LIBRARY IS OPENED

Pres. Maclean Makes the Address

Fine Carnegie Building—Thrown Open to the Public With Fitting Ceremony

Last evening, at the opera house, the formal exercises took place, which dedicated the new Iowa City public library. A large crowd was present.

The exercises were opened with music by the Grammar School orchestra, which also rendered several selections at other places in the program. The invocation was said by Rev. D. W. Wylfin, of the Presbyterian Church. Following this were speeches by various persons connected with the building of the library, among them, being W. P. Coost, chairman of the building committee, E. W. Rich, President of the Board of Trustees, and F. K. Sibben, Mayor of the city.

The principal address of the evening, however, was made by President George E. MacLean, of the University. He bore the greetings of the Iowa Library Commission, and, in addition, Made the dedicatory address. In the latter, he traced the rise of the library movement, giving high praise to Iowa's system of public libraries. Dr. MacLean's address was both eloquent and interesting, and created a most favorable impression.

At the close of the program in the opera house, an informal reception was held in the new library, and the evening was spent in inspecting and admiring the beauties of the edifice.

There will be no meeting of the Iowa Lane tonight.

Polygon will meet tonight with Miss Elnora Y. Harris.

The Register and Leader today contains the Daily Iowan's selections for an all-Iowa football team.

Miss Elva Forrcrook, Professor of public speaking at Central College, is visiting the public speaking classes here.

The annual competitive shoot of the University rifle team was held Saturday morning on the university range. H. C. Danielson won the shoot with a score of 88 out of a possible 50. Vaughan was second with 57 and Kuebel third with 36.

The special annual book number of The Mail and Times, published in connection with the annual meeting, contains articles on "Higher Education in Iowa" by President MacLean, President Storms, and the Iowa Agricultural college and President of the University, and an article on the "Northern Oratorical League Preliminary." Any other who wish to take part should notify Professor Gordon as soon as possible.

A special newspaper dispatch from Harlan says:

"On Wednesday evening at 9:00 o'clock there was a solemn service at St. Paul's Episcopal Church by its rector, Rev. Hoyt, the marriage of Miss Margaret Elsie Lewis of Harlan and Mr. Roy G. Call of Newark, N. J. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Lewis. For two years she was a student in the University of Iowa, following her graduation from the Harlan high school. After leaving the university she was a successful teacher in the city schools of Harlan for two years. She is promiscuous in the church and social circles of Harlan, where she has a multitude of friends with whom she is deservedly popular. Mr. Call comes of an excellent family. His father was for many years one of the foremost scholars of the state, and for a long period held the chair of Greek in the University of Iowa—a position yet held by one of the Call family, an aunt of Mr. Call—Professor Lewis. Mr. and Mrs. Call is, in his self an expert in his line of educational science, having been graduated from the University of Iowa in the course in electrical engineering in 1908. He has been for more than a year employed by the New York and New Jersey Telephone company at Newark, N. J., his special work with the company being the testing of cables in the shops of the company. He was a well known and popular student at Iowa City, where he was a popular athlete, winning points for his alma mater in the hurdles, and other events of the track and field.
