Take a business man who is prosperous, who is ever enlarging his trade and stock and you will find, without fail, that he is a man who advertises a great deal. But if you see a business man who is traveling in the opposite way than to prosperity, who is sitting on his counter waiting for customers, it is most always safe to say at least one great cause of his failure lay in the fact that he didn't know the value of drawing trade by liberal and judicious advertising. Illustrations of this fact we see every day. Any way of making your business known is advertising.

The value of advertising is not at all limited to the man engaged in buying and selling but in a little different way perhaps, is just as important and vital to the man in the profession. The young man leaving the university with a doctor's licence or the lawyers' privilege is met by the same problems that bothers the merchant. How can I build up a practice and how can I secure clients? These are the great questions before the young college man as he leaves school and because a great many of them don't know how to solve them they go down in defeat. They lock up their offices and declare their profession to be overcrowded. A great many of these failures come from the very fact that the men did not know how to make themselves known, by getting out and becoming acquainted. The professional man of course cannot advertise in the same way as a business man, but he can let everyone know who he is and what he can do, which is just as surely advertising. The college man must realize the immense importance of this great idea of advertising if he would be successful, no matter what his business or profession. Sitting in an office waiting for something to turn up will not bring business.

How About Your Feet

Hope they are not worrying you. No man can develop the better part of his nature while his feet ache. Aside from making himself disagreeable to others he loses considerable of life's sunshine. It gets right by him—he is busy thinking about those feet. Its good business to buy shoes intelligently. The Walk-Over Shoe is the smartest shoe for men on the market. They wear longest and look best and they feel broken in from the start. They cost $3.50 and $4.00 and for sale here—can't get them anywhere else in town—come and see them.
