J. H. Lee, fellowbaseman and Illignt at Athletic Games the last of the season.

For Iowa, Mr. Pleasant.

The Knox baseball team, twelve men, active collegiates from Galena, Ill., arrived in the city this morning. Many of the players were remembered as old friends, having played in past baseball and football contests on Iowa fields. Grogan, the quick little Irishman, scored Knox in the last of last season, played second base on the Knox team, and is one of the best men at the diamond as well as the gridiron. Jalusky, the fall, scored Knox's last hit in a baseball game.

The entries for the home field games will be published in tomorrow's issue.

THE THEORY OF SOCIALISM

LATE EDITION

Mr. Neally Discusses upon the Various Systems of Organized Socialism

"The three great factors of the social problem," said Mr. Neally, "are bread, thinking, machinery and democracy. Democracy is more than a form of government; it is a principle that appears progressively on various planes of social life. The fundamental aim of the socialist is to apply the principle of democracy to the sphere of industry and economic life. It is not only a social philosophy but an economic principle. Socialism and industrialism are two opposed and rival philosophies for realizing this ideal. Capitalism, the modern economic system, is not only a social philosophy but an economic principle. The capitalistic system is a form of government; it is a principle that appears progressively on various planes of social life. The fundamental aim of the socialists is to apply the principle of democracy to the sphere of industry and economic life. It is not only a social philosophy but an economic principle.

The more three important systems of organized socialism are Marxian or so-called "scientific socialism," Fabianism and Christian Socialism. Marx's system can be reduced to the following heads:

1. The doctrine of economic determinism. Economic relations determine all other relations.

2. The doctrine of revolution. A series of revolutions concludes a class, a stage of the economic development.

3. The doctrine of the organization of the working class. The working class must organize in order to change economic conditions.

4. The doctrine of the organization of the social worker. The social worker must organize in order to change economic conditions.

5. The doctrine of the organization of the political worker. The political worker must organize in order to change economic conditions.

The social worker must organize in order to change economic conditions.

As is urged by some who have made a study of the subject then it is evident that the grocery merchant occupies a position of small responsibility, for you depend more or less upon the judgment and conscience of your grocer for the selection of the food which you consume.

The preliminary debaters for next year have already been chosen and they will begin their preliminary work at once. It might be a good plan to elect as many orators and start them out looking for material.

The records made in the Ames field meet indicate that the farmers will have to be considered in the finishes at the state meet this year.

Philotmahan Special

Tomorrow evening, Philomathia will hold her annual freshman-sophomore debate upon the question, "Resolved, that free trade relations should at present be established and maintained between the United States and Cuba." The freshmen will be represented by C. R. Kellison, J. W. Meyer, and Paul Dorwelle; the sophomores by C. E. Moffatt, W. A. Thomas, and R. R. Jackson. The debaters have been hard at work upon the question during the past two months, and a good debate is expected.

The Philos attach particular interest to the debate as it is the first inter-class contest held under the present system but recently adopted by them. It will also furnish the basis upon which the selection of the men for the Illinois preliminary will rest as the election of these debaters will probably recur in the business meeting just following the freshman-sophomore debate.

As we go to press we learn that word has been received from Monsieur Le Routx, stating that an accident will prevent his filling his engagement at Iowa this evening. The lecture, probably given at a later date.

The famous Brothers Byrne will appear at the opera house, Thursday, May 1, presenting their extremely funny pantomimic comedy, the new "Eight Bells," a new production brimful of novel scenic and mechanical effects and wonderful pantomimic tricks. It is the most wonderful acrobatic and scenic performance ever given. All that ingenuity and skill can devise has been introduced in the play by John F. Byrne, who has no equal in inventing pleasing scenic mechanism. The play has a dash and go and about it that is immediately responded to by the audience with genuine mirth. The humorism is clean and original, and numerous ludicrous situations are novel and mirth provoking.
