Grinnell Student Missing

The Leader this morning has the following to say concerning the student who disappeared from Grinnell so suddenly last Friday. The matter concerning the disappearance of Roy McNamara, the Iowa col- lege town is as great as ever. No trace of him has been found. His movements can be given his movements since 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Rev. J. E. McNamara, Congregational min- ister at Onawa, Ia., who is the father of the lad, arrived in this city this morning. He is at a loss to account for his son's strange actions. He believes he has had been given up.

hands. With this theory in practice, suppose he had had devoted a special edition to advocating the need of a one-fifth mill building tax. Truly this was a hazardous venture for when the lower house negated the bill it was plainly his duty to shell out $1,000,000 for the university's use. Easy enough for a Carnegie but a tripe more on a college editor.

And what if he dwell upon the advantages of having a track team? Easy enough. Let him visit the javelinmen, get reduced rates for parties of one hundred or more, cart the whole city and university folk to the games and while they enjoy the game he will be given plenty of time to pay for their entrance fee out of his own ample resources. And yet there remains that subject, "college spirit," about which the college man is so apt to write. Suppose that after all his urging it fails to materialize in sufficient amount? Verify what would the poor editor do? And so often his favorite theme too! We give it up, unless perhaps by a study of chemistry, say, he could discover certain chemicals which when mixed in the proper proportion would result in the coveted "college spirit" and in such a form as to enable him to distribute it lavishly among the students.

But we refrain from further reflection lest we might discover some suggestion that might not be so manifestly easy for the author to carry out. When the advocate of this theory attacked it, which the editor has always thought was incumbent upon the aforesaid officer of the union.

In vain did the [illegible] and his extra work and editorial duties. He ought to "cut out" whatever studies might happen to engage his attention and by his own hand accomplish what in the late incumbent, George W. Bogan, found it his duty to do as president of the union.

Suffice it to say, the editor declined to attempt what he well knew he had no time to accomplish, but not without after­wards meditating upon what he would be called upon to do were the remarkable theory adopted as propounded.

So then what-so-ever an editor counsels or advises that must he accomplish even by his own
Dents May Play Ball
The college of dentistry has received a challenge for a baseball game from the Illinois College of Dentistry of Chicago. The challenge may be accepted and the game played sometime in May, probably at Chicago. There is an abundance of good-baseball material in the dental college and Coach Williams may be able to spare a bit of his time from the Varsity team to whip it into shape.
