Prof. Houser Lectures.

Fourth in the Series Under the Auspices of the Department of Biology.

In spite of the fact that it came in the middle of examination week, Prof. Houser's lecture last night was heard by an audience which well filled the Liberal Arts Assembly Room. Most of those present had heard his three previous lectures of this course, and so they knew that the subject would be well worth hearing.

Hence, the goodly sized audience.

The subject of the lecture was "Why Animals Resemble their Ancestors." Attention was first called to the fact that animals do resemble their ancestors. The butterfly has spots in its wings similar to those of its immense forbears.

"The matter constituting the organism always follows one plan which is the basis for heredity. Heredity is the organic continuity of life activities—is also the part of the cell necessary to all reproduction."

A Burgess Meeting on Friday and Saturday in which the Indians Take Part.

On Friday, February 2, and Saturday, February 3, Dr. Ward will lecture about the Tama Indians. A number of the Indians will be present and talk in their own language.

Among the number will be Ha ha lo n k w a t o w a, who has been for 18 years secretary of his tribe; also Pau-ke-ton, a young lad who can talk English and learns some of the language of the Tama and other tribes.

The Indians will remain in town over Sunday afternoon, and on Monday Dr. Ward has over 150 views and will give a slide illustrated lecture. A number of the faculty members of the faculty will also speak: Professors C. C. Notting, B. F. Shambaugh, George Gilbert, Mr. Le Dams and C. B. Wilson.

Courses in the Department of Education.

School Supervision and Administration.—A new course in Education. Practical problems of public school education such as the making and administration of courses of study; functions of superintendents, principals, teachers and school boards; how to supervise a system of schools, class validation, teachers' meetings, student organizations, etc. Prof. Ensign.

Monday, Tuesday at 4 p.m. (Institute of Professors Ensign or of Professor Bolton.)

Course Twelve—Childhood and Adolescence. This course begins the second semester and is open to all students who may elect subjects. The course is designed to be of practical value to both men and small children, but pupils of high school age as well. See description of the course in the catalogue. Prof. Bolton.

Saturday, February �, 8 a.m. Second Section Tuesday at 8 a.m.

Students desiring to enter other courses should consult the instructors. Under certain conditions students may be permitted to enter courses which have been in progress throughout the year.
Mr. Conary has given "Around the Stove" nearly 2,000 times in some of the best lyceum courses in America. Those who fail to hear this "Prince of Entertainers" will miss a rare treat.

ENGINEERING SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS.

At their meeting Monday night the Engineering Society elected officers for the coming semester. The officers elected are: President, P. B. Champ, of Cherokee; Iowa; Secretary, John Schenauer, of Eau Claire, Iowa; and Treasurer, Mr. W. M. Sample, of Iowa City. The society is in a thriving condition, and prospects are good for strong and profitable work during the next semester.

HIGHLAND PARK STUDENTS HAVE TROUBLE OVER BASKET BALL GAME.

The telegraphers and commercial students at Highland Park had a fight over a basketball game recently. A general mixup occurred on the campus and, when the officers tried to stop it, the students and police mixed. No arrests have been made as yet.
