FASSES NINE HUNDRED MARK TODAY

TODAY THE LAST DAY

Report Must Be Made of all Subscriptions Saturday—Final List Made up Monday

Seventy-six dollars is the amount reported as subscribed to the athletic debt since yesterday.

Those in charge of the canvass wish it to be reiterated again, as some may not have seen it or seen it and forgotten that the canvass must close Saturday. The report must be prepared for the board of regents on Monday and all subscriptions not reported at the last will be absolutely useless as far as making the showing before the regents is concerned. Let every solicitor bear this in mind and govern himself accordingly. Tomorrow is the last day for taking subscriptions and lists and should be handled in the Iowa office before 3:00 p.m. Saturday. Any lists not handed in may be mailed to the President of the Athletic Union, H. E. Spangler so as to reach him on Monday.

There is still nine hundred dollars to raise. This can only be accomplished by solicitors giving everything to complete the canvass and everyone making some financial sacrifice. Previously acknowledged.

IOWAN BOARD

The regular meeting of the Iowan Board will be held in the northwest room of the old capital, Saturday, April 4 at 1:00 p.m.

Prof. Wilcox announces that work will be resumed in all his courses on next Monday April 6.

Prof. W. C. Wilcox who just returned from delivering a course of lectures at the University of Chicago has been asked to lecture to the students of that institution next year. He has not yet decided whether to accept or decline.

The name of F. W. Crockett, L’93, appears among the list of incorporators of the Iowa Tropic Planners’ company recently organized in Iowa City.

Prof. Nutting delivered his third Monday lecture this evening, his subject being “The Bottom of the Sea, Its Physical Conditions and Animal Life.”

TEACH STATE HISTORY

SAYS PRESIDENT JAMES OF NORTHEASTERN

Iowa Journal of History and Politics

Contains Argument For Instruction In History of Current Events

Number two of the Iowa Journal of History and Politics which is now being distributed is fully up to the high standard set by its first issue.

The table of contents shows the names of Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, Pres. Edmund J. James of Northwestern, Senator J. J. Crossley, Dr. Frank E. Horick and Joseph W. Rich for his librarian for the first time as contributors of extended articles.

Books and publications of interest in Iowa history are reviewed by Judge Edwin McLean in Prof. T. A. Loos, Dean Alice Young, Dean M. L. McDermott, Prof. A. G. Plum and Prof. H. S. Richards among others.

The first article in the Journal; A Brief History of the State Historical Society, by Prof. Shambaugh is of peculiar interest to university people on account of the greater or less truth that this society has always maintained with the university and indeed the society is referent in the laws of the state as in connection with and under the auspices of the State University. The author explains that this effected no organic connection between the two institutions.

President James of Northwestern University occupies a very interesting twelve page of the publication with a paper entitled Cooperating the proposition that in the study of history in our public high schools a subject of history of the time should be given to the study of state history. He says, “I believe that the local history of the state within which high school is located should be seriously taken up and regularly taught as a subject worthy of special study.”

If maintained on its present plane the Iowa Journal of history and politics is destined to become indispensable to those interested in state history.

Lectures in Capital

Prof. W. C. Wilcox leaves this morning for Des Moines where he will speak before the Polk County Teachers Institute next Saturday. The lecture will deal with the eastern question the subjects of his lecture being, The Eastern Question in Europe, The Eastern Question in Asia, The Possible Solution of the Eastern question, etc.

Phi Delta Pi initiated at their halls on College street last evening. The new members are C. E. Stuart, D. R. Lane, J. F. Kirby, F. C. Byers, H. C. Nicholison, H. A. Hilery, J. H. Brubaker, J. A. Brown, H. M. Mercer and C. K. Herrick, all of the junior law class.

ent fields of knowledge. The speakers have been brought here, and the lectures given under the auspices of many different societies, and even individuals, among which he was mentioned in the local organization of the American Archaeological Society, Cercle Francaise, Sigma Xi, The Philosophical Club, and we have Prof. Loos to thank for Prof. Hobson's visit.

The introduction of these general lectures is an evolution of the last four years at the university, those by Prof. McGee in 1895 being the first systematic attempt in this line that was made. Since that date these general lectures have increased in number and popularity. Now they almost furnish a course in themselves and a broadening one too. They are of inestimable benefit to the specialist or professional student who is closely confined to the limits of his own work in that they give him a brief glimpse into realms he might never have the opportunity of knowing otherwise. That they are free to the public shows that in many cases the society under whose auspices the lectures are given are at personal expense to provide these opportunities for the university public.

The Junior Prom committee seem to have taken a most commendable view of their stewardship judging from the arrangements announced yesterday. They have evidently purged themselves of the belief prevalent among class party committees that their first duty is to prepare the party entertainment and they do the sort of party they what it should be. The statement that the prom committee is venturing all the receipts expected in an attempt to make the party what it should be might well be taken as the 'Golden Text' of party committees.

The smooth man with the tricks for sale confines his effort to college students going from one university to the next. Does he find them brighter than the general public?

The fact that Frank Hoefert was instrumental in saving the life of bridge foreman Booth was acknowledged to be the thing that makes his effort to college students going from one university to the next. Does he find them brighter than the general public?

The announcement of three university lectures in yesterday's Iowa, all attention to the great number and value of these lectures this year.

Hardly a week has passed but some eminent specialist has spoken to the students of the university. These lectures have consisted in the exposition of facts in distinction from the old fashioned harangues on morals and conduct of many of the lyceum lectures. They have been along special lines of thought and research and by those who by special preparation were most fitted to speak of them. They have covered many, and widely differ-
