How to Win
How did we win the game yesterday? Can it be laid only to the fact that our men outplayed the college visitors? No. The game was won by two things; first, by the playing of the Iowa team and second, by the spirit and enthusiasm showed by the crowd of supporters in the grand-stand. The second of these reasons is the most important as the good rooting to no small extent put the team in the right spirit so they could play their best. There is no way around the fact that no athletic team can do their best for the university without the knowledge of the fact that the student body is behind them with their enthusiastic support. If a man plays only for himself, for personal glory only, he is almost sure to fall but if he enters the game with the spirit of "win or must" for the varsity, he is much more sure to come out ahead. Therefore, anything that can bring this fact into the minds of the players cannot but help a great deal in the final score. The rooting yesterday did this very thing. It placed the men on their nerve. It made them remember the varsity and it made them win. We have a great deal of good Iowa spirit here and it must always be made known. The old idea of "buttoned up people" has long been proved false. Opening up and showing where we really are "out" is what makes things go.

True Victory
What constitutes victory? Is it in winning out, by excelling in the points in the game, or is it coming out ahead by other means? True victory, certainly, can only come by the former means. A victory wherein another is defeated by any but open and straightforward means is in the true sense of the term not victory at all and can only be ranked, in its just place, a great deal lower than an honest defeat. To the victor and to the vanquished in fair contest belong the praise and to the loser should often be in as strong terms as to the winner. If anyone should attempt to defeat another by any other means than that of open and above board, he should stop and think just what he is doing and by so considering he will plainly see that such a victory is not only dishonorable, but if it does bring success it is a success that brings no honor. Should anyone then be placed in a position wherein he may decide a contest let him do so on the merits of the case. The only way to truly try to win is by attempting to excel.

Our Duty as Citizens
Friday we must remember is the thirtieth day of May and that that day is one of the most sacred anniversaries that comes to us as citizens of our country. It has been a day set aside wherein the nation can do respect to and honor the grand old army of the republic, who have made possible what we are today. Our university duties for the day have been declared off but only that we may do our part on that day as citizens. Classes and all regular duties are laid aside in order that we may more fully assume our responsibilities as citizens. That we will do this is indicated by the fact that the battalion almost to a man have volunteered to aid in the ceremonies of the day. We must remember that although we are students yet always we are citizens and as such have duties to perform. The day is a sacred one and should be so considered by every citizen.
