FOSSIL OF A FISH-LIZARD TO BE SOLD.

The specimen, a Valuable One—Sought After by Other Universities—Iowa Will Preserve and Present—Found in Germany.

For some time past there has been an exhibition in the Wieseker's St. James Arcade store a fossil specimen of this great Mesozoic reptile. The specimen, Ichthyosaurus planactus, was obtained from the Lias beds of the Jurr-sassic period at Holzmaden, Ge-many. The Ichthyosaurus is a large animal with a stout body, short neck, and jaws set in a row. The specimen consists of a number of contiguous bones, but without distinct toes, covered by a web which greatly increased its efficiency as swimming organs. The bodies of the vertebral column were not united by ribs, but were divided into most living reptiles, but were bi-ocenes. That the habits of the creature were predatory and voracious is shown by the teeth. The two specimens combined in a remarkatable degree the character of sau-ropsidian and ichthyosaurian animals. This combination is expressed in the name.

The owner of the specimen, Otto Kuntze, Ph. D., the well-known geologist and mineralogist and dealer of Iowa City, being desirous of having such a fine specimen remain in the University, agreed to present it to the University Museum for $500, the sum which had been asked for it in Iowa City. In order to give all students, alumni and connexions of the institution, an opportunity to see the specimen, Mr. Wieneke has been prepared to sell it for twenty-five cents by some public-spirited students.

In view of the lack of appreciation of his efforts and as he has received several offers of purchase at a much higher price from the Universities of Minnesota and Yale, as well as from private collectors, Dr. Kuntze has decided to withdraw the specimen from exhibition to the Iowa City public and ship it to one of the above-mentioned cities. Considering the fact that a little effort and a few cents by some public-spirited students would not be felt by the donors would have saved such a rare and valuable scientific acquisition to the university and the state it is unfortunate that it must go to a rival institution.

At the very beginning, in choosing the profession or occupation, is where the blunders can be easily made and there is where the greatest precaution should be taken.

A mistake that is made by many is that they give too much heed to the advice of others. Parents often have some pet ideas about what their children should do and they do the choosing for them and in doing so do them more harm than good in the majority of cases. Others make the mistake of going into something without really knowing what they are getting into. They look at a profession merely from an outside and very superficial point of view. Still others choose no profession at all, but simply allow themselves to drift along, following the line of least resistance.

Thus the step being so important and the mistakes being so easily made. It cannot but seem that everyone should very carefully consider the question of what he is fitted for. He should first study himself, his likes and dislikes, what he can do and what he cannot. Then the field of occupations should be very carefully examined. He should know what he is getting into before he gets in.

The sooner a calling is chosen the better. A single purpose early chosen sharpens one's powers for work and gives ambition which is the soul of success.

Of course narrowness must be guarded against. Broad and large ideas of life are of primal importance but closely interwoven with them should run the purpose and plan of some especial occupation to follow. To have something one can do and then do it is what leads to the front.

How About Your Feet
HOPE they are not worrying you. No man can develop the better part of his nature while his feet ache. Aside from making himself disagreeable to others he loses considerable of life's sunshine. It
