The State University of Iowa can boast of a great cadet band. It is able to compete successfully with any Amateur Military Band in the West. With one or two exceptions, the instrumentation is complete, and the average of talent is far above the ordinary. The band has been entered in the fall thefall have been entered into with rousing enthusiasm, and the general development of the band has been very gratifying.

ATHLETIC BOARD AWARDS THE "I'S"

Surplus About $5,000—Freshmen Squad Will Receive Bonus.

The Athletic Board held an important business meeting, Wednesday night. It was granted to University Athletics. A 1 1/2 times greater than to any candidates. The University requires its candidates to carry the same kind of work as the Freshmen Rifles, and it is thought that a competition with two bands will be very interesting.

The only thing that had to be considered socially was the financial part, and it was decided to depend upon the students to turn out to do their duty in sufficient numbers to pay the expenses. The drill work would necessarily be held in some part of the city, so that the band would come into shape for the purposes of the Freshmen rifle squad.

Basket band uniforms and other band equipment were purchased with the surplus funds. The band reports that the final schedule for next year will be completed within a few weeks. A trip with Wisconsin on Iowa field is certain. About 1,000 uniformed personnel were said among Iowa squads this year. The University is not a thing to be advertised, in the commercial sense, but we need a certain amount of publicity. Why not let the public know your band?

Henry G. Cox, Bandmaster.
The exercise of reasonable care and prudence in the prosecution of the Little Things in life some of the Distinguishing characteristics of the successful man or woman. We are not at all to say, “Oh, what is the difference; it doesn’t amount to much.” These little Things in the aggregate, make up the sum of life’s activities.

In view of what has been said it is evident that the comparatively unimportant matter of selecting one’s food begins to assume tremendous proportions.
