Prominent Persons Views

What They Think of the Convention —Opinions of Prominent People.

Mrs. Rawson, Des Moines, Chairman of state committee: "I think it has been the strongest convention we have ever had. It has been strong spiritually."

Miss Conde, Chicago, national student secretary: "I think it has been a strong convention and a representative convention from the standpoint of the personnel of those present. The unity of thought has been strong and sustained."

Miss McElroy, Des Moines, state secretary: "The spirit of the students has been most helpful to the convention. We have felt a spirit of sympathy in the students and in our hostesses and in all with whom we have come in touch. The girls have handled the management in such a splendid way."

Mrs. Byers, Omaha: "I think the convention has been peculiarly strong in its inspiration to personal work."

Miss Henshaw, Des Moines, state student secretary: "I have never been in a convention where the girls were better prepared. The spiritual atmosphere has been strong from the beginning."

Dr. Parsons, Parsons College: "I have been impressed by the exceeding practicalness of the convention. The work has been taken up in such a strong, earnest, practical way that it cannot fail to accomplish its object."

Miss Johnston, Ottumwa, city secretary: "Miss Conde's Bible hour has been an especially strong feature of the convention. The city conference hours from the standpoint of a city worker, have been very practical and helpful."

Dean Everts: "I think the convention has been a splendid success. What has impressed me most is the remarkably fine type of young women who are here. From simply seeing the type of young women the Association is stamped as a splendid movement."

Miss Lewis, Penn College, member of state committee: "I think the convention has been very helpful from the fact that it has been so practical. The starting of the Alumnae Auxiliary is going to be a helpful plan."

Mrs. MacLean, Iowa City: "The convention has been most interesting. I am sure it will do a great deal of good."

Mrs. Brown, Muscatine, member of City Board: "I have thoroughly enjoyed the convention. The interchange of ideas in the city conference has been very helpful to the city worker."

Miss Chawner, Iowa City: "The organization of the Alumnae Auxiliary gives promise of valuable aid in carrying on the state work and in keeping up the interest of the girls who have gone from the colleges. I believe it will commend itself to college women throughout the state."

Augusta Brown, Iowa City, president of S. U. I. Association: "The quiet power put into the heart of every woman in attendance at the convention is seen by the eager desire of each one to put more into her life of service—to deeper her own inner life, for nothing can be given except it be there to be given."

MISSIONARY WORK.

Many Prominent Speakers Discuss the Subject of Missions.

In the convention just closed the subject of missions has had its usual prominent place. Few of the speakers were able to talk long without mentioning missions, but the subject was taken up particularly by Dr. Eva Feld, recently from Korea, by Miss Bertha Conde, and by W. E. Parsons, president of Parsons college Iowa. Miss Conde says that unless we are interested in missions we are not typical Christians.

Dr. Field's Lecture on Korea.

The two classes of women discussed were very young girls and married women. When a girl marries she becomes the slave of her mother-in-law.

Women are bought and sold in slavery, the common price being fifteen dollars for each. The arrival of a girl baby is deplored. A girl is not thought to be worth her feed, while a boy is cared for and educated.

Although the Korean missions have been established but twenty years, there are now 10,000 baptized Christians. The native worker is a marvel of diligence. A Christian at home in American and a Christian at home in Korea will have different reports to make in the Day of Questioning. Most of the Bible is translated into the Korean dialect. Day schools, mainly supported by Koreans, are carried on.

At one time, in order that certain heathen cillages might hear the Gospel, the native workers pledged, not money, but days, until the total amount was three thousand days. The Koreans are very superstitious. They will not brush spider webs from the wall because they believe the webs hold spirits. Dr. Field is interested in Korea because of the 15,000 people there; because of the so-called doctors who delude the people; and because of the Korean women. We have no idea how hard these women have to work! Their lives are continual struggles to do all the things expected of them.

If we lack missionaries, it is because we have not prayed them into being.

Rev. Parsons Speaks.

Rev. William E. Parsons gave a convincing missionary address.

A message to have value must be directly for me. If it does not make me better it will make me worse, because I will become more careless from my inattention. It is for us to know that we are children of God. All things are mine through Jesus Christ, this subject is unfathomable. On the other hand, 'the whole world lieth in the evil one.' Every one, regardless of culture, who does not know that he is in God's family, belongs to the evil one,—bound hand and foot. He thinks that it is the Christian who is bound, but he himself is really the prisoner. This is as true of Americans as of Africans. There are but the two classes, those in Christ and those out of Him. Why bring this out? Because responsibility follows position. I cannot avoid this responsibility for I am born to it.

You may deplore the persecution of missionaries. Glory in it! The monuments of the martyr in Canton are monuments to Christianity.

Do you think Japan well nigh a Christian nation? See the woman performing her useless rites at the graves of her ancestors. See the cringing creatures worshipping the idol, offering him precious foods. See the wanton waste of human life, the treatment of children.

Look at Korea. You climb a mountain to a heathen temple. There is a sound within. An old woman is chanting before the altar to gain the favor of the gods. But the chant seems to you only, "We are lost."

If your religion means anything, it means that we must distribute this message. It means that we must hear and obey. He is talking to us.

Why should we send our friends into peril? The Christ within you answers, we will send ten-fold more of them, as Jesus answered with the nails tearing his hands, out there in the darkness, "they know not what they do."

In an immense building in Korea a prayer meeting was held, on the regular prayer meeting evening. Nine hundred people were there. Songs were sung and prayers made. Only eight years ago this work had been started. It's tremendous growth was almost startling. There is nothing more touching or convincing than to see those who have worshiped idols, praising God.

CONCERT SUCCESS.

The concert given by the Iowa Euterplan Quartet at the Welsh church south west of the city was attended by a large and appreciative audience. As the Welsh people are naturally good judges of music, the fact that all were greatly pleased speaks very highly for the quartet as entertainers.

The club goes to North Liberty this evening, where they give a concert under the auspices of the public schools.

Y. W. C. A. Convention

The Twenty-Second Annual Convention Is Held in Iowa City.

Iowa City had the good fortune to be chosen as the place of meeting for the state convention of the Young Women's Christian association for this year; and here, November 9 to 12, met the Twenty-second Annual Convention. Such a gathering young women must perforce create larger enthusiasm for the work in which they are joined, and must bring manifold benefits to the entertaining association, including their friends, the citizens, who have opened their homes to the visitors.

For these few days the convention has been the chief event in University life. One hundred and seventy-one delegates were registered from the various college and city associations, included in the state organization.

The program had been carefully planned by the state committee, of which Mrs. C. A. Rawson, of Des Moines, is chairman, and a series of inspiring meetings assured under the leadership of such speakers as Miss Bertha Conde, national student secretary; Miss Abby McElroy, state secretary; Miss Helen Henshaw, state student secretary; Mrs. Emma F. Byers, general secretary, Omaha; Rev. Willis E. Parsons, D. D., of Fairfield; Dr. Eva H. Field, medical missionary from Korea; Rev. Austin K. de Blois, of Chicago.

The Presbyterian church was opened for the regular sessions and Close Hall was convention headquarters. Here the convention spirit showed itself at the very doorway in the brilliant display of posters; and here was centered likewise the hospitality of the local association and of the city. Members of Y. W. C. A. assisted by Y. M. C. A. met delegates at the trains, escorted them to Close Hall for registration, and accompanied them to the homes assigned. The girls' reception room was throughout a place to read, to rest, and to get acquainted.

The entertainment of the state convention meant much time and thought for the Y. W. C. A. girls of S. U. I., but it has also meant rich rewards—in the larger knowledge of association work, in friendships begun, in renewed inspirations.

FACULTY CONFERENCE.

The faculty conference met Saturday afternoon at Close hall. Representatives were present from Iowa college, Iowa Wesleyan university, Des Moines college, Highland Park college, State University of Iowa, Iowa State Normal School, Penn college and Morningside college. Miss Ferguson of the last named institution was leader of the conference. There was no prepared program, but problems of common interest, and in particular the relation of faculty members to the work of the Young Women's Christian Associations.

COLLEGE CONFERENCE.

Friday, November 10, 2:15 p. m.
At the opening of the students' conference Saturday afternoon the necessary announcements were made by Mrs. Rawson and devotional exercises were conducted by Miss Conde.

In discussing the social responsibility of association girls, Miss Brown said that the Christian life was of a three-fold character, surrendered, devoted and different. Different, because after a realization of Christian love and a loving Christ, a life cannot be the same. Reference was made to First John 4, the great chapter on love. With this love of Christ in a girl's heart, she cannot limit herself to a small circle, but will give willingly of her life to every girl, and will long to touch each girl whom she meets, and lead her into the love of Christ. And, above all things, this touch must be sincere; otherwise, all our effort is self-seeking and hence despicable. The aim of an Association girl must be to attract girls to herself, and through herself to Christ for whom she stands.

Miss Henshaw continued the same discussion by saying that outsiders judge us not by the amount of committee work we do, or the number of devotional meetings we lead, or our knowledge of the Bible, but they judge us by what we are, personally, to them.

She then directed our attention to the finance work. God's gift to us, that of his only begotten son, was one of love and generosity, was carefully planned and given cheerfully and willingly, at a great sacrifice to both giver and given. She asked that our gift might likewise be carefully planned and given in a spirit of loving sacrifice, that they might be given prayerfully and in such a way as to bring another girl to him. There is a definite command that giving be systematic, First Corinthians XVI, 2, "Upon the first day of every week let everyone of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him."

In speaking of mission interests Miss Conde said that anyone who was not interested in missions was not a typical Christian. Ignorance concerning missions is widespread, and yet a study of the subject affords more downright culture than can be afforded by anything else offered in the college curriculum.

Bible Study.

Miss Christian, of Cedar Falls, discussed Bible study and the morning watch. The Bible possesses great intellectual value. Ruskin said, "I owe the best part of my taste in literature to my study of the Scriptures." A study of God's word is essential to an all round education and to the development of our moral nature. It shows the possibilities in our lives through the example of the saints. We must feed upon the word to be fruitful. To do the work of God we must have his power; to have his power, we must have his spirit, which comes through the channel of the Bible. As Christian leaders we need to study the Bible. The girl who has not time to study is the one who needs it most.

The Association needs to have Bible classes because she is the one who will teach, and to teach she must study. Besides, non-Christian girls may be touched by Bible study, and college is the best place to begin. She should have a regular time for study and it should come daily. Our study should be unhurried, should occupy at least fifteen minutes, should not come in the evening when we are tired, or at noon, when there are interruptions, but in the morning, when it is quiet, as was Christ's custom.

Saturday, November 11, 2:15 p. m.

Miss Carrie Uhl of Grinnell conducted the devotional part of the meeting. She left with us the thought of Deuteronomy 4:7, "Our God is nigh whosoever we call upon him."

Miss Henshaw then took charge of the meeting, with Miss Conde for referee, and the following questions were read and discussed.

What shall we tell girls when they say they have no time for Mission Study?

Grinnell said: Have all the cabinet girls belong to mission study classes and have real leaders with interesting courses, and the question of members will take care of itself. Penn college reported that they have a one credit class in geography and atlas, a combined class for Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.. This is taught by one of the college professors and is successful and popular. Bulletins in the library were suggested as helpful. These give references as to where some article on mission work may be found, and some remark about it, as, "Good. Takes six minutes to read." When such a notice is posted near the book referred to, it has its effect.

A Missionary Reading club was suggested for the busy girls. For this no preparation is necessary, and the girls get much from meeting together once a week to pursue a definite course of reading on mission work in some foreign country. In some schools it is well to have a Visiting Mission class. The members read the books used in the regular classes and visit those classes when possible if they cannot attend regularly. Permeating all our mission study and gauging the intensity of our zeal in it, is our love for the Master and our personal interest in his unfortunate children.

The social question was next taken up and was discussed especially in regard to bringing the girls of a large association together. Large parties and small, formal parties and informal, were considered, and all admitted to have their place. Miss Conde asked the pointed question, "Did you ever come away from a social function feeling that because of that gathering you knew anybody?" The Y. W. C. A. functions are not intended primarily to entertain, but to give the girls a chance to know each other. It was agreed that it is of first importance to have a very large social committee to wiggle itself into all the varied interests of the school, a committee composed of earnest, consecrated girls who are willing to cultivate friendship among all the girls and to come into close personal touch with those who need help. Clearly the work of the social committee does not end with the Sunday afternoon meeting and the receptions, but runs, a bond of sympathy, through the busy hours of the week.

How shall we get girls who are altogether disinterested to attend the meetings?

Often this condition is the result of not understanding the real work of the association. A dozen girls should band together to let the indifferent one know about the work, and do it in a tactful way. Personal individual work can do much. Friendship is a potent factor and the workers can love a girl into doing the right thing.

Shall we discourage girls who wish to pay all their systematic giving at one time?

The object of systematic giving is that there may come into the girl's life a definite spiritual work each week.

The morning watch?

We should keep it ourselves and tell others about it. The morning watch is one of the essentials in the life of the real, live Y. W. C. A. worker.

How shall we make every girl feel her responsibility?

Require some definite service at her hands and provide no other way for that work to be done. Responsibility begets desire to be true to the trust imposed in one.

Reports Given.

Next in order were the reports of the state chairman, Mrs. Rawson, the state treasurer, Miss Lone, the state secretary, Miss McElroy, and the student secretary, Miss Widney. Since these reports are to be given in detail in the handbook soon to be issued it will not be necessary to give them here.

Reports of the college and the city associations followed. Every college association reported a large increase in Bible and mission study classes, and in the membership in them has doubled. In every in every institution but two, more than half the girls are members of the association. Des Moines college reported thirty-five woman students, and thirty-five association members; Penn college had the next largest percentage, with 106 students and 92 members; the associations of a number of larger colleges claim from three-fifths to five-sixths of the girls in school.

All the city associations reported large educational and physical classes and a great interest in Bible study. The serving of lunches to business girls is also an important part of their activity. The delegations from the new association at Keokuk and Muscatine were presented to the convention.

Saturday Morning.

Saturday morning devotions were conducted by Miss Agnes Ferguson of Sioux City. The business session opened with the report of the committee on resolutions of the state executive committee. The resolutions as read on Friday were adopted, with the exception of the twelfth, which was amended so as to read, "That the young women of Iowa support a foreign secretary and secure the six hundred dollars necessary for Miss Paddock's salary."

The World's Work was presented by Miss Conde. The world's committee was first organized in 1895 by Great Britain and the United States, and since that time these two countries have shared the financial burden of the work. The members of the world's committee are always English, and have their headquarters in London, the general secretaries are always from the United States. The world's conference is to meet in Paris next May.

After this general review of the world's work, Miss Conde spoke particularly of a significant event in the history of the Y. M. C. A. For a long time about forty city associations in this country, most of them in the East, have had a central organization of their own called the international board. These associations did not require that their active members be members of an evangelical church.

After some correspondence between the American committee and the international board, a conference was held in New York last May, at which it was decided to unite upon the basis of church membership if the associations under the international board would ratify the action. Only last week representatives from these organizations met in conference and effected the union by a vote of 78 to 4. Led by Miss Conde, the convention effected the union by a vote of 78 to 4, great step in advance.

Miss Marquadt of Des Moines presented the work of the state committee. This committee consists of two secretaries and an advisory board of twenty-one members, twelve of whom reside in Des Moines. Meetings are held the first Saturday of every month. The purpose of the committee is to form new organizations, to strengthen old ones, and to bring all in touch with the American committee and the world's work. The officers are, beside the two general secretaries, a chairman, a vice chairman, a secretary, a treasurer, and committee for city work, college work, finance, publications and affiliations.

Mrs. Byers of Omaha presented the responsibility of the local association to state work. She made five practical suggestions. 1. Always send sample of printed matter to the state office, and let them know definitely about the progress of the work in your association. 2. Answer all communications promptly. 3. Plan for the state secretary's visit; make your requests large; use her as she wants to be used. 4. Attend state conventions. 5. Pay your full share.

Mrs. Byers then presented the financial needs of the state work, the associations made their pledges, and personal pledges were taken. The college associations pledged $622.50, the city associations $172, and private persons $73.45, making a total of $867.95.

Saturday Afternoon.

One of the most important meetings of the convention was the alumnae meeting Saturday afternoon at one o'clock.

After some preliminary remarks by Miss Henshaw, it was moved, "that it is the sense of this meeting that an alumnae auxiliary of the executive committee of the Y. W. C. A. of the state of Iowa affiliated with the American committee be organized." A constitution was adopted by which any woman who has been a member of the auxiliary by payment of the annual fee of one dollar. The object of the auxiliary as stated is "to unite the alumnae in organized effort under the guidance of the executive committee to aid the state organization of the Y. W. C. A., and to make permanent their relation to association work." The following officers were elected. President, Miss Grace Uhl, Iowa college; secretary, Mrs. Madge Young Macey, S. U. I.; treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Richardson, Des Moines college. The president is ex officio a member of the state executive committee. It is expected that this organization will soon come to be an important factor in the association work in Iowa.

Report of Committee on Resolutions.

In the name of the twenty-second annual convention of the Young Women's association of Iowa, your committee would offer most sincere and hearty thanks to all who have had any part in making possible to us this feast of good things which we have enjoyed, as delegates, these days, in Iowa City.

A. C. NEWELL MANAGER

We would express our thanks to the State University of Iowa for the cordial invitation to meet with you, and for the warm welcome you have given us. And to President and Mrs. MacLean for their very deep and practical interest, shown in so many ways.

We would thank Miss Brown and her many able helpers and we would express our appreciation of their efficient management which has been seen and felt on every side.

We would offer grateful thanks for the use of this church, and for the faithful services of the organist and choir in excellent music rendered.

We would express our thanks to our state committee and to our state secretaries for the strong program arranged, and executed by them, and all speakers from whom has come such valuable help. Especially would be grateful for the presence of Miss Bertha Conde, and for the helpfulness of the Bible hours in which God's world has been so magnified through her simple, searching, forceful expositions; and of Mrs. Emma Byers, for the invaluable and tireless service she has given throughout the convention.

We would thank the newspapers for full and satisfactory reports.

We would speak of the beautiful spirit of cordial hospitality which has pervaded the city during our sojourn here. And again and again would we thank those who have opened their hearts and their homes to us, making us so comfortable and so happy.

Respectfully submitted,

Sara E. Johnstone.

THE BACONIAN LECTURE. Professor Wickham Speaks of Inter- esting Insects.

At the weekly meeting of the Baconian club Friday evening Prof. H. F. Wickham lectured about "Arctic Colonies in the Rocky Mountains." Having been asked by some one previous to the meeting whether there were actually colonies of Eskimos in the Rocky Mountains he explained to his audience at the outset that the colonies of which he meant to speak were colonies of insects, colonies which are just as interesting to the student of entomology as colonies of Eskimos are to others.

He then explained that in some of the higher portions of the Rocky ranges also, there are found colonies of insects which are identical in nature with the insects of the Arctic regions. He explained the geological conditions past and present which account for the presence of these colonies.

A map showing the distribution of glaciers in the past was thrown on the screen and the probable influence of these great ice sheets on the redistribution of insect life in the past was discussed. Numerous plates illustrating the conditions under which these colonies exist today were used.

We are sure that the time spent in listening to this paper was a profitable one, giving us another glimpse of the importance of a knowledge of the past in explaining the present. The Baconian society is doing much good by giving the school such a course of lectures.

Miss Blanch Battles, Western College, attended the convention and visited with her sister, Miss Perle Battles, L. A. '06.

A SPECIAL NUMBER.

Today we give our readers a Y. W. C. A. number of our college paper and in so doing we believe we serve the cause of education and also aid a worthy organization which exists in the midst of school life.

There is no need to attempt to justify such an organization or to explain its special function in a state school. It is enough to know that it exists and is doing a good work in our midst. It makes every young woman who is a member stronger and better fitted for the work of life. It is also meeting the demands of the times and has the best and brightest young women not only in S. U. I., but in Iowa, as its members.

That their work is appreciated is evident from the homes that have been opened to the visitors who came to the city.

May the Y. W. C. A. association increase and prosper, is the wish of every loyal student and friend of the University.

SUNDAY SERVICE — THE PURPOSE OF THE ASSOCIATION.

On Sunday morning Miss Conde spoke at the Presbyterian church. The purpose of the Y. W. C. A. was presented. There have been many changes in the lives of young women in the last thirty years, and the Association is a branch of church work organized to meet new needs. It aims to hold young women true to the church at a time when they are away from home; to bring into their lives a force which will produce order when the mind is finding many new things; to train young women for active service at home and in foreign lands.

DAY MAY BE A HOLIDAY.

Everybody Given a Chance to Attend Big Game at Ames Without Loss of Recitations.

The rate to Ames a week from Friday will be $2.50 for the round trip. The excursion train will leave Iowa City at 7 a. m. and will return from Ames at 7 p. m. The train will make few stops, stopping at only Marengo, Brooklyn, Newton, Grinnell and Des Moines for passengers. There will be an awful crowd before the excursion reaches Ames. Drake university will send up quite a crowd to see the game. Iowa university should go en masse.

The College of Deans have the matter up of granting next Friday as a holiday and it will no doubt be granted. So everybody can go.

Drake Gets Rate.

Drake university has been granted a rate of one and one-third for the round trip from Des Moines to Iowa City next Saturday. At least four hundred are expected to come.

The Christian church people listened to an interesting talk by Miss McElroy on Sunday morning. She spoke of the gradual change in the religious sphere as well as in social and economic conditions, which had opened the door for the Y. W. C. A. It stands today, influential, not as a church, but as an arm of the church. In the cities the Y. W. C. A. building, with its gymnasium, reading, rest and lunch rooms, opens up a new life to the factory or shop girl.

Mrs. Byers spoke at the Congregational church on city associations. She showed that the city association has grown out of a real need, not an imaginary one.

THE BIBLE HOUR OF MISS CONDE

One of the Best Meetings of the Association; Helpful to All Present.

Perhaps no meetings during the convention were more valuable than Miss Conde's Bible hours. A brief sketch of each day's work is given below.

Friday.—Basis of the discussion: Matthew, Chapter 18.

Theme, "The Secret of Greatness." Prayer, "Teach me this day thy word. Open my eyes that I may see wondrous things."

Jesus Christ sets before each one of us an ambition for true greatness. He makes the condition for entering the kingdom of God that be become as little children.

There are three characteristics of real childhood.

First, The child has everything done for it and not by it. In our relation to Jesus Christ we must realize our dependence upon Him. We have only to accept the situation, not trying to do the impossible.

Second, Humility. The consciousness of our dependence upon a greater power is the state of humility.

Third, Obedience. There is no word that we need to learn more than this for disobedience is at the root of our greatest difficulties.

The Relationship with Christ.

In verse five he asks us to receive little children. He teaches us reverence for the weakest life.

Verse 6. "But whoso shall offend these little ones," etc. Here he teaches us our responsibility for life.

Verse 8 brings out the thought that even the good things of life may cause others to stumble. We should say not "What is good?" but what is best?" We need to be far more purposeful in carrying out the whole program of the Christian life as Christ set it forth.

Verse 10. "Despise not one of these little ones."

Verse 12 tells of the lost sheep. We are not to maintain a passive indifference toward any one, but be active in seeking to strive for that one for whom we do not particularly care.

In verse 15 the theme changes. Read this with Matthew 5:47. Love and pray for that person who has sinned against you. We are to forgive again and again.

Verse 13. The greatest joy is bringing some one who has never been in the fellowship, to Jesus Christ.

The central theme is the great love of the Father.

Saturday.

Theme, "The Secret of Power." Basis of study, Book of Hebrews. This book has one subject, Jesus Christ. It is a presentation to the Jewish mind of Jesus as their Savior and the work he came to do. Four sections of the Book:

- 1.—Chapters 1-4:13. The Person of Christ.
- 2.—Chapters 4:13-7. The Office of Christ.
- 3.—Chapters 8-10. Ministry of Christ.
4. Chapters 11-13. The experiences of the believer in Christ.

The book is an interpretation of all the lessons the children of God were supposed to have learned in the Old Testament. The children of Israel took forty years to make the journey which could have been made in eleven days. Deut. 1:2.

In Hebrew Paul is saying that some Christians have taken forty years to get to that place in their spiritual experience that could have been reached in eleven days.

Some are content to be the weaker "horse car" Christians when they might be the powerful electric car Christians.

What is power but efficiency? The elements in a successful Christian life:

Chapter 4, verse 1.

"Let us fear." Fear lest we are today not living the largest lives; lest we are not enabling God to fulfill in us His promises. It is not the thing we do but the thing we leave undone.

There is a deep rest in the life of every true Christian.

Chap. 4:11. "Give diligence to enter into this rest." Be not only hearers, but doers of the Word. The keynote of all our Bible work should be obedience to Jesus Christ.

Hebrews 4:14. "Let us hold fast to the profession" that Jesus Christ is the Son of God; then we will unconsciously yield Him our obedience for we know that He is worthy of it.

Chapter 4:16. "Let us draw near with boldness." Christ is the Son of God, but He is touched with the feeling of our infirmities. God does not expect perfection in the moral sense in any of His children. He will have mercy upon us if we "draw near" in the right attitude.

Chapter 6:1. "Let us press on unto perfection, or full growth" in the Christian life.

Chapter 10:22. "Let us draw near in fullness of faith." Let us grow in faith that God will supply our needs fully and completely. With Him all things are possible. Let the Christian have hope in the midst of all difficulties. God can never do anything with a discouraged soul.

Chapter 6:24. Is your life lived in such a way that it is "provoking love and good works" in others?

Chapter 12:1. "Let us lay aside

every weight and run with patience."

Let no sin impede us. Isaiah, Jeremiah and hosts of others dared to stand out true to God. They gladly laid down their whole lives for Him. Think that Paul should need to plead with us to lay aside our sins, in light of all he has said before of God's promises.

"Run with patience." Be ever faithful and steadfast.

Chapter 12:28. "Let us have grace whereby we may offer service well pleasing to Him." Let us offer up a sacrifice of praise continually to God, who loved us so as to give us a Savior and to make us His heirs.

Sunday.

Theme, "The Christian life as a living force."

Basis of the discussion, John 7:37-38; Jeremiah, 20:9; John 14:4.

The Christian life cannot be faultless. There must be a reproductive power in life and the Christian life must propagate itself into other lives. We must first of all accept the inevitable choice of a life work for ourselves by saying, "Father, I thank Thee that Thou hast called me to be a co-worker with Jesus Christ."

Ways of working:

First. By confession. If we are to bring a revelation of Jesus Christ from our inner life into the life of another, we must "confess Him before men." Notice His tact in dealing with men.

Second. By making the most of our opportunities. These are of two kinds, official and unofficial.

Official opportunities are such as alertness. Do not be idle, but seek her class, to a president with her cabinet, and to a committee chairman with her committee. A word of sympathetic fellowship may strengthen a struggling Christian for her whole life.

Unofficial opportunities come in our chance meetings with people as we come in general contact with them. This work can be done most effectively in four ways.

First. Let your life be filled with the Spirit. The Christian should have her life filled with a subtle fragrance peace and happiness. Never go out in the morning without Christ's hand upon you.

Second. Cultivate the spirit of alertness. Do not be idle, but seek opportunities. Try to make each individual life mean something to you and ask God to make you alert to take any opportunity to touch life.

Third. Ring true in little things. Be consistent in all that you do.

Fourth. Pray unceasingly. Ask God to give opportunities for touching lives, and He will remind us when they are present.

Let each one of us then accept our responsibility in this work. We know we can say with Paul, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Jesus Christ."

As we see the Savior seeking His lost ones in all that intensity of heart can we refrain from offering help in the glorious sacrifice?

The sweet privilege of being His co-workers is ours if we will only accept it.

FORUM HOLDS TRIAL.

A moot trial was held at the meeting of the Forum Friday evening. Judge Haney reserved his decision in the case until next Friday evening. In the meantime he will consider the evidence and law of the case.

The action was one for the theft of corn. According to the evidence the thief was caught in a trap set by the shrewd Iowa farmer who had noticed the contents of his corncrib decrease in size.

SUNDA YAFTERNOON.

A Splendid Meeting Conducted by Mrs. Emma F. Byers.

A most impressive gospel meeting for women was conducted by Mrs. Emma F. Byers, of Omaha, on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Byers gave as the key-note of the meeting the opening and closing remark of Rev. Willis E. Parsons' address of the evening before, "A message is of no value unless it is a personal message." The Bible message for the afternoon was the verse, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that heareth my word and believeth on Him that sent me hath eternal life and cometh not into the judgment but hath passed out of death into life."

The two distinctly personal words for the particular thought of each one are "hear" and "believe." So many times we are within the sound of a speaker's voice, but we do not hear. Often we read God's word from a sense of duty or because we have promised to read a certain portion, and we fail to get its real message for us.

Usually it is not so much that we can not believe, as that there is something that we are not willing to give up for God and this keeps us back. We must be willing to give up everything if we would have Him come into our lives.

College girls get so much learning that they begin to question and forget the sweet old simple story that their mothers taught them.

But some are afraid to believe; afraid that they will have to give up some pleasure, or that some friend will ridicule, or, perhaps, they have heard that to be a Christian sometimes means to be a martyr. But the loving Father when His children come back to Him, does not try to see how hard He can make it for them. He would not take away all the little difficulties from their lives, or even the large ones sometimes, for they need them in order to be strong and grow. But he would help them bear the burdens and meet the difficulties.

"He that believeth * * * hath eternal life," not "shall have," but "hath." And he shall not come into judgment, but shall stand before him justified, all his sin put away "as far as the east is from the west."

"Is passed out of death into life." When we realize that the eternal life begins now and is ours through all eternity, it is strange that our lives are not better, day by day, but we neglect to accept the glad things which the Father offers. This does not mean that we shall never see death nor lie silent in the tomb. It means, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me."

Take the life of Paul and see it as it is transformed. When the wonderful light comes he just turns around and is ready to give up honors, friends, home and life for God.

'And the life I now live—' What kind of life do you now live? Have you lost your prayer life, or forgotten to study your Bible? Do you put first things first, or are these the things you think about after the studies and duties of the day are over? Have you passed from death unto life? But, you say, "I can not give up everything." No man knows what God calls you to give up today, but in many of your lives there are things which you feel must be given up before you can stand, justified, before the Father.

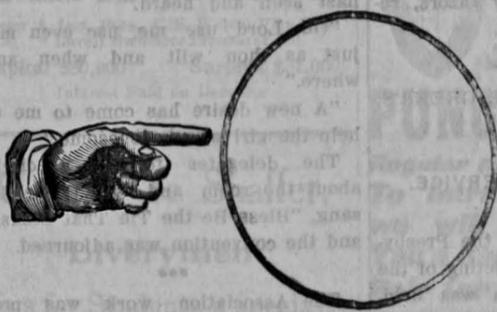

CO-ED ATHLETICS.

The formal organization of the women's tennis squad was recently perfected in Leland Stanford university at a large meeting held in Roble hall. It was decided that any university women who would agree to practice regularly the skill of the individual players not being taken into consideration, should have the use of the courts three times a week. Twenty two players signed immediately for practice, this being a larger number than has ever been out before.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

A water survey of Iowa jointly by the state board of health, the state bacteriological bureau and the United States geological survey, has been proposed by bacteriologist Henry Albert. In his annual report to the laboratory, Dr. Albert calls attention to the fact that Minnesota and Ohio have done this thing and it is of inestimable value. He suggests that the legislature be asked for an appropriation of $1,500 with which to carry on the work so far as the state is concerned, the remainder of the expense to be borne by the general government.

A GOOD MEETING—SPIRITUAL WOMEN DESIRED.

The presiding officer, Mrs. Byers, of Omaha, pressed home the central thought of a few verses read from Revelations, 21st chapter, viz.: "Nothing that defileth shall enter into the new Jerusalem," and urged upon the conference the necessity of guarding our lives and motives that they may be kept in purity.

The discussion of Bible classes in city associations was illuminated by the experiences of associations there represented. Des Moines had given back to many pastors stronger church workers, because, in the personal workers' classes, young women had been developed for service. Upon invitation the ministers of the city met in the association rooms for their ministerial meeting and remained to tea. The occasion was seized upon to present the plans and aims of the association along the line of Bible study and religious work, with the result that the approval and hearty co-operation of the ministers were won for the association.

The neighborhood Bible class affords a means of extension work in parts of the city so far removed from the central rooms that women find it impossible to be present there for work. These sections are reached by parlor classes.

Nurses' Bible classes in hospitals have been tried with success and certainly there is no one who can be a greater blessing than a consecrated, Bible-taught nurse.

"How shall we get committee workers when every woman is a club woman rushed to death?" This question was answered by Mrs. Byers, who said, "By prayer and definite work to win the woman you want. If you see a woman especially endowed, splendidly equipped for lofty service in association work, pray earnestly that her interest and sympathy may be won and go about it tactfully to bring your heart's desire to pass.

Mrs. Byers said she would have the most spiritual women on the board on her finance committee, women of large faith and untiring in good works.

Membership committee work can best be done by a large committee, representing every church and every industry possible. A membership secretary is worth to a large association, all she costs; and it was suggested that several small associations combine and engage a membership secretary, who should divide her time between the associations. In Omaha the membership secretary, among many other things, goes every week to some ladies' society in the churches, and presents the work of the association.

SUNDAY EVENING SERVICE.

On Sunday evening, at the Presbyterian church, the last meeting of the Y. W. C. A. convention was held. Rev. Willis E. Parsons, D. D., of Fairfield, gave the address of the evening, from the text:

"So as much as in me is, I am ready." He spoke of this as a personal message. The word "ready" meaning a mental attitude in which we recognize our own possibilities. With this understanding of ourselves comes the feeling that we are debtors, and that we must be ready to give ourselves as a living sacrifice to Christ.

The doors of opportunity around the horizon of life all stand ajar. As college men and women we have left our homes and come up here with the desire to enter one of these doors. All the restlessness which people feel in this world is apt to come from the fact that they have entered the wrong door and it is too late to return. Now, are we ready to wait before God and learn what he would have us be?

We can make this verse from Paul especially appropriate and helpful to us just now. We must ask ourselves the question, "Am I ready to go back home from this convention?" Our friends and associates will be expecting a great deal of us. We should have come with the purpose of going back better, more ready for the service of Christ. Now, am I ready to go back and be a witness of Christ in my regular work, to learn the joy of service; to say, "Lord, here am I?"

After the address of Dr. Parsons, Mrs. McElroy led a brief farewell service. She impressed the girls with the thought that a message was no message unless it was a personal one and quoted the convention text: "But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers, only deceiving your own selves."

Mrs. Rawson wished to leave as a parting message this verse, "And blessed is she that believed, for there shall be a performance of those things which were told her from the Lord."

Miss Conde quoted a verse from Titus, "That now at this time, your abundance may be a supply for their want." She emphasized the thought that whatever has come to us is not ours until we have put it into use.

Mrs. Byers gave as her farewell, the verse, "God is able, nay, always bound for you."

Following this, the members of the state committee each told the most precious thought which the convention had brought to her.

Miss Marquardt: "I am my brother's keeper."

Miss Lewis: "A clearer vision of what a Christian life may accomplish."

Miss Call: "Yield our hearts to thy obedience."

Mrs. Schenk: "To love young women more and appreciate their fellowship more."

After the state committee, some of the secretaries also spoke and the following thoughts were given:

"Let us all live so that we can say, 'I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision.'"

"Go home and tell that which thou hast seen and heard."

"Oh, Lord, use me, use even me, just as thou wilt and when and where."

"A new desire has come to me to help the girl who is lonesome."

The delegates formed a circle about the room and joining hands sang, "Bless Be the Tie That Binds," and the convention was adjourned.

The Association work was presented at the Baptist church by Miss Anderson. After a brief outline of the association. Miss Anderson spoke on city associations. They have five departments: Religious, educational, business, social and extension. All the opportunities which these departments afford are means to one great end—the betterment of the city girl's life.
