Iowa's All-Iowa Team.

Picked from the "Big Four" Schools of the State.

This morning at assembly, the address was given by Ruth Paxson, '98, national college secretary for the Y. W. C. A. Miss Paxson was at home in more than one way. Her remarks won to the point and were punctuated with witty hits that held the interest of the students from first to last. There are four states, says Miss Paxson, that the perfect man and woman should develop, physical, intellectual, social and spiritual. He who develops the physical is built; the one who knows nothing but the intellect is a big head; the young lady who cares only for society is a belle; the person who knows nothing but the spiritual is a blight.

College students are not like birds, which can belong to the last three, but frequently get into one of the first three, or do nothing whatever to either. Most of them, with the excuse that they have no time, do not.

The time wasted would be ample to give opportunity for spiritual growth. The three ways of wasting time are: in worry, in talking and in lack of concentration. The girl who has an hour or more to get a lesson should not spend part of it in worry; but if she is not willing to work, she will fail, but she should get down to work and get it out of the way.

Special Services by Y. W. C. A.

Miss Ruth Paxson, of the class of '98, came yesterday to the campus as the representative of the Young Women's Christian association during this week. Miss Paxson is to speak to the young women of the University at several meetings this week. At 9 o'clock on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Monday evenings, and at a vesper service at 3:30 on Sunday afternoon in the Congregational church. Ten minute noon prayer meetings will be held each noon in Miss Paxson's room. Each girl is most cordially invited to hear Miss Paxson at these meetings.

Cross Country.

The third and last of the series of cross-country runs was held yesterday afternoon, Braintree securing first place, Remley second, and Cook third. In the entire series, however, Remley is easiest, having won in both of the previous runs. Braintree ranks second, while Cook is third place. Handsome sweaters are to be awarded as follows: men, $10; women, $5.

The regular meeting of Baccalan club will be held in the Hall of Physics on Friday evening, December 7th at 7:30. Prof. Sesersohn will read the paper of the evening, subject, "Color Vision in the Infrequent Field."

The center of interest will be held by Debaters.

The first of many forensic contests that are to be held in the University this winter will take place on Tuesday, December 19, when Irving Institute and Engelschutz society will line up against each other in the preliminary to the Minnesota-Iowa debate. The question to be argued is, "Resolved, That the United States is entitled to an equitable protectorate over any West Indian, Central or South American Republic, whenever it shall manifest a chronic failure to meet its foreign obligations." The Irvingites, represented by Charles R. Seidell, Law '07; Walter J. Myers, L. A. '98, and Wil F. Riley, L. A. '97, will uphold the affirmative, while Misses, whose representatives are Sara Files, Law '97, Will Brinton, M. '98, and R. E. Cleveland, L. A. '96, will defend the negative.

The result of the preliminary will largely determine the personnel of the team in the final, the winning society being privileged to select two representatives, and the losing society, one, on the team which will go to Minneapolis next March to argue against the other. The same day that is to be used in the preliminary will be debated in the final, with the addition of these words, "Granted, that neither the republics themselves, nor any other foreign association would object.

Americans, it is said, do not know how to play. They get into such a habit of it that everything turns to work. This fact is evidenced by the conditions of American athletes at the present time. Nearly everything turns to specialties. The plays are not engaged in for the pleasure of playing, but with the idea that we must get ready to beat some other school. This is supposed to foster loyalty, and deadness does to some extent, yet loyalty, like many of the other fine sentiments, is often best fostered by the very things that would seem to take its place of it. The best way for a school to facilitate loyalty is to do the students some good, to come to their aid, mentally, morally, that they will have an increasing sense of obligation from the time they enter the freshman class until they finish the curriculum of life laid down by those who have gone before.

Not the least good to be conferred is the lesser of James living. He who has learned this never grows old in the unpleasant sense. He may become full of years, but the fountain of youth is within him. To teach this is the mission of college sports. There is grave question if we can exact drilling from this point a Rhode scholar from Princeton, at Oxford, writes as follows:

"One of the great things that England can teach America is play. If we say that we can show the Englishman how to work, he can certainly reply that he can show us how to play. We have no idea how to play our work, as most any player on any college eleven will agree. The same spirit of competition that is rampant in the business world is evident in every line of sport. We need a little of the spirit of play.

"Here in Oxford, practically every undergraduate is given a chance to try or play some game. Of course, there are some ' slackers,' but the vast majority of men have some regular and enjoyable form of exercise at the year round. The very word ' slackers ' is a term of reproach.

"How far is this true of an American college? I suppose there is more month-by-month sport at Princeton than at most other colleges, but even there the proportion of those who play all the year round, must be a very small one indeed.

"I would like to give some example showing the English way of looking at athletics, but space forbids. Suffice it to say, that, with the possible exceptions of rowing and track, every line of sport is play. No practices, scarcely any training, and no gladiatorial exhibitions.

"Why not introduce English Rugby as well as 'soccer?' To meet all tastes you cannot too great a variety. 'Soccer' (Notice the English spelling of the word. In the West we have been spelling it 'soccer.') Ed.) requires more skill than 'rugby,' and English would prefer the latter. Though inferior to American Rugby as a spectacle, I believe it is a truer test of the true stand, point, viz: that of the players, and it might possibly have a beneficial effect upon the student body.

"No armor is required for either of these 'shirts,' here, and shorts are equivalent to our running suits.

Miss Grace M. Holman, L. A. '03, is teacher of history in the Mediapolis High School, has just been placed on the accredited list, with no comment concerning her work is necessary.

Hon. Elbert W. Weeks, Law, '73, a member of the 29th General Assembly, is president of the Galatha Center school board, and is interested himself in bringing the high school to a higher standard. Mr. Weeks, it will be remembered, was largely instrumental in securing favorable legislation for the University two years ago.

Iowa Falls high school is reported to be in a flourishing condition this year. Small wonder that this is so, for the faculty of six, six U. I. L. I. is represented as follows: Prof. and Mrs. A. W. Weeks, High School Principal; Miss A. W. Weeks, Latin teacher; Elizabeth Carroll, Miss.

W. E. Arkleson, many years ago a student in the University, is now head of the Castana school, and has just succeeded in having his high school placed on the accredited list by the University. He has effected a union of his high school with several adjacent country districts; thereby securing for the people all the advantages of the large schools. The inspector reports a fine little high school, with three teachers, and ample equipment.

The Logan high school has recently been placed on the University accredited list. Logansville, it will be remembered, is the home of George Eggin, so well known in Iowa City, now a lawyer and lecturer of much reputation.

Miss Mary Buffum, L. A. '06, is teaching in the Wilton high school. She and all her co-workers in Wilton recently drove to Tipton to attend the Cedar County Teachers' Association.
