A NEW BOARD
ALL STATE EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS UNDER ONE HEAD

Regents and Trustees May Be Done Away with—Compared in Their Action with the Board of Control of Other Institutions

In the debate over the university tax in the senate yesterday the fact was brought out that a movement was on for an educational board of control. In a quiet way in wrestling amongst given much attention by the members of the general assembly and work has been put upon a bill providing for such a board. But what the chances of the bill are is doubtful, and while the agitation for such a board finds much favor, there is also a feeling that it is rather late in the session to take up so important a matter. Temple of Clarke is one of the members of the assembly that has given the question much attention. He said yesterday that he did not think that this bill would be introduced, owing to the lateness of the session. He said the question is a big one, and the three great educational institutions placed under a single controlling body. One of the chief factors in inducing the members to favor an educational board of control is the large amount of palling and bailing that has got to be done on the very session of the legislature to get appropriations for the institutions and the tremendous power which with the tunnel incident to appropria ting for the educational means and the plausibility with which the board of control appears before the appropriation committee. The bill is a piece of legislation to get appropriations for the institutions. The bill has got to be introduced.

President MacLean has been invited to the senate by Professor Foster, consisting of about sixty American educators. The members of this board have been selected from all parts of the country, and are not only capable and prominent men, but they are also to meet their approval. The plan to establish such a board originated with the University of Chicago. By means of this regulation it is believed that only men of ability will be selected. The regents would be sent to Germany to study the German universities. SENATE VOTES
One-fifth Tax Bill Passes by a Vote of 30 to 7

A telegram at 10:15 today morning announces that the tax bill for 1898 has passed the Senate by a vote of 30 to 7. Ex-Army General McKinley in discussing the matter makes the statement that he has no doubt but that the house bill would be reconsidered favorably.

A DEFICIT
The Lecture Bureau Fails to Pay Expenses by a Sum of $312

The university lecture bureau find as a result of the year's course that there is a balance on the wrong side of the ledger of $312. The causes which are cit ed in the account are that there has been the year before a year before university audiences the great number of lectures given by various entertainments. It has also been unfortunate that several of the houses have had to be evacuated because of the lateness of the meeting. There is a great tendency for the public to be a little absent, and the result has been a considerable loss. The total proceeds of the season was $251. In the expense column is found: Rent for opera house $100; Brooks Marine band $100; Col. Parent's band $125; Otteman was $100; Thomas Dixon $150; Fred Emerson $100. The cost of advertising and other incidental expenses swallows the sum with an advantage against profits of $112.

PHILO
"Lies," R. F. Drewry, Deb. Res., that penny postage is a mistake in the educational and civic interests, as is also the single controlling body. The plan that is being talked of for an educational board of control is to provide for the appointment by the governor of a board of three members, to be confirmed by the senate, and to carry on their duties under their own provisions of law as now apply to the board of control of state institutions.—Leader.

BEHIND THE SCENES
DAY WITH A COLLEGE EDITOR
Hunts for News to Stop the Cry of the Printers—Later Communal Effort to Cut the Waste Basket and Some One Escape Mention

There are as many methods and systems of managing a newspaper as there are different kinds of news. There is no one way to do it. Daily with its hundreds of inches of reading matter down through the mixed and intermediate grades, and the newsboys with a bundle under their arm are crying, "Extra! Extra! Here is the big fire!" before the firemen have left the scene. A study of the management of one of the great papers is interesting and instructive indeed.

From this class of journalism we can go to the other extreme of a small country weekly, where the man who runs it is the editor, manager, printer, newsboy, all in one. He wears a cummerbund and a dirty collar, and the traditional patch on his trousers, and is ready at all times to take his place on the dry goods box at the village store and there discuss philosophical and practical questions with the sages. At the end of the week he has gotten up enough material to fill his paper, which is read eagerly by his sub-ers.

Besides these general classes of newspapers there is one which has a field all its own. The college daily offers a newspaper study and system of journalism which is particularly its own. The ups and downs of a college editor are many and varied and judging from the remarks made by some, are not generally understood. A day at a college newspaper office is some full of interest.

The editing of a college paper is generally taken by turns by the members of the board of editors.

On the night previous to an editor's issue he, after patiently preparing his lessons for the next day, sits down and contemplates the over the prospective events of the following day. Down in his note book go the places he must visit the next morning, where events are likely to be found. Scratching his head he then works out his ideas for his editorial column.

During the night in his peaceful slumbers he has dreams and visions of hundred of events and a friendly compliment which awakes his drooping spirits.

Next morning he experiences a day on a college daily. It, as was said, has its ups and downs, but the sun is pleasant and some are not. It is a struggle to make ends meet, and on the whole it is exciting and in the writer's experience.

If Morals are a QUESTION OF DIET
As is urged by some who have made a study of the subject then it is evident that the grocery merchant occupies a position of no small responsibility, for you depend more or less upon the judgment and conscientiousness of your grocer for the selection of the food which you consume.

Amusements

"When we were 21" is a constant succession of tearful laughter. Certainly this comedy is the best England or France has favored us with for years, and as depicted by an excellent organization engaged to portray life, characters, the scene of the natural school of acting is very nearly obtained.

Miss Courtney Morgan, formerly of the Empire Stock Theatre company, New York, is starring as Lady Isabelle, in East Lynne. Her managers have given the favorite play a splendid scenic production, and meeting with phenomenal success.

One of the new stage beauties is appearing this season in the part of "Phyllis" in Esmond's "When we were 21" and is meeting with great success. She is Miss Dora Booth, and comes from Toronto, where she is well known and popular in Canadian society.

East Lynne is enjoying a tremendous boom this season. The company, headed by Miss Courtney Morgan is splendidly equipped, and will be seen at the opera house Thursday evening, March 13th.

The law debate tonight being on a popular subject will no doubt be interesting and instructive.
