Kansas is Defeated.

Iowa Wins Rough Contest by a Good Margin—Dancing Follows.

The Iowa baseball team defeated Kansas 28 to 19 at their own game, as the originator of basketball as it is now played. Prof. N. S. Naumoff, also the author of the first set of rules, is a profes sor in Kansas university. The second half of the contest was full of rough tactics adopted by the Kansans when they saw they were defeated.

Iowa started out with a brilliant burst of speed and got a lead which the Jayhawkers were never able to overcome. Allen excelled for Kansas, making thirteen of thirty, while Ransom, for Iowa, succeeded in making twenty-five of thirty in the second half. The Iowa players had better team work and most of the play was in their territory.

Kansas has only been defeated by the Iowans M. C., C. A. team on their recent trip. The players who have played the principal teams in Kansas and Nebraska. From here they will go to Chicago, where they will play the Evanston Y. M. C. A. and the Central T. C. M. A. teams. The faculty manages the athletics at Kansas and Prof. W. C. Landom accompanied them.

Between halve two of the Mexican students of the University, Rodriguez and de Leon, gave an artistic and attractive dance giving exhibition.

About 75 couples enjoyed the dance after the game. This will probably be a feature of the basketball games in the future.

WORK HARDER ON EQUITY.

Law Students Feel It Unnecessary to Learn Code—May Change.

It is interesting to note that the highest percentage of failures in the college of law of the State university is in subjects which deal exclusively with abnormal. A compilation of figures given us by Prof. Barry Gilbert, of the college of law, admirably illustrates the foregoing. Mr. Gilbert is in a position to speak authoritatively on the matter as he is the instructor of two of the large classes in the college law—which fittingly exemplify the problem. Equity treats of that division of jurisprudence, in England as well as in America. Probate law deals with the statutory provisions—relative to wills, estates, and intestate matters—enacted by the Iowa legislature and the interpretation of those provisions by the supreme court of the state. According to the curriculum of the University, the two subjects compass half of the work of the junior class during the initial semester of the school year. The standard of our institution is high and all instruction is thorough.

Now considering this fact, the percentage of failures in probate this year has been what some—in comparing the figures—would call alarming, or appalling, while in equity it has been about normal. Figures of the past few years show the existence of exactly similar conditions. In 1905 the percentage of failures, in probate law, was more than twice that in equity. In the same way failures in other subjects, which treat particularly of Iowa law, The question which naturally follows is, why?—Why are there defects and a deficiency in matters of Iowa law? The answer given is that it is necessary to memorize a large part of the code in order to be absolutely sure of secure footing on a subject dealing with Iowa law.

These code provisions are not the codified laws of the state, but the legislation which regulates our civil procedure. It is, of course, quite naturally that the percentage of failures in probate is greater than in equity. In the latter, the student sees that our Civil Code is only a set of rules, is a professor Ramseh, for Iowa. succeeded in giving a lecture on the subject of equity and self-help, which is the reason that there is a deficiency in the former. The standard of the Iowa Code has been so high that he nearly died. He spoke as follows:

"It is highly exaggerated reports of the dancing which went on during the short course have gone abroad. An exaggerated truth is infinitely worse than a lie, and it is so one should that there is some truth at the bottom of these newspaper stories. Every day letters are coming from all over the United States, from even as far as Massachusetts, asking if these reports are true. Public sentiment is all powerful and the responsibility lies on our shoulders to see that our institutions are wholly worthy of the confidence of the people."

"It is time that E. C. had outgrown the feather stage of development. While in some military schools it seems that hazing increases with the years it is true that in most large universities such child misdeemors are seconded as the institution grows in dignity and self-respectibility. Hazing begins in more, but ends in personal injury. It is the working of a mob under an irresponsible leader, on another mob under a leader, or at all. No one ever joined a hazing expedition who did not know in his own heart that it was a disgraceful thing to do, cowardly deed. There is always one of the group to take the same oath, or the group that the force of the law, he knew the bank was insolvent.

Fred C. McCutcheon, the defendant, was the oldest son of Dr. Melotus McCutcheon of Holstein, who was prominent leader of the republicans in Iowa, and for whom so years was the Eleventh district member of the Republican state central committee. Young McCutcheon gained fame as the manager of the University of Iowa football teams in 1899 and 1901, and managed the famous 1900 champi onship team that defeated Michigan and won the championship of the west, the one time it has ever been held by the Hawkeye, institution.

COLLEGE MAN ON HAZING.

Head of Ames College Urges Students to Cease "The Faker Stage of Development."

Ames, Iowa, Feb. 15—President A. B. Storms of Iowa State college recently addressed the students on hazing, and urged them to aid in its elimination. A surprise was sprung in his admissions that there was foundation for the sensational story circulated a month ago to the effect that a student at the short course had been so badly hurt that he nearly died. He spoke as follows:

FAMOUS TRIAL.

The date for the junior law trial has been announced. The trial will commence March 5. The attorneys in the case are now busy securing and examining their witnesses. It is expected that the indictment will be out before the end of the week. As has been previously announced the case will be one in which Mary Queen of Scots, will be tried for the murder of Lord Darnley. To be tried in Scottish history the circumstances surrounding the case are well known. The case promises to be one of the best tried ever tried by a law class in the University.

WILL WRESTLE IN DES MOINES

Coyle and Royal French will represent the University in a wrestling match against Highland Park, to be held in Des Moines, Friday, February 16. Our representatives are out classed in regard to weight; Coyle, who weighs about 130, wrestles a 155 pound man while French, 165 pounds, meets their heavy weight wrestler of 185 pounds. However, our fellows have good hopes of winning in spite of their opponents' greater weight. Former Huron will probably act as referee.
