STUDENT SUICIDES

Clifford E. Bradley, a Popular Law Student of Excellent Standing and Manager of the Intercollegiate Basketball League, has committed suicide.

The students and faculty of the college were profoundly saddened, yesterday, to learn that Mr. Clifford E. Bradley, of the law class, had met death by his own hand. The lifeless body of the deceased was discovered at 6 o'clock yesterday, after the residence of Mr. Bradley had been unoccupied for some time.

Mr. Bradley attended the University of Iowa as a serious and ambitious law student and was known for his excellent standing and leadership in the basketball team.

regret that the debaters had not the nerve to face their friends with an honest story of defeat. True that story never elicits the same enthusiasm that another might but it must sometimes be told and we are sure the majority of Wisconsin men are men of true manhood and a team that had done its utmost to win, even though defeated, would be most cordially welcomed home and without a question as to the merits of the decision.

Mr. L. A. Goddard, who acted as a judge and incidentally gave the dissenting vote on the Wisconsin-Iowa debate has forwarded the Iowa debaters a copy of an article which he once wrote strongly advocating the negative of the question debated. The debaters will probably always be at a loss to know whether this article was sent to them so that they might correct their mistaken notions about branch banking or whether the judge took this way of letting them know that he appreciated the unenviable predicament the editor of the prize essay found himself in.

Amusements

There is an absence of anything offensive and an abundance of wholesome fun in the performances of the Richards & Pringle's minstrel organization that is at the opera house, Saturday, April 19. This big attraction caters to the most refined patronage and furnishes hours of first-class entertainment without a suggestion of vulgarity during the whole performance, and its fifty performers are selected from the best in the colored minstrel line, and every act presented in bright, trampol, and original and sure to please the most critical. This minstrel organization is pronounced the strongest and most satisfactory this enterprising firm has ever sent into the amusement field; see the magnificent parade at 2:30 p.m.
