rout, simply must get out of the closet of his mates must be such that no other course is open. A slighter stronger enforcing legislation, I believe at Iowa this spring will not only make stronger athletic teams, but will make them face the fact of fulfilling the purpose of athletics in the university--best track work--good to the greatest number of students.

LIFE: 'IT is with his sons, London, 1842, vol. 2, The sentiment at Iowa in re-

The Men Should Have No Choice but to Compete for the Track--Every Man where Can Do Best

They should start the work of raising money to support spring track. They should start work soon.

The second week of the winter term will see its way, and there cometh not through the land the sound of money being raised for the athletic union to pay for spring athletics. The need for this money has been fully set out before the officers of the union and before the students of the university. The football profits, in short, are not enough to pay for the improvements on the athletic field and leave balance to pay the debt that always arises on spring athletics. Consequently, the board of athletic control has to have the assurance that the money will be raised to make up this deficit or a smaller and wholly unsatisfactory schedule or none at all. There are so many facts in each branch of spring athletics.

THE DAILY IOWAN
IOWA CITY, IOWA

Let those who do not realize the university's need for a library building take a look at the long rows of books which lack of room has made it necessary to store in the corridors of the new Hall of Liberal Arts.

The committee on the freshman banquet report they expect to have the most elaborate spread ever given on a similar occasion and if they go at it with the same determination and resource they displayed when pitted against the sophomores it is safe to predict the affair will be a great success.

The lengthening of the library hours is an improvement which will be heartily welcomed by the students of all colleges. With the doors open from eight o'clock in the morning until ten at night the demands for longer hours will doubtless be silenced and it is needless to state that what books the library contains will come nearer to meeting the needs of the student body.

The exhibition of the spirit and enthusiasm which has been pent up since the close of the football season will be in order at the debate tomorrow night and if Iowa is to maintain the high level she now enjoys in the forensic field the student body must see to it that the speakers of tomorrow evening are given an audience and reception second to none ever accorded our athletic teams.

The season of activity in forensic lines is now upon us and no effort should be spared which will tend toward placing Iowa's standard even a notch higher.

In another column we print an article by Dean Charles Noble Gregory which commands a place in the editorial columns of the leading law journal of England. It is a significant honor to Dean Gregory and materially to the university which he represents to be so generally and favorably recognized by the leading law publishers of England and America and this merited recognition together with the admirable success of the past term assure us in the conviction that possibly the board of regents acted even wiser than they knew in the choice of a head for the college of law.

Amusements

Shakespeare may be passed, but there was no evidence of it at the New Crawford theatre last night. Charles B. Handford as Petruchio in 'The Taming of the Shrew' was a sufficient magnet to draw a bumper house. The large castle which may be called upon under auspicious circumstances to support the Shakespearean drama made up one of the largest houses of the season. The circumstances last night were auspicious. Mr. Handford had been well heralded and the public interest in his appearance was his merited reward. Two of the prize houses of the year, those of Stuart Robinon and Mr. Handford, have been due largely to the judicious publicity given their productions. Mr. B. Handford is, essentially, an exponent of the classics. His reading of Blank verse is masterly. There is not a player on the American stage today whose reading of this style of text shows the art and the intelligence of Mr. Handford. With this equipment he could not fail in any of the characters created by the Bard of Avon. His Petruchio was dashing, adroit, keen. Helen Grantley, next in importance to the star, made the sort of a Katherine who shines in the lithographs as well as in the play. With the rather gorgeous gown afforded she was altogether prepossessing. The criticism might be made that she limited force and power in her earlier scenes, but her grasp of the character in the ones following more than atoned. William J. Shea as Grumio afforded something very acceptable buffoonery. There was a large supporting company, including Marie Drohan, whose real name is the one given here spelled backward. Previous to the main bill a curtain raiser, 'The Guard,' done several years ago by Henry Irving, was given and was mainly enjoyed for the chances for emotional acting given Mr. Handford.

How About Your Feet

H OPE they are not worrying you. No man can develop the better part of his nature while his feet ache. Aside from making himself disagreeable to others he loses considerably of life's sunshine. It gets right by him—he is busy thinking about those feet. Its good business to buy shoes intelligently. The Walk-Over Shoe is the smartest shoe for men on the market. They wear longest and look best and they feel broken in from the start. They cost $3.50 and $4.00 and are for sale here—can't get them anywhere else in town—come and see them.
