Sigma Xi Lecture by Professor Nutting

La Jolla, on the Pacific Coast Described in the Lecture Rooms of the Liberal Arts Hall.

The Sigma Xi lecture in the university was well attended Wednesday evening, Prof. Nutting being the lecturer. His subject was "La Jolla." Prof. Nutting's talks are always interesting and this one was no exception. The following are extracts from his lecture.

The Spaniards, in their restless search for new lands and wonders in the new world, pursued their quest with an energy that continually elicits the admiration of the student of early American history.

"Religion and poesy were an almost universal source of inspiration, from which their names were derived. Most of the Spanish names are derived from the church but occasionally the appreciation of beauty got the better of them and thus we have the name 'La Jolla,' The Gem.

"As one enters the Grand Canon of the Colorado one struggles in vain to find words to describe its sublimity. It has been my good fortune to see my full share of this grand scene. It is thirteen miles to the opposite rim of the Canon, but we frankly refuse to believe it.

"Nowhere else are the exquisite colors and the awful depths so conjoined. Some one has called this the 'Ashy Hell.' The thing that impresses one most, perhaps, is the eternal stillness and the silence which pervades these stupendous depths. And the colors! Who dare attempt their description? Blues and reds and yellows and greens, all blended and jumbled together and overlaid with the dim and bright blue of distance and shadow.

"We got up early in the morning to see the sun rise. It was a novel experience in many ways. Standing on the canon rim one sees nothing of the gorgeousness of the brighter day. The deep shadows still envelop the lower levels and the higher points are clothed in tender browns and then the sun rises and every pinnacle is brought into bold relief. The effect is unreal in the highest degree and one is reminded of the mimic stage, where pasteboard mountains with gilt edges look so artificial.

"Leaving the Grand Canon we continued to La Jolla, which is a resort about thirteen miles to the northwest of San Diego. It stands on the ocean front and is not in a bay or gulf. Hundreds of cottages are built on the slope leading down to the cliffs that form the sea front. Nowhere is there a coast so entertaining to the naturalist and nowhere could the wave effects be studied so well. One never tires of watching the great wave as it gathers in height and momentum in approaching to the coast. The impression conveyed is one of persistent and savage assault.

"It is also interesting to stand and watch the people, spell-bound by the might and beauty of the old ocean. They are fully fifty feet above the water level and the cliff arches over so that there is no slope up which waves can climb. Whether by day or by night in walking along the cliffs this fascination always holds one in its grasp. No two waves are just alike and monotony is impossible.

"The greatest feature of La Jolla is the series of caves that penetrate the cliffs in many cases. Some have floors above the water except in the highest tide and others contain deep pools ever when the tide is low. Along these cliffs one finds many species of animal life: Molluska, limpets, enemones, patches of baracles, snail shells and the like. The sea birds of the coast are protected by law. Fish, too, are numerous.

"For some years the zoologists connected with the University of California, have been investigating various points along the Californian coasts with a view of determining the most available place for a zoological station, and finally La Jolla was decided upon. This station has many advantages. It is situated on the open sea front. Most other localities on the ocean front are impracticable on account of being void of a landing place. Three or four miles from La Jolla deep sea dredging is within easy reach.

"Soon after leaving La Jolla on the way to 'Torrey Pines,' the road enters a canon, clothed at the bottom and sides with wild flowers in wonderful profusion. When the Mesa top is reached we find ourselves on a wide plain where plant life is entirely unknown to the easterner. With every mile the scenery becomes more grand and great bare masses of rock rear their rounded domes of almost dazzling whiteness around us. In places walls of canons are composed of ancient gravel beds packed full of water worn gravel.

"On a high point near the top of a cliff, overlooking the Pacific are the famous Torrey Pines. From here the road leads down to the beach. The sand is almost as hard and much smoother than asphalt paving. To the right the beach is bordered for several miles by a most remarkable embankment or terrace.

"A picnic dinner under the Torrey Pines, and a glorious drive back over the mesa top completes our day.

CLASS SCRAP AT COLORADO.

In Colorado college the freshmen nailed a flag to a pole and defended against the sophomores. The Tiger describes the result in the following words:

"There is a limit to human endurance, and the combatants were nearing that bourn when the upperclassmen called for a suspension of hostilities after the battle had been in progress 43 minutes. The truce was called because about two-thirds of the football team were learning too much about slugging.

"President Willis, of the Senior Class, presided over a meeting of the Juniors and Seniors, and after much discussion it was agreed: To order the scrap ended; to give a decision of no contest; and to appoint a committee of three Seniors and two Juniors to lower the flag and dispose of it.

"From the spectators' standpoint the scrap was a decided success. Nobody was seriously hurt and the few peeled noses and pierced feet will soon recover."

INSTRUCTION TO FRESHMEN.

The Tiger, published at Colorado college, has a chapter of instructions to the freshmen. The following is the most important part thereof:

Wherefore, O freshman, give ear unto the law, neither depart therefrom, lest peradventure the hosts of the Philistines, which is to say, the sophomores, shall come upon thee like a thief in the night and smite thee hip and thigh, and defeat thee with great slaughter, for the sophs are a brave and warlike people.

This is the law for the verdant freshman which changeth nor altereth not. Harken and give ear lest when the bridegroom come thy lamp be not trimmed and burning.

Be meek and lowly of heart, slow to butt in, and plenteous of horse sense, neither be of a froward tongue and inclined to much babbling, lest one of the wise and holy men of Colorado college, which is to say, a senior, shall send his mighty man of valor, which is to say a soph, upon thee for to chastize thee, and he shall smite thee upon the fifth rib, for the soph loveth not the gentle freshman, and whereas thy father chastized thee with whips, the mighty soph will whale thee long and lustily with a board, for he delighteth not in freshmen. A bit for the horse, a bridle for the ass, and a long board for the freshman's back.

Woe unto the freshman that ariseth early in the morning for to fuss about the campus, that tarryeth long in the library alcove, and studyeth not, for the librarian being wroth, shall descend upon thee in an hour that thou wot not and will sore punish thee.

Get thee out to all football games, neither neglect to lend that blatant raucous voice to cheer the Tigers; hike not at all to the canons with a young maiden for she will weary of thy childish prattle. Come, therefore, to the games, and let thy horn be exalted like the horn of a unicorn, lest the heart of the chief rooter waxeth wroth and he take counsel with a lusty soph for to do thee hurt.

Be not wise in thine own conceit, neither seek to bluff the wily Prof., for it doth appear that he is dead on to thy babbling and will quickly give thee a zero.

Study to show thyself a good and faithful grind, neither hold good marks of slight import, for the dean knoweth the ways of the wise guy, but the bluffer and babbler shall flunk.

Miss Mary Griffith, '05, is teaching natural science in the Elkader high school.

Freshies Win.

Win Easy Game at Tipton Yesterday Afternoon.

The freshmen went to Tipton yesterday and won over the Tipton high school 12 to 0. They say that football was not the hardest part of the game. They feel that the umpire was not quite fair, and cut the score below what they deserved.

FRESHMAN CAPTAIN ELECTED.

Yesterday the freshman football team elected a captain, that being the occasion of their first game. Kirk, the present fullback, who has been showing up well against the 'Varsity, was unanimously chosen. Nine 'rahs for Kirk.

JUNIOR ANNUAL.

Proposed to Give Professional Schools Representation.

The junior Liberal Arts class assembled in the auditorium Wednesday in response to a call by President Riley.

Mr. Sieg, business manager elect of the '07 Hawkeye, was present and laid before the class a plan for securing a general representation of all the colleges on the Hawkeye board. The proposition in brief is, that the Hawkeye shall be controlled by a board of managers, one being elected from each college. Advice was sought from President MacLean and other influential faculty members and the plan was heartily commended. In compliance with this plan, J. G. Bridgens was elected as the Liberal Arts representative on the board. Mr. Sieg will represent the school of Applied Science. The professional colleges have had the matter explained to them and have the matter under consideration.

Each member of the board of managers will be required to guarantee a certain amount of money and will share equally in all gains or losses accruing from the publication and sale of the book.

LADIES' BAND AT NORMAL.

A concert band composed exclusively of ladies with Prof. Frank A. Fitzgerald as director, has been organized at the Iowa State Normal school. There are thirty members in the organization at present and forty are now seeking admission to the organization. The band is one of the first of its kind to organize at a college in the west. The following instruments are now in use by the young school teachers: five clarinets, four cornets, three trumpets, two altos, four horns, two saxophones, two slide trombones, two tenors, two bass, bass and snare drums. Additional instruments are soon to be added. A concert will soon be given by the band in the auditorium.

IOWA'S INTEREST IN CHARITY ASSOCIATIONS.

On November 9-10-11 the Iowa State Conference of Charities and Corrections will convene at Marshalltown. For three successive years Prof. Isaac Loos has been the president of this conference, while he has been a member of the executive committee ever since the founding of the organization.

At present Judge Robinson, of the board of control of state institutions, is president and Mr. C. W. Wassam is the newly elected secretary. At the state meeting Dr. W. R. Patterson will give an illustrated lecture.

Prof. F. C. Ensign, the new state inspector of high schools, will read a paper describing the county jails in Iowa.

The complete program will soon be out.

Y. W. C. A. CONVENTION.

Many Prominent People Are Expected.

The state Y. W. C. A. convention will be held in Iowa City, November 9 to 12. Plans are being made by the local association to entertain several hundred delegates.

Miss Bertha Conde, one of the national secretaries, will be present and speak to the girls of the University about the work in the United States.

HIGH SCHOOL INSPECTION.

Last week Inspector Ensign visited schools on the Northwestern between Lisbon and Clinton. At Stanwood, he found Paul Flier, '03, as superintendent. His school is in good shape.

At Tipton C. R. Aurner, '02, is superintendent, and Mrs. Aurner, also '02, is English teacher in the high school. The school is well equipped and the town is friendly to the University.

On Saturday Mr. Ensign was at West Branch, where he delivered the dedicatory address at the opening of the fine new high school building just finished there. This takes the place of the one which burned a year ago. Since that time the schools have occupied various buildings.

The distinguished American tragedian, Mr. Robert Mantell, will make his appearance at the Coldren next Friday evening, October 13, in Shakespeare's immortal "Richard III," which will be presented in a spectacular manner, showing a succession of magnificent scenes, gorgeous costumes and superb stage paraphernalia. Since appearing here before Mr. Mantell has created a perfect furore in New York city where he attracted the largest and most enthusiastic audiences that attended any Shakespearean production since the days of Edwin Booth. The New York critics were unanimous in proclaiming Mr. Mantell the representative tragedian on the American stage today. Seat sale Thursday morning.
