IOWA CITY, IOWA

FINE SYSTEM HERE

NEW BACTERIOLOGICAL LAB. IS LIKED

Culture Stations Being Rapidly Established Throughout The State

According to a statement given us by Dr. Henry Albert who is in charge of the state bacteriological laboratory here the system of these stations has just been started and they are extending into all the counties of the State. Here in the laboratory have been established through out the State and these are constantly reported on by the laboratory here, and Dr. Albert says there are room for 400. The work of these stations is going ahead as rapidly as possible. The complete outfit for a culture station is sent by every 200 population in a city. Each outfit contains material by which the local physicians can report on any disease whatever, typhoid or diphtheria they may have.

The system of culture stations under a single laboratory has been established in Iowa is next to the best, possessed by any state, according to Dr. Albert. Vermont has the same system only Vermont has the system more highly developed than Iowa inasmuch as the Vermont system is older. Florida has recently established the same system but it has only about 48 culture stations reporting.

Dr. Albert says there will probably be an attempt made at the next session of the state legislature to simplify the requirements made upon physicians regarding the vital station work. This city is one of the pioneers in the present effort for a great deal of inconvenience to doctors in the metropolitan sections. Some of the red tape will have to be removed. He says however that the doctors of the state are reporting the statistics with a remarkable degree of completeness.

Senator Young of Calhoun county who was chairman of the health committee in the state senate and who did as much as anyone else to get the bacteriological laboratory bill last session. He has lately declared himself to be highly pleased with its working. He says that it has brought about a greater expenditure of money to promote bacteriology.

Correll is having a series of lectures on "How to Listen to an Orchestra."

Professor Gordon, of the Department of Psychology, is preparing to read a paper before the State Teachers' Association, at Des Moines, on the subject, "Dynamics of Public Speaking."

Both are on the program for papers from the project laboratory of the Iowa Historical Society and has been placed in the property of the Iowa Historical Society.

The next meeting of the Iowa Historical Society will be held in Chicago at the same time.

Zet Side Of It

EDITOR DAILY IOWAN.

In the Iowan of Saturday, Dec. 17, an article was published under the heading, "Societies Drop.", Certain statements were made therein that were so lacking in any vestige of truth, that it seemed but fair to the readers of the Iowa that a little illumination should be cast upon the exact facts of the case.

It has been the custom of the Irving and Zetagaholics societies to stack each other's halls in the night as a sort of initiation. Neither society indulged in the practice this year early in the fall. Nothing further of this nature was done until a week ago last Friday night, when an attempt was made to wire the Irving hall door shut. Attracted by the noise the Irvingians rushed out and saw the Zet door suddenly close. In an endeavor to gain an entrance a panel in the Zet door was smashed in. One Zet was within the hall but again divided. Later in the evening a party of fraemen of the back term Luitt, and found a greater part of the furniture occupying a small space in the cellar at the center of the hall. Straightened this out at once. The next morning it was found the hall was again perfectly unstacked. Last Thursday night as the article states, the Irving hall was stacked but the hall was not "broken into." Neither was any noise broken the only perceptible damage done was the breaking of a picture glass and a table. These have been repaired.
