IOWA DEFEATS WISCONSIN "UT"

WIN INTER-STATE DEBATE ON BRANCH BANKING

As Enjoyable Affray Held at the Opera House Last Night, the Moral of which is: In the Treatment of Others as We Would Be Treated.

Last summer he wrote for Sound Currency, a prominent New York banking publication, a prize essay, the success of which in branch banking in the United States, the system for which Iowa argued last night, was at that time of great importance in the world. In the essay he had called the Wisconsin banks for their inadequate treatment of the people who used their services, and had advocated the establishment of a system of branch banking in the United States, which would enable the people to have a better system of banking than they now have.

The present banking law, he said, was a failure. The banks in Wisconsin were not doing their job, and the people were suffering for it. The banks in Iowa were doing a much better job, and the people were much happier because of it.

In a few words he disproved the Wisconsin argument by the words of a famous economist, written in the same style as the argument, and showed conclusively that the Wisconsin argument was sound. He went on to show that the banking system in Wisconsin was doing a much better job than the one in Iowa, and he advocated the establishment of a system of branch banking in the United States.

The debate was a great success, and the people of both states enjoyed it. The Iowa delegation was led by Mr. Spenlger, who made a fine statement of the Iowa position. He pointed out that the Iowa system was a better one than the Wisconsin system, and that the latter was not doing as well as the former.

The Wisconsin delegation was led by Mr. Gillett, who made a fine statement of the Wisconsin position. He said that his system was the best one, and that the Iowa system was not working as well as it should.

To the editor of the Hawkeye: Don't be discouraged by a slip of the pen, but when printed against so worthy an antagonist as Wisconsin, she should do as well. Not only was victory deserved in the debate, but when pitted against so worthy an antagonist as Wisconsin, she should do as well. Not only was victory deserved in the debate, but when pitted against so worthy an antagonist as Wisconsin, she should do as well.

Sincerely yours,

debate. "Iowa's presentation was masterly," he said. "It was so cogent and convincing that it overcame my prejudices against branch banking and won my vote.

President Goddard said: "The debate was the fourth an- nual contest between Wisconsin and Iowa. The score of victories is now even, each university hav- ing won two. Every speaker was literally applauded by the large audience and at the conclusion of his address. The Wisconsin de- baters took the midnight train for Madison. At the depot, Mr. Gillett still insisted that he was wrong, very wrong, in his prise essay.

ARMORY TRANSFORMED

FOR THE JUNIOR PROMINADE TONIGHT

A Superb Electrical Display will Add Much to the Beauty of the Scene. Decorations Something Wonderful.

Never before for a like occasion has the bare old armory been transformed into a beauti- ful party hall as it has been dur- ing the last few days for the class buy of '93 Junior Prom. Such is the unanimous as sent of those who have seen the preparations for that party tonight.

For several days the Prom committee has been hard at work assisting the decorators in the task. Everything is now in readiness. The canopy of tasti- ly selected hunting completely hides the bare walls. Around the walls are beautiful booths, each of which will be lighted by electric lights. Around a large center piece at the center of the canopy ceiling are arranged a display twenty-four lights of varying colors. This display will be an innovation. Everything about the party speaks the fact that the Prom committee have spared no effort or expense to make the party a grand success and an honor to their class. The decorations are arranged so that those who do not take part in the happy event on the floor yet can view the beauti- ful scene of electric display and handsomie decorations from the gallery. The grand march will take place at about nine o'clock.
