THE DAILY IOWAN

PUBLISHED BY THE STUDENTS OF THE STATE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA

Vol. 5

IOWA CITY, IOWA, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1905

No 49.

Day with Musicians.

Dr. Bartlett and the Iowa Euterpean Quartette Fill the House.

This morning at assembly the Iowa Euterpean quartette were presented to the students by President MacLean. This was their first appearance before the student body in assembly, and they were enthusiastically received.

The selection they rendered was "Old Gold," the prize song written last year by John Parish. The music was written by Dr. M. L. Bartlett, of the Des Moines Musical college. This was its dedication, and a more propitious time or a more fortunate choice of those rendering it, could scarcely have been chosen.

The work of the Euterpeans was superb, and was listened to with that hush that betokens intense interest. When they finished, the applause was instant and insistent, continuing till President MacLean held up his hand for silence. He announced that encores are not permitted in assembly, but a repetition would be allowed. The song was presented again and listened to with as much interest as was shown the first time.

The quartette is composed of fine voices and their blending is excellent. They are an organization of which the University may well be proud.

Dr. M. L. Baltlett was on the platform as the guest of the University, President Mac Lean introduced him, explaining that he is the author of many musical works of wide circulation.

Dr. Bartlett prefaced his talk with some witty remarks which elicited the heartiest of laughter from the audience. He then spoke briefly, taking as his theme the sterling rectitude of our forefathers, and calling upon us to emulate their virtues. In closing he referred to President Roosevelt and Governor Cummins as types of the highest kind of manhood.

Dr. Bartlett is the musical father of more high class vocalists than any other man west of Chicago, and his visit to us is a real treat as well as an honor.

IOWA EUTERPEAN QUARTETTE.

Musical Reception Given in Honor of Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Bartlett.

Last evening a company of invited guests gathered at Close Hall to hear a musical given by the Iowa Euterpean quartette in honor of Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Bartlett. An excellent program was rendered.

At the intermission after the first half of the program, President MacLean spoke briefly of Iowa in peace and war, and of how Iowa is a synonym for corn and swine in the mind of some people—but in reality Iowa stands high in literature, in art and music. He then introduced Dr. Bartlett, who spoke. "Music," he said, "is an art and a science which is little understood and persistently misrepresented. It is sometimes called a fad or flitting thing, but surely great men such as Mozart, Wagner, and Beethoven did not waste their lives on a fad. Music is an ever present living force."

The work of the quartette was much appreciated and they were heartily encored during the evening. Mr. L. L. Rogers and C. C. Brown each sang a solo which was pleasing and displayed much talent in a musical line.

Miss Griffith rendered some well chosen selections in a vivid and dramatic manner. The Misses Schofield and McKnight and Mrs. Brown, pianists, gave a delightful change in the program, and their work was appreciated by all present.

The personelle of the quartette is as follows:

Thos. L. Rogers, first tenor; David J. McDonald, second tenor; Chas. E. Luce, baritone; Chas. C. Brown, basso.

Miss Maude Griffith, reader; Miss Ethel McKnight, Mrs. C. C. Brown. Miss Scofield, pianists.

BACONIAN.

The regular meeting of Baconian Club will be held on Friday evening, Dec. 1st, at 7:30. Mr. C. D. Poore will read the paper of the evening, subject, "Chemistry Boiled Down." Illustrated.

REPORTS OF THE ST. LOUIS GAME.

As far as now known the Athletic union will receive the only reports of the St. Louis game that will come to the city tomorrow. Results will be announced at the athletic park during the progress of the Iowa-Ames game.

DO THE HANDSOME THING.

To show their appreciation of Jimmy's services, the football team before leaving for St. Louis presented him with a fine turkey for his Thanksgiving dinner. This is the proper thing, for Jimmy is not only a mighty good fellow, but one that attends strictly to business. May he have many happy returns of the day.

TOMORROW'S GAME.

Tomorrow's game will be one of the most interesting of the minor games played by Iowa this year. The freshman team put up such a fight at Minneapolis that they have commanded much respect since. The eyes of the University are upon the "freshies" and they are the subject of many hopes for next year. If we do not have a whirlwind team next year, all signs will fail.

The "Aggies" may be expected to put up a strong game, and it will keep the Iowa boys busy to hold them down.

Freshmen, your work tomorrow will be one of the large elements in our calculations for next year.

Linup.

Canberry, re; Forrey, rt; McFadden, rg; Hastings, c; Elliott, lg; Burgesson, lt; Perrine, le; Griffith, q;

Cobb, rh; Colline, lh.
Game is called for 2:30.

Officials.

Cowan, S. U. I., referee; Coach Bryant of Coe, umpire; Max Mayer, head linesman and time keeper.

DR. MCCLINTOCK LECTURES.

An interesting lecture was given to the physical culture students last night by Dr. McClintock. His subject was "When and How to Sleep and Eat."

NO IOWAN TOMORROW.

On account of the holiday, there will be no Iowan tomorrow.

JERRY DELANEY HOPEFUL.

Iowa's Former Trainer Thinks St. Louis Will Defeat Iowa.

Word has been received in Iowa City by friends of Jerry Delaney, Iowa's trainer last spring, that Iowa will be beaten at St. Louis. Jerry is now trainer at St. Louis university and thinks he has his men in condition good enough to beat almost anything, including Iowa.

Jerry's training of Iowa's winning team last spring showed that he knew how to keep the men in condition all right. It is to be hoped that Jerry has underrated us, and Iowa will win hands down.

NEW BOOK BY PROF. WELD.

John Wiley & Sons, of New York City, are about to issue a new work on determinants under the authorship of Prof. L. S. Weld, head of the department of mathematics and dean of the graduate college.

This work is No. 3 of a series of mathematical monographs being edited by Prof. Mansfield Merriman, of Lehigh university, and R. S. Woodward, president of Carnegie institution. Other volumes of the series are being contributed by some of the most eminent American mathematicians.

THE DR. POPPE LIBRARY.

The Dr. E. Poppe classical library is being put into excellent condition for preservation. Many of the bindings are being renewed, and all the books will be marked with a distinctive label or seal. It will prove to be an appropriate monument to Dr. Poppe's great learning and ability as a teacher.

If the night has closed around you,
And the winds of sorrow play
Through your heart as through a desert,

Sweeping everything away—
After storm there comes a stillness,
And the voice of God will say,
"I was with you in the darkness,
I am with you, child, alway."—Ex.

"Who is this maid? What is her song?
I study late and I study long."

Reports from Van der Zee.

Rhodes Scholar at Oxford Sends Interesting Literature.

Mr. Jacob Van der Zee, Iowa's scholar in Oxford university, writes that he has just received an account of the Iowa Grinnell game in the Iowan. He thinks Iowa will again be champion. Vacation begins there on December 9, and continues for six weeks. This time Mr. Van der Zee will spend with relatives in Holland. In the near future he will send to the Iowan some letters describing the university and the conditions in Oxford.

Mr. Van der Zee mailed the Iowan a copy of the Isis, a weekly journal published at Oxford. There are, he says, no dailies among the college papers of England. The Isis is in magazine form, is nicely printed, and is scholarly and dignified in its style. It has certain peculiarities that are noticeable to the American reader; for example, the spelling "goal" where we use "jail."

Have Jokes About President.

The English collegians are not so dignified as not to have their fun. Under the head, "Great Men at Oxford. 1.—President Roosevelt," appears the following:

"Sunday.—The President arrives at Balliol, disguised as a Rhodes Scholar and accompanied by Mr. Booker Washington. Attends Balliol Concert and sings, 'Black's de Colours.' Is strenuously encored.

"Monday.—President Roosevelt visits Balliol, disguised as a Rhodes Scholar and accompanied by Mr. Booker Washington. Attends Balliol Concert and sings, 'Black's de Colours.' Is very Crosse and announces his intention of transferring his custom to the Times.

"Tuesday.—The 'All Blacks' visit Oxford. President Roosevelt in ecstasies. Scores a try against them and is compelled to cede New Jersey to Mr. Seddon.

"Wednesday.—Honorary degree of B. C. L. (Black Coon Lover) conferred on President Roosevelt. President strokes the college cat.

"Thursday.—President Roosevelt strokes Trial Eight.

"Friday.—President Roosevelt recites 'Woodman, Spare That Tree!' at Christ Church Smoking Concert. Brings down the House and is elected to an honorary fellowship.

"Saturday.—President Roosevelt plays centre-forward for the 'Varsity against West Norwood, strains every nerve and is awarded his Blue. Intimates that he would prefer Black if all the same to Captain. Captain regrets inability to comply."

We give some extracts below which throw some sidelights on Oxford affairs.

Critise "Dons."

In a semi-editorial column, the writer takes the "dons" to task for untidiness. He says the unkemptness of the undergraduate is intended for

TO THE STUDENTS.

On Thursday comes the Iowa-Ames freshmen football game. This closes the season on Iowa field and everybody ought to be on hand to cheer our team to victory.

The Ames team comes as our guests, and let us teach them how to play football and also show them that we know how to treat a crowd of strangers in our city. Now is the time to demonstrate what kind of people attend our institution. Let us meet the men at the train and show them the attention that a visiting delegation deserves. Then—when the game is over, let us see that they have gentlemanly treatment. Let us have a crowd of men who know how to make this place pleasant for strangers, accompany them to the train and see them off. May we not give the visiting team the courtesy we should expect when away from home? Let the students see that no one shall show any discourtesy to the visitors.

If the Ames team is to be met at the train, and escorted up town, it will be necessary for some one to assume the leadership. Coach Chalmers, Manager Jones and Capt. McGowan being away, the duty will naturally fall to others prominent in football and athletic matters. Let us not fail in this.

Washington Times: When the fool-killer gets through with football he will try his hand at deer shooting then at skating on thin ice, then at premature changes of underwear, and then at rocking the boat. He has the automobile and the unloaded pistol all the year round.

comfort, but that of the "dons" is rooted in the system.

"The question of undergraduate dress," he says "has come up several times lately. There are a few well-dressed men in Oxford, but certainly not very many. A man with a red face does not give the impression of a harmonious whole when he combines it with a purple collar and a yellow waistcoat. But for years the Oxford fashions have been moving in one direction—that of comfort. This movement has proved the death-knell of whiskers and swallow-tails and billecks on week-days. It may be that we are now carrying the thing rather to an extreme: but it is not a very serious matter, and it may end in the abolition of the stiff-fronted dress shirt. I cannot see that the unkemptness of the Don is striving after any ideal."

Doesn't Like Cold Breakfasts.

As a second grievance, the same writer complains that cold breakfasts are the order on Sunday morning. He quotes from a supposed communication the following:

"Why is it that the College authorities persist in refusing to provide us with hot breakfast on Sunday? * * * And if you are bold enough to enquire why, the bursarial lips will tell you that 'It gives too much trouble to the servants!' * * * Dons, however, take very good care that they get a Christian Breakfast themselves—they are not in all things such fools as they are painted; and while, by dint of charging high prices all round, in most colleges they make a considerable profit out of the kitchen, they do not provide enough men to do the work and to provide us poor undergraduates with decent food seven mornings in the week. * * And what is the result? Many of us get up as late as possible in order to put off as long as we can the unappetising meal which we know is awaiting us, thus giving extra trouble to the scouts, who are supposed (vide College rules) to be out of college by 11 a. m. Otherwise we wander forth to some Hotel or Restaurant to obtain the civilized breakfast with which a shortsighted college has refused to provide us. * * I have little to add to this very genuine grievance. Every one in Oxford knows that creepy cold ham and the eggs by whose insertion towards the end of term at any rate, the very saucers are insulted. However, I believe there are exceptions. One or two colleges have hot breakfast in Hall on Sundays, and one or two allow it in rooms in the ordinary week-day fashion. The right was won in these cases by the rise of some champion who explained to the college authorities the iniquity of allowing the same Sunday principles to sanction hot breakfast for themselves which refuse it to us."
