ZAGETATHIA WINS OUT

The Annual Freshman Contest Resulted in a Majority for the Zagetathians—Irving Wins Oratio

In the annual contest between the former members of the Zagetathia, Irving, and Irving societies held last evening, the Zets had decidedly the best drill of the night. In the last competition, the Captain, D. J. Fitz, however, ran him close second with an oration on the theme, "How Deacon Tubbs and Doe and Voss stood forth in defense of this law." The decision was first at a tie but a system of percentages gave Maclaff the decision.

The election was won by O. W. Willis with "Butcher's Habits," and the key speech was made by Captain Emry. Both before a very large audience the speech of Emry was favorably received. Emry was the best drilled company, and his closing address was received with enthusiasm by his audience.
Subscribers Notice!

Now that it is announced upon what work the '94 Hawkeye board will offer prizes, everyone who intends to compete should begin at once, and especially every next year's junior who can possibly enter the contest, should make his very best efforts in order that his annual may eclipse all past Hawkeyes. University publications are one of the criteria by which the progress of a university is judged and no pains should be spared in making the coming junior annual fully representative of Iowa's progress.

The individual appearance in the battalion competition yesterday was good evidence of the hard work that Colonel Bumets has given the university cadets for the inspiration for doing the extremely high percentage made by the four companies is a further proof of the battalion's high standard of excellence. The winners of the prizes may well be proud of their attainments, for they won them in the hardest fight in the battalion's history.

The work as reported from the range gives still further assurance that the department of military science is something more than theoretical in its instruction. Iowa's team will not be found at the bottom of the list when the ranks of the teams competing in the inter-university range contests are made public.

After seeing the number of good baseball men buried away in fraternity, society and class teams, we feel very much like begging for a look at them on the university team next year.

In another column we publish the notice of the annual Lowden Mathematical Prize contest. Every student who is now finishing sophomore mathematics should take the examination. It will reveal to him in some measure his exact knowledge of mathematics, and further, if he finds that he can answer a goodly percentage of the questions, he can hand in his paper and perhaps win the fifty dollar prize as well.

The baseball game between the Alpha Chis and the Phi Delta, to have been played this morning, was postponed.

The subject of the men's meeting tomorrow afternoon will be, "Association Possibilities." Brief talks will be given by President Hollenbeck, Vice-President Reel and McCall and Secretary Hawk.

The officers of the Middletovan society elected for the fall term are C. J. Lambert, president; E. E. Bamberger, vice-president; H. J. Brackney, secretary; F. W. Boots, treasurer. Newman, historian; L. B. Swaggart, publicity-man; R. F. Drewry, chorister; E. R. Jackson and W. W. White, sergeant-at-arms; Harris, '93, executive committee-man.
