The most important of these discoveries is that of the capacity of the body to produce substances specifically poisonous to all sorts of foreign cells as bacteria and cellular products.

The study of bacteria, though the discovery is of considerable interest, is not the full limit of bacteriological research. It is not yet possible to classify bacteria into three groups:

Group I. This group includes a small number of bacteria which cause specific antitoxins to be formed. These bacteria are the specific cause of a disease, and the antitoxin so produced is specific to the particular disease caused by that bacterium.

Group II. This group includes bacteria which cause destruction of the cells of the body. These bacteria are often called "hemolytic" bacteria, and they cause destruction of the circulating blood cells.

Group III. This group includes bacteria which cause destruction of the tissues of the body. These bacteria are often called "necrotic" bacteria, and they cause destruction of the tissues of the body.

The classification of bacteria is of great importance in the study of disease, and it is necessary to have a clear understanding of the classification in order to understand the nature of the disease caused by each bacterium.

The Athens Situation
The main trouble with things is general. That when you fix them, they won't stay fixed. No matter how good a machine you build, it needs a lot of fixing to keep it running. Now, you have something like rock music here. It works. It runs with very little friction. But the time the weather is cold, and you need to be outside, and the Athletic Union meeting tonight is the proper time to do the job.

It may be too expensive to discriminate that $1.00 fee, as has been suggested. It is no longer needed for revenue, but still serves a certain use in ensuring the vote to those who are really interested. Probably some other test might be devised now, more appropriate to the current conditions. Frankly, I am thinking that perhaps the association should make more repercussions. Nobody would care if there were no fees. Legal steps, for example, can be taken.

Don't you think the students should have more voice? You, more influence? Oh, no. Well, why don't they? Talk right out in meeting if you can answer that question. The organization as planned gives legal limits to student management. Nothing stands in the way of student influence. The faculty members of the board would be bound to show the responsibilities. They have carried the burden of routine work all fall, with very little help from student members of the board, as the attendance records show. When the student point of view was sought there was frequent no member present to be consulted. Our representatives failed to represent.

At the meeting tonight law offices, if you please, they should be impressed with their responsibilities. It is not a question of choosing better men, but getting them to understand the importance of their duties. Our new representatives should be gently informed that their function is not decorative, but practical. A little honor and a great deal of work attaches to the chair. If the members realize this and take their work seriously, there can be little complaint in future about the management of the athletics.

Past this in your hat. The office is seeking the man, and maybe you'll

(Chicago Medical College)

DR. N. S. DAVIS, Dean.

This medical school is entirely located, equipped to large hospital, affording advantage of clinical material. The laboratory and hospital connections are excellent, well lighted and generously supplied with all modern apparatus to aid in carrying on the work in the most effective manner, the result of the work, the result of the study of medicine.

The full course consists of four years, eight months, beginning October 1st. The classes are divided into small sections, thus affording for those who are interested opportunities, or the advantages of individual criticism. This feature, as well as a graded curriculum, characteristic of the work in the departments.

The ability of the men who graduate from this school, as well as the character and thoroughness of the work done, is a measure of the success of our graduates in the examinations given by the different state boards. Only 4 of the 150 graduates of the class of 1905 were not assisted by the various State Boards in the United States during the last year, only one failed.
