting to say that which Dean Young had said much better than he could and he did not intend to again en- croach upon her province. President MacLean, of Yale is quoted as saying that co-education is a failure in the larger colleges and univer- sities of this land and holding that co-ordination is the better way of educating the future, designating thereby the system of maintaining separate colleges for men and women to progress there. As the same head and employing the same teachers, as is done at Rad- kiffe and Welles, which, he admires as adapted to the purpose, although a canvass fence will have to be erected as the old fence has been.

The game will begin at 7:30 p.m. with R. E. Marshall of Detroit as umpire and Hayner of Chicago as referee. The old and the new rules will be used throughout the game. The head linemen and timer have not yet been selected.

The game promises to be a hot contest, as Drake is determined to score, while Iowa is equally determined to save its unscored goal-line.

The special train carrying the band and rooters will leave the C. R. 1. & P. station here at 6:30 p.m. Friday, and will permit the Iowa City people to enjoy the Semi-.musc.-arrival at the Des Moines station on time. President MacLean will excise absence of all students who register in the S. U. I. register at the time the train leaves the station.

II. The disposition manifested by some members of the battalion to ignore altogether official com- munication, and to act on the unverifiable say, on the campus bulletin board, or who through neglect or indifference will not be promptly othand was liable to mistake the signal from the noise. In the second half when Iowa was not doing so well, the crowd kept still.

The men on the field were trying their best to keep their opponents from gaining ground and each such attempt had its failure recorded by a deeper silence on the side lines. When the team is losing is the time the fellows in the bleachers should stand up and shout for Old Iowa with all their breath. Then is the time to encourage the men on the team, for then they need it. Save your voice when we are winning; but if things begin to look bad, remind the players that they are playing for the university, that the university looks to them to uphold its honor and win or lose it is behind them. Then, rather than when we are winning, is the time that the call should be made for the team's greatest exertion, and this can be done in no way so surely and completely as by rooting. The kind of rooting that tells them that looking on are thousands who are hoping, wishing and striving for them to win, is the kind that counts. We have won so long that some of the student body possibly do not know what to do when we are losing. There is only one thing to do and that is, yell. If the officers of the athletic union want to do something to make a winning football team, they will call a mass meeting and appoint yell masters for the next game whose business it will be to provide yells and lead the rooting for the old gold.

at Cedar Rapids, Saturday, and in the game that followed, he proved himself worthy of the place. Coe's team outweighted
the second team and were playing before their own crowd, yet they were outplayed from start to finish. In the first half, Coe made some good gains round the ends but never seriously endangering our goal line. In the second half, line smashes directed at center and smashes carried the ball
steadily and surely towards Coe's goal. Once we lost the ball on downs within one yard of the line
and again within three yards.
The men who carried the ball in the second plays were Captain Macy, Clearman and the tackles, For-
