THE LARGE CLINICS
UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL IN SPLENDID SHAPE

Record of Cases Treated The Largest in the History of Institution

Although the present University year is but fairly well under way, the number of patients cared for at the medical clinics at the State University of Iowa has broken all past records being twice as large as at the corresponding date last year. Every bed in every ward and private room is occupied and if present indications are reliable the number and class of patients treated during this year should be three times as large as last year.

Dr. W. R. Whistler, is the new Hospital Director. One graduate physician, one senior medical student and four nurses are on duty in the building and in immediate charge of the patients. The building is provided with examination, washing, x-ray, and operating rooms of the most modern type.

The spirit of cooperation between the University, the College of Medicine and Surgery, the Medical Student and the Hospital is marked in every case. The treatment or diagnosis is the work of the whole team.

NEW LABORATORY
Medical Students Much Interested in the Work.

Dr. Chase, Professor of Anatomy, Medicina and Therapeutics, is in the college of medicine of the University of Iowa yesterday, in speaking to a reporter of The Daily Iowan. "I am very much elated by the interests that the medical students have manifested in the work.

Many of the senior students have expressed a desire that the labours of the laboratory be made arrangements for special sections in order to carry out the work outlined. I feel that the organization of the laboratory will supply a long felt want." There is no more loyal member of our faculty than Dr. Chase and his indefatigable energies in furthering the interests of the college of medicine have made him a chief promoter and builder. Many of the most modern in novations which have advanced the college of medicine to its present status.

Hare and Hound

The Cross Country Club held a meeting Wednesday night which was attended by a large section of the University. The hounds followed in and the entire run last about 4 seconds. The meeting was an informal one at which the hounds were considered the run a great success. Many of the hounds were green.

THE PLANET JUPITER
NOW PROMINENT IN SOUTHERN SKY

Dean Weid Takes of this Most Interesting of Celestial Bodies Before Baconian

"One of the chief oraments of the southern sky just now is the planet Jupiter," said Dean Weid. "The planet is particularly bright this year and will be still brighter the year owning the fact that Jupiter and the earth are getting nearer to each other.

Jupiter travels in an ellipse, the semi-diameter of its orbit being 455 million miles and the eccentricity is .0495 of the semi-diameter so the earth is a little inside the center of the ellipse about 23 million miles hence the planet varies 46 million miles in its distance from the sun at perihelion and aphelion. The orbit of Jupiter revolves about the sun in an orbit whose radius is 95 million miles. Hence the minimum distance between the planet and Earth at Jupiter is 967 million miles and the maximum distance at the conjunction is 500 million miles. Opposition therefore affords a more favorable opportunity for observation than conjunction. The two planets approach opposition in September this year and October next year. Other dis tances of its orbit in approximately 12 years, hence while the Earth covers its orbit once Jupiter has completed only 1-12 of its revolution. The equation of the center of the planet is Jupiter 88,000 miles and its polar diameter is 80,000 miles. This indicates exceedingly rapid rotation on its axis and in fact it is the most rapidly rotating of any of the celestial bodies known to astronomers.

"At its greatest and least distance the planet's diameter varies from 22 sec. to 56 sec. which gives the basis for calculations as to its sizes. Jupiter's diameter is about 11 times that of the Earth's surface 116 times its volume 1300 times but owing to its dens ity the mass is only 300 times that of the Earth and but 1-1048 of that of the Sun.

The force of gravity at the surface of Jupiter is 1-5 times that of Earth but owing to its rapid rotation gravity at the equator is 1-7 less than at the poles.

When examined with the telescope Jupiter presents a variety of appearances. It is crossed by belts which are variable and more distinct at the equator than at the ends of the globe. The belts are from 250 miles in width and the bords are not a solid surface but clouds. These clouds are probably high in the planet's atmosphere.

The axis of rotation is inclined to the axis of its orbit and hence there are no changes so far as the Sun is concerned. It received but 1-27 as much heat from the Sun in proportion to its size as Earth.

The period of rotation is 9hr. 55 min. The average time of rotation is determined by locating some point on the planet and observing successive transits. "Jupiter reflects 82 per cent of the sunlight, a greater percentage than any other heavenly body. The moon reflects 17 per cent, newly fallen snow 80 per cent and newly plowed ground 20 per cent. The surface of Jupiter is about as white as common paper.

The activity of the cloud systems indicates that Jupiter is still a heated body. The spectr um tells us practically nothing. The spe c tra have no color. The planet is burned on its side by the light of the sun. The telescope gives us no information as to the clouds or the surface. Roverman discovered and calculated approximately the speed of light by observing the periods of eclipses of these satellites when the Earth and Jupiter were in opposition and conjunction. The orbits of the satellites are approximately in the plane of the ecliptic."

Iowa to Hills 4

The base ball tryout yesterday was a victory for Iowa by a score of 10 to 4. A full eight of last year's strong men are back and the game brought out several stars among whom were Brocke and Dennis as catchers, Yeasler as pitcher, O'Neil at third, and Moore on first. The prospects are good for a strong battery and infield.

Epicidal Clinics

The outlook for Clinics this year is gratifying and should put a stop to the cliques, who are trying to build up a medical college in another town. The University of Iowa has been decided to have the college football championship come between Monday, November 26, and close November 26, devoting the entire week to college football. This series will be open to teams from independent colleges and the members of the teams must be men entitled to represent the university. A hand-bag will be presented to the college winning the championship, and Olympic gold medals to each member of the winning team. After the entries are in, a schedule will be announced that a week's time arrangements can be made to transfer football games to other days. The schedule will entirely depend upon the number of entries. If enough entries are not received to make up the Olympic series, the committee will arrange individual matches between the teams representing the best in the west.

The outlook for prospecting will be limited to the west and the east. It would be a good thing for college teams to enter this contest, if they could do so and still preserve the true college spirit of amusements for which Iowa has long been famous and, of which she has always been the chief conservator.

AMUSEMENTS

Capital and labor are debatable subjects today, and are rather old ones for the stage, when they are dovetailed in with love, sorrow and temper-toned passions, as they are in "The Midsummer Night's Dream," to be presented at the Opera House on Monday.

Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, U. S. N., the hero of the Merrimac, lectures October 19, at the armory of "The United States as a World Power."

Captain Hobson attracts large audiences throughout the country not only as a popular hero of the Mexican-American War, but because he is magnetic and attractive as an orator. He brings with him a wealth of information in a message that pertains to our national life, and inspires patriotism. Seats reserved without extra charge at Corney & Lucus' on and after Wednesday October 14.

THE LITERARY CHAT

A speaking likeness of Miss Julia Ellen Rogers appears in the Sunday issue of the Des Moines Register and Leader, with a sketch of her latest work on trees. Miss Rogers has a press in press "Some Winter Homes of Insects" which is expected to please lovers of nature studies as much as it is the predecessor. Miss Rogers. Who was a popular university girl several years ago, is now director of the correspondence course in nature study in Cornell University. Iowa City students and faculty will rejoice over her continued success.

The two scholarships in mathematics this year are held by Miss Ida T. Spediel of Iowa City, class 88, and Miss Anna Johnson of Alcrown, class '03 of the University of South Dakota. These are the first ladies to hold graduate appointments in the department of mathematics in this university.
