FOOTBALL MEN ELECT WHITE

"CRESCO," WILL. B. CAPTAIN NEXT YEAR

In a secret ballot, and with great enthusiasm, the varsity football team elected Capt. Herbert B. White to be captain for the 1907-1908 season. It was announced that White would fill the position with as much energy and ability as the players of the past.

LITERARY SOCIETIES ELECT.

The Regular Literary Society held its annual election of officers Friday evening. Former officers and the new officers were welcomed by the assembly assembled. The society appears to be in a flourishing condition.

Junior Laws Will Try the Case
Professor Byrnes Makes Assignments

There was once a Harvard professor, who quarreled with his tradition, killed him, and cut up his body into little pieces. The professor was tried for murder, but his guilt was not proved. The case was appealed, and a jury of peers was empanelled to decide the matter. The professor was found guilty, and was executed. It is probable that he was not guilty of the crime, but that he was one of its victims.

In 1850, a well for the position. The Geyer committee.

It begins to be a question of whether to use the term "captain" for the position. It was considered by the assembly to be a proper title for the position.

Only a few hundred men from one hundred and forty-two institutions around the nation are immediately following the commencement of study. Over three thousand students are found among the classes.

The future of the college is quite interesting to many of the students. It seems that Professor Byrnes has been selected as the head of the department.

It is probably not generally appreciated that the present is one of its conditions. The case was appealed, and a jury of peers was empanelled to decide the matter. The professor was found guilty, and was executed.

In 1850, a well for the position. The Geyer committee.

It begins to be a question of whether to use the term "captain" for the position. It was considered by the assembly to be a proper title for the position.

LEARNING BY DOING.

The annual Junior Trial is an interesting feature of the work in the College of Law. The faculty of our law school gives the greatest application of legal principles, and the Junior Trial is typical of the manner by which theory is supplemented with practice.

This trial is only one of many carried out in the regular course on professors, but it is one of the most common on account of the extra time spent in preparation for it, and the choice of some famous historical cases. When Iowa inaugurated the practice some years ago, it was at once copied by other schools. The trial of Hamlet here is thought to have been the first instance where that case has been tried as it would be tried in a real court. Another trial was held on Vanity Fair. The next year, a student was acquitted on the charge of being accessory to the murder of Dombey. Last year, Mary Stuart was tried for the murder of Darnley, and she was acquitted, presumably because the jurors thought it would not be wise to bring a guilty verdict in the case.

Every man in the case takes part. Those who do not serve as attorneys, jurors, or other cog-wheels in the machinery of justice are required to act as attackers or.prosecutors. In view of all the accumulated wisdom the present Juniors will bring to bear on the case of State against Professor Webster, the late professor will be mighty lucky if he gets off with any less than a death sentence.

Professor Obie, of the Engineering department, went to Burlington yesterday to inspect a steam furnace. Professor Higginbotham will occupy the office recently vacated by Professor Snyder, Mr. Higginbotham is Electric Engineering and Drawing.

Professor Higginbotham is also the office head of Professor Higginbotham.

NEWS OF THE COLLEGE.

The Chi Psi fraternity house at Cornell University, which humped to the ground last Friday, was the scene of a riot the previous evening in which the house was being valued at $100,000. Five students and three volunteer firemen were hurt in the fracas.

Sophomores at Illinois have drawn up a sort of resolution stating that this house is to have no part in the future of the fraternity.

The University of Pennsylvania has announced that all athletics relations with Harvard are severed. This was to fulfill in part the injunction issued by the higher courts to the effect that the fraternity must disband.
