VOL. 38.

The freshmen of the class of 1857 formed a Harvard Sharpshooters for the purpose of helping to support the Harvard University.

Mr. Colter, as an Irishman, was elected president, receiving 46 votes. The next meeting will be held in Mrs. Colter's house on the corner of Main and Market streets.

Dr. O. W. Krejca, of the University of Chicago, was elected treasurer and Mr. Wagner was elected secretary. The house was extended, and there was an unusually large audience.

The members of the faculty, both men and women, received an ovation and remained students. The house was extended, and there was an unusually large audience.

The first meeting of the Political Science Club occurred on Monday evening at the home of Professor A. L. Cox. The meeting was held in the room next to the lecture hall in the new building.

The meeting was opened by Professor A. L. Cox, who gave an interesting and well-delivered speech on the subject of political science.

The meeting was adjourned to the next week, when the Political Science Club will meet again in the same room.

THE LECTURE COURSE.

The advantages of clay and clay branches have been emphasized in many fields that it is not surprising to find that the idea has also applied to entertainment. Lecture courses are organized on exactly this principle by the usual system of lectures in advance, a wholesale price is obtained, and admission usually is restricted to a few or a fifth of the ordinary rate.

College students mainly pick the clay, generally good attractions doing this line because students appreciate and pull money good entertainment.

Amos has the largest course of any town in Iowa. At the University of Michigan there is a student association maintaining the course. This plan was not very successful when first tried, but has become an important part of the course with a number of years of experience. The numbers last year were of high grade, and this year something smaller but better than usual. A clay in the city centre is a good mental tonic wherever found.
