Y. W. C. A. Hopes To Enlarge the Scope of Work.

A question that is receiving very careful attention in the Y. W. C. A. is the advisability of having a general secretary. Miss Paxson and the members of the executive committee have had the matter under consideration, and on Saturday a mass meeting of the members will be held in order to discuss it. Monday there will be a joint meeting of advisory committee and cabinet, at which time a decision will毫无疑问 be made.

"The work of a general secretary," said Miss Paxson, "would be no work take away the duties of the members that are being so well performed by them now. The association is in an excellent shape, but there are many things that the girls cannot do without the help of an executive. And we don't want the girls to be compelled to spend all their time on the association. It is for this reason that an executive is needed.

"The matter is under discussion," said Miss Paxson, "and it is expected that a decision will be made on Monday. The decision hinges on ways and means. The association now raises about $100 and we shall need to increase the budget to $700 in order to meet the added expenses." The question is, "Can we raise this amount, and how?"

JOHN GRIFFITH AS RICHARD III.

John Griffith's appearance as Richard III at the opera house last night was not as well attended as it deserved to be.apparent, rather than quickly intense setting was needed. In the title role he was by all odds the star of the company. This may be due to the fact that the same role was played here only a short time ago by Mr. Griffith, and most Iowa City's lovers of such plays as Richard III saw Mantell. Griffith's work is a dream of King Henry VI. He was by all odds the star of the company. This may be due to the fact that there was no support of fair. Yet Claudius Foher, as King Henry VI, and William Lloyd, as the Earl of Richmond and the Duke of Buckingham, should be mentioned for their splendid acting. The stage settings were good, and the electric lighting fairly so. As a whole, the attraction does not profit by comparison with Richard III, with Mantell taking the title role. Yet at many times during the evening Griffith displayed considerable talent for Shakespeare. Griffith's appearance as Richard III at the opera house last night was not as well attended as it deserved to be.

The Engineers' society has made several changes in its constitution under which it is hoped to place the society on a par with the college it represents. The changes provide for the division of the society into four sections, representing the four departments of the college, each to hold meetings as they choose, and then to constitute a general society, which shall meet monthly. Under this plan it is hoped the student will get more of the techniques of his particular subject and that the society as a whole will receive benefit.

JOHN GRIFFITH AS RICHARD III.

John Griffith's appearance as Richard III at the opera house last night was not as well attended as it deserved to be. It was doubtless because the weather was unfavorable. NOTHING KNOWN HERE ABOUT DEBATING CHALLENGE FROM NORMAL.

The following appeared in the Register and Leader this morning: "Cedar Falls, Dec. 7.—The debating league of Iowa State Normal school today forwarded a challenge to the debating league of the State University of Iowa for a joint debate. The general secretaries of the two schools made an agreement for such a challenge, but the special committee is still to be formed. A decision will doubtless be reached in a few days, perhaps Saturday."

Wisconsin's football season was very successful this year. Full financial point of view, the receipts from the various games amounted to something over $12,000.

Taking Its Rightful Place.

Iowa University, says Miss Paxson, is getting an equipment comparable to other great institutions.

"I have felt that Iowa university has not been recognized as it should be in the West," said Miss Paxson. "Iowa has been a strong people who have had personal recognition, but the institution has been in the background."

Miss Paxson has visited nearly all the larger institutions in the country and has visited the universities as one of the four national student secretaries of the Y. W. C. A., and has been almost altogether with state universities.

The university secretary, Miss Paxson spent a week in Moody Bible Institute. She was then state secretary of the Y. W. C. A. for Iowa for three years, after which time she returned upon her present work, which was three years ago.

She is enthusiastic about association work. She is the only religious organization in the country and being entirely voluntary. She is thoroughly interested, and lends herself heartily to the movement. Miss Paxson spent a week in Moody Bible Institute. She was then state secretary of the Y. W. C. Reforming Football.

(Daily Republican.)

We would rather have a boy with spirit about his arm, his foot in a sling, his head in a bandage and with grit in his face, than one that gets pale when his nose bleeds and runs from a scrimmage.

What football needs is a little more honesty in management and a few less sons in generosity on the part of the student body. Good manners and common courtesy are needed. The prize ring can give football people and some other student leaders in good manners. There can be improvements made along these lines without doing away with the game, but to reform the game, that is quite another thing.

Football is a bad, just as hoopskirts were forty years ago; as the Grecian bend was a little later, and just as flowing trouser legs have been during the past summer. It will go in time as did the hoopskirt, as did the Grecian bent, but it will never be reformed.

College and the Man.

He went away to college.

With a splendid retina; He took his charger with him. And, of course, his valet, too. He was a private tutor.

And at last triumphantly

Turned to leave his alma mater

With a bachelor's degree.

After trying architecture

He began to study law;

Next he turned to engineering.

Then he saw—oh thought he saw—

That the thing for him was banking;

But he quit, ere many days,

To encounter dismal failure

In a dozen other ways.

There are people who will argue

That his failure must be ascribed

To his college education

And the knowledge he imbibed;

But I rather think he'd hardly

Have some pride conquering,

With his limited equipment,

If he'd never known a thing.

Student Will Invoke Law.

Young man attending Cornell college will seek reinstatement in courts.

Mr. Vernon, Iowa, Nov, 22.—An appeal to his love is likely to be a new factor in the strained situation in Cornell college, as a result of which several students have been sent home under sentence of indefinite suspension. Eli Stimson, of Red Oak, who is one of the students to fall under the faculty ban, is preparing to bring an action for an injunction to prevent his disbarment from college.

The present difficulty has arisen from a series of class scrapes, which have served to color the life of the college during the last few weeks. Seven students are in all have been suspended, and there are rumors that this number will be added to within the next few days or weeks.

President G. Stanley Hall of Clark University, is not in favor of the present system of college entrance examinations. He believes they are entirely too difficult. "The tendency is to standardize knowledge, so that it is like baked hay," he said. "Colleges ought to be open to everyone who can profit by the privilege. That a man has read the Bible in English is a sufficient entrance examination."

This is not unlike an idea expressed by President Hadley of Yale several years ago, to the effect that after all it was the "intellect" or "soul" of a college quite as much as the curriculum that counted in the education of a young man, and hence examinations were useless.—Volante.
